THE NIGHT EXPRESS.

BY WILLIAM COSMO MONKHOUSE.

William Cosmo Monkhouse was born March 18, 1840, and died at London in 1901. Educated at St. Paul's school, he became a clerk in the British board of trade (1857), visited South America (1870-1871), served in government departments, and became assistant secretary to the British board of trade (1883). Among his poetical works are "A Dream of Idleness," "Corn and Popples," "The Christ Upon the Hill." He wrote "A Question of Honor," a novel; "The Earlier English Water Color Painters," "The Italian Pre-Raphaelites," etc.

With three great snorts of strength,
Stretching my mighty length,
Like some long dragon stirring in his sleep,
Out from the glare of gas
Into the night I pass,
And plunge alone into silence deep.

Little I know or care
What be the load I bear,
Why thus compell'd I seek not to divine;
At man's command I stir,
I, his stern messenger!
Does he his duty well as I do mine?

Straight on my silent road,
Flank'd by no man's abode,
No foe I parley with, no friend I greet;
On like a bolt I fly
Under the starry sky,
Scorning the current of the sluggish street.

Onward from south to north,
Onward from Thames to Forth,
On—like a comet—on, unceasingly,
Faster and faster yet,
On—where far boughs of jet
Stretch their wild woof against the pearly sky.

Faster and faster still
Dive I through rock and hill,
Starting the echoes with my shrill alarms;
Swiftly I curve the bend,
While, like an eager friend,
The distance runs to clasp me in its arms.

Ne'er from my path I swerve
Rattling around a curve,
Not vainly trusting to my trusty bars;
On through the hollow night,
While or to left or right
A city glistens like a clump of stars.

On through the night I steer;
Never a sound I hear
Save the strong beating of my steady stroke—
Save when the circling owl
Hoots, or the screaming fowl
Rise from the marshes like a sudden smoke.

Now o'er a gulf I go;
Dark in the depth below
Smites the slant beam the shoulder of the height;
Now through a lane of trees—
Past sleeping villages,
Their white walls whiter in the silver light.

Be the night foul or fair,
Little I reck or care,
Bandy with storms, and with the tempests jest;
Little I care or know
What winds may rage or blow,
But charge the whirlwind with a dauntless breast.

Now through the level plain,
While, like a mighty main,
Stretches my endless breath in cloudy miles;
Now o'er the dull lagoon,
While the broad beamed moon
Lights up its sadness into sickly smiles.

O, 'tis a race sublime!
I, neck and neck with Time—
I, with my thews of iron and heart of fire,
Run without pause for breath;
While all the earth beneath
Shakes with the shocks of my tremendous ire.

On—till the race be won;
On—till the coming sun
Blinds moon and stars with his excessive light;
On—till the earth be green
And the first lark be seen
Shaking away with songs the dews of night.

Sudden my speed I slack—
Sudden all force I lack—
Without a struggle yield I up my breath;
Numb'd are my thews of steel,
Wearily rolls each wheel,
My heart cools slowly to the sleep of death.

Why for so brief a length
Dower'd with such mighty strength?
Man is my God—I seek not to divine;
At his command I stir,
I, his stern messenger—
Does he his duty well as I do mine?

MAYOR SHUTS UP SILVER'S RESORT.

Notorious Downtown Saloon Closed When He Himself Hears the Noise of Revelry.

BOY IN THE SPIDER'S WEB

Letter on Gambling from Heart Broken Parents Also Induces Executive to Take Action.

Mayor Harrison yesterday revoked the license under which George Silver operated his notorious saloon at 97 Dearborn street. The action is based on the testimony of the mayor's own senses and on a letter sent to him by the heartbroken parents of a boy who was led to embezzlement through gambling in Silver's resort.

The evidence, gathered by the mayor himself and by detectives under his personal direction as well as that shown in the pathetic letter, is of a kind that the most lenient judge cannot overlook, and there is little danger that the courts will come to Silver's aid.

"I guess this revocation will give Silver's lawyers something to do," remarked the mayor, recalling the mandamus writ by which he was forced to grant Silver a license in July for "The Maxim" in Wabash avenue.

Unique Way of Finding Evidence.

The way in which the mayor secured personal evidence that Silver was violating one or more laws in his old, or Dearborn street, saloon was unique. Tuesday afternoon, wishing to purchase some outing goods preparatory to his trip to the far west, the mayor went into a shirt store which happened to be next door to Silver's "place." While there sounds filtered through the thin wall, sounds which were not to his liking. He heard women's voices—the tones indicating drink—and the notes of a "brassy" piano, and above all, as he himself expressed it, "the song of a levee tenor."

The mayor pondered. His police had not told him of these things. While he still pondered there came to his office a letter, anonymous, but from the heart. It had been forwarded to him from Huron mountain.

At once he ordered reports from detectives and Chief O'Neill's men, who, previously more or less blind, now saw a great light. They reported that "bets on races are taken anywhere along the bar, and that odds are plainly posted."

Revokes the License.

That settled it. The action came suddenly yesterday afternoon just before the mayor started for the Yellowstone park, and last night George Silver's saloon, which for years has disgraced Dearborn street, was closed and locked.

The license for "The Maxim," Silver's resort in the "new levee" in Wabash avenue, renewed under the orders of Judge Gary, still remains. The police are seeing to it, however, that the place closes at midnight, and they figure that it must soon go into bankruptcy and die a natural death.

George Silver, the Spider.

The letter, which had so important a share in the investigation, was forwarded to the mayor while he was at Huron Mountain, and, missing him there, followed him to Chicago.

It was written by the parents of the boy in question and read:

"Dear Mayor—As our city father and protector, we appeal to you in a case where a loved son has been led beyond the control of parents, and with other boys under age is daily being prepared for embezzlement or worse, all caused by the open violation of state laws and city ordinances. Reluctantly the knowledge of our son's downfall has been forced upon us by the discovery of a shortage of funds in a responsible position.

"The sole cause is a resort at 97 Dearborn street, conducted by one George Silver, where we have discovered that our boy, 18 years old, with other companions of the same age are in the habit of congregating daily for the purpose of gambling on horseraces and where every convenience and inducement is offered and extended to encourage the youths in the evil mentioned.

"Stores, offices, and workshops in this vicinity are daily visited by a representative of this game and patronage solicited, the employers' time and money being used to support this dive. Thus our boy, with many others, has been inveigled into this demoralizing pastime.

Helpless in the Web.

"Above all, after our heart pleadings and heart bleedings with our son, and his faithful promise to reform, the fascination has become so great with him that he was present again today and squandered an amount secured upon an article of jewelry purloined from our home.

"Our only recourse seems to be this prayer to your honorable self, as with slight assistance from you we hope to save our boy and his youthful companions from the inevitable. Our son was saved from prison only by a timely confession to us of his peculations.

"Our disgrace is too keenly felt at this moment to reveal our identity, and we trust that by the kindly action and generosity of yourself our shame may be unpublished and thus may we, a heartbroken couple, hope to be saved from further disgrace and suffering in order that this dastard [Silver] may collect blood money."

Evidence Against Silver.

The mayor ordered an investigation at once and Detective William Schubert reported that three handbook men had been arrested and fined since May 1 for operating in Silver's place, and that Frank Hutchinson, one of them, is still there. A special officer sent to investigate yesterday reported:

"I landed O. K. Placed $2 on Stroller in first race at Saratoga at 6 to 1. Wide open. Took McGulan with me, and he watched the whole proceeding. Pool or book room is under the front sidewalk, but bets are taken anywhere along the bar. Odds are posted, so you know just what you can do without asking any questions. No checks given for small bets. You give your initials."

And to all this the mayor made this autographic indorsement on the papers:

"There was piano playing and singing there the afternoon of Tuesday, Aug. 18. Heard by me from a store next door."

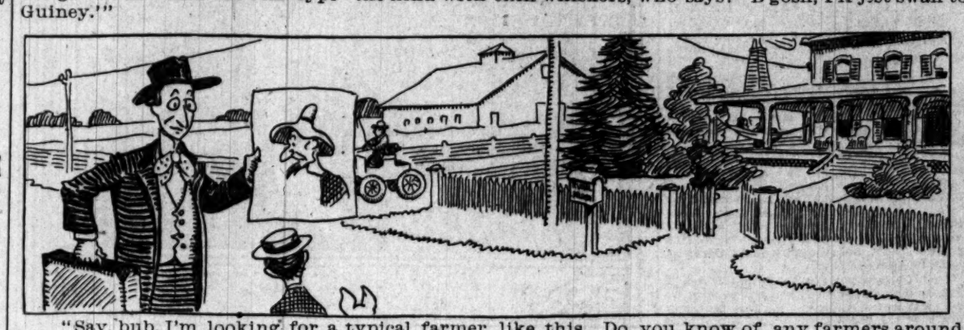

The combination of evidence thus handed to Chief O'Neill was convincing. The mayor's own testimony that piano playing and singing were permitted in a downtown saloon was especially embarrassing to the head of the police department, and so he made this final indorsement:

"For the foregoing reasons I recommend the license be revoked."

THE FARMER OF FICTION AND REALITY.

The Popular Novelist—"Now I'm going to write a great novel on American farm life and I think I'll go out and find the real type—the kind with chin whiskers, who says: 'B'gosh, I'll jest swan to Guiney.'"

"Say, bub, I'm looking for a typical farmer like this. Do you know of any farmers around here?"

"My pa's a farmer, but he's gone over to town to get a new tire for his auto. You might ask ma, over there. She's reading about the yacht races."

"Great Scott, is this the farmer of today? I haven't heard one of them say 'B'gosh, I'll jest swan to Guiney,' and none of them looks like the jay pictures."

"Won't you stay for supper and drive over to the Chautauqua meeting afterward?"
"No, thank you; I'm going back to town."

JOKE IMPERILS LIFE.

Six Men and a Boy Almost Drowned in Lake Michigan.

YOUTH ADRIFT IN A BOX.

Others Go to the Rescue and the Crew in a Tug Saves Them All.

It was only a "joke." Yet six men almost lost their lives as a price of their heroism, and a boy, to whose rescue they had gone, became unconscious through fear and exposure.

The life savers, with tug and surfboat, went out in the lake just in time to save the seven. The two small boats occupied by the boy and the six men were half filled with water and a heavy wind was blowing them further from shore.

Those who figured in what threatened to be the gravest disaster of the summer on Chicago's water front were:

John Gill, 10 years old, 4014 Butler street.
Steven Schultz, 9721 Calumet avenue.
Oscar Baker, 4321 Ellis avenue.
R. E. Sweet, 4509 Lake avenue.
F. W. Martl, Illinois Central gateman at Thirty-ninth street.
Edward Johnson, 9521 Commercial avenue.

Start of the "Joke."

Young Gill, with twenty companions, was swimming in the lake at Fortieth street yesterday afternoon. A big tin bait box, such as float alongside fishing vessels, had drifted into the vicinity, and in the box Gill was tossed by the others, who swam and pushed the box into deep water and abandoned it.

Young Gill, agonized by fright, shouted for help, but his cries did not reach the shore. Then he moved his bare arms and the signals were seen by Schultz and Baker, who were among 200 men who were at work on a cofferdam at Thirty-ninth street.

Policeman Vail was summoned, a rowboat was secured, and with Schultz at the oars the rescuing party, including Baker, headed for the floating box. In ten minutes the boy was drawn into the craft, only to sink unconscious upon its bottom.

Rescuers in a Plight.

The off shore wind had increased in velocity, while the rescuers had rowed to Gill's floating prison, and the men in the boat were unable to make progress back to shore. They signaled for help and Martl, Sweet, and Johnson went out in another boat, lashing the distressed craft to theirs.

Vail bent to the oars in one boat, and for a few minutes it seemed as if the three pairs of swiftly dipping blades would win the victory. Then the stroke grew slower, and after twenty minutes' effort the oarsmen again saw their boats were drifting seaward.

While three of the six men were rowing the others were busy bailing the leaking skiffs. Their distress was seen from shore, and a telephone call was sent the life saving station at the mouth of the river, five miles away.

A quick run was made, but none too quick, for the six men had almost given up hope for themselves and their unconscious charge.

CANAL PAY DAY LOST

"Tadpole Ditch" Employes Are Given a Most Cruel Blow.

BUSSE WITHHOLDS $52,000.

On Hamlin's Advice Warrant Must Wait Till October at Least.

The "tadpole" canal, or rather the commissioners and employés of the same, who have been hungering and thirsting for a pay day, must wait yet awhile—perhaps a long, long while. A warrant from the state auditor to the Illinois and Michigan canal commissioners for $52 000 will not be paid by State Treasurer Busse.

The refusal of the treasurer to honor the draft is based on advice from Attorney General Hamlin. Some two weeks ago, when the warrant for more than a fourth of the total sum recently appropriated by the legislature was issued, Mr. Busse, having been warned, declined to cash it until so advised by the attorney general. The latter promised to investigate the status of the matter in view of the temporary injunction secured by State Representative Richard Burke, which was later dissolved by Judge Creighton, in Springfield, and the appeal that subsequently was taken.

Yesterday Mr. Hamlin handed his opinion to Mr. Busse, and, as a result, the warrant will not be cashed, at least until the appeal to the Supreme court is decided.

Hamlin Says to Wait Awhile.

Mr. Hamlin says, in the course of his opinion:

"In my opinion, although the temporary injunction has been dissolved, yet you are bound to take notice as defendent of allegations made in said bill for an injunction, and should the Circuit court on a final hearing or Supreme court on an appeal hold said act to be unconstitutional, you would be bound by such final decree or decision.

"In such event, as your actions from the time the court acquired jurisdiction over you and the subject matter of said suit are bound by the final decision of the court, any money paid out by you pending the hearing of said cause would have to be restored by you to the state treasury.

"I am of the opinion you should withhold the payment of said warrant until the final determination of said cause, which, I believe, I will be able to secure at the October term of the Supreme court."

No Pay Day Till October.

This means that the job holders will have to wait until next October at least before they can draw any money for their alleged services to the state, and it is possible the taxpayers of Illinois will be for all time relieved of supporting them, at least in their present jobs.

Should the Supreme court overrule Judge Creighton it would mean that the canal commissioners can draw no money from the state treasury to meet their pay rolls and the other expenses which have carried the cost of maintaining the ditch far in excess of the receipts it brings in.

DEEPENS A MYSTERY.

Attorney Barnum Still Missing and Guide Is Arrested.

TELLS STORY OF LONG SWIM.

Chicago Man Is Said to Have Fallen Into Lake Walloon.

The mysterious disappearance at Walloon Lake, Mich., of Attorney Albert W. Barnum of 582 La Salle avenue, Chicago, was followed yesterday by the arrest of the man who admits he was in Mr. Barnum's company on the afternoon that he dropped from sight.

The prisoner, who is being detained at East Jordan, Mich., is Claud Rice, a guide, with whom Mr. Barnum was last seen. The charge, that of assault and battery, is merely nominal, and serves to detain Rice until more can be learned of what befell the attorney.

While circumstances indicate that Mr. Barnum was drowned in the lake, former Judge William H. Barnum, father of the missing man, has not given up hope that his son is alive. In a telegram to his son, Harry H. Barnum, the ex-judge yesterday said:

"Bert still missing. Prospects more hopeful. Don't believe all rumors."

Story of the Guide.

According to Rice, the guide, he and Mr. Barnum went to Petoskey together, returning to Talbott's place, a landing where Mr. Barnum's rowboat was moored. There, Rice says, Mr. Barnum entered the boat and started to row across the lake, where he, with his wife and father, was spending the summer at their cottage.

When only a few feet from the wharf, according to Rice, Mr. Barnum fell out of the boat, and, instead of swimming back to shore, struck out across the lake. Rice declares that he then went home without waiting to see what happened to the lawyer.

Rice says he gave the matter no more thought till the next morning, when he was called on to explain what happened to Mr. Barnum. When asked why he walked away from the lake when his companion was in the water his answer was that he knew Mr. Barnum to be a good swimmer and able to take care of himself.

Find Lawyer's Hat and Coat.

Rice's story was not considered consistent by the police, and his arrest followed. On the landing at Talbott's place were found Mr. Barnum's hat and coat, as well as several parcels he had purchased at Petoskey. The Michigan police cannot understand why he should have left these articles on the landing had he started to row home across the lake, as Rice says:

Before he left for Walloon lake last night to join the searching party Harry H. Barnum, the brother, said:

"I cannot believe that Albert is dead unless he was the victim of foul play. He is an expert swimmer, and few men can handle a boat as well as he. We will make every effort to clear away whatever mystery surrounds his disappearance."

MAY DISQUALIFY LIPTON'S YACHT; SCANDAL HINTED

Declared Anchors and Chain Were Not on Board When Shamrock III. Was Officially Measured.

WOULD CHANGE FIGURES.

Might Make Challenger Over Ninety Feet Water Line and Rule It from America Cup Contest.

WEATHER FOR THE YACHT RACE.

The weather on Saturday over the international yacht race course will be fair to partly cloudy, with fresh southerly winds, probably shifting to southwesterly.
EMERY, Forecast Official.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—"Is Shamrock III. disqualified for the races against Reliance for the America cup?

"Was the British challenger's anchor and chain left ashore when it was officially measured for the race?

"If the anchor and chain were not on board at the time, as provided by the rules for contests for the America cup, who was responsible, and was the omission made purposely?

"How will this affect the race of tomorrow?"

Savors Strongly of Scandal.

These questions, savoring strongly of a scandal, are being asked by members of the New York Yacht club and yachtsmen generally tonight as a result of a startling development in the struggle for the yachting supremacy of the world, which came this afternoon.

An error in the measurement of Sir Thomas Lipton's racer before Thursday's race, it is declared, has been discovered and a protest has been filed with the New York Yacht club in behalf of Reliance.

Too Deep in the Water.

When Designer Fife inspected his creation, Shamrock III., just before Charles D. Mower, the New York Yacht club official, stretched his tapeline on the boat for the official measurement, he found the yacht was so deep in the water that the ninety foot marks were far below the surface. He at once ordered the crew to tear out everything moveable in the interior and take it ashore so as to lighten the yacht, and even moved a great deal of rigging and blocks to amidships to get the bow to rise out of the water.

Barely Inside the Limit.

Even at that Shamrock measured 89.81 feet, barely getting inside the limit, which is one of the fundamental rules governing the race.

These same rules specify that when measured the yacht must have its heavy anchor and chain cable on board. The question now is was the anchor and cable taken ashore when Shamrock was stripped, and was it or was it not done intentionally?

As yet the yacht club officials are treating it as an oversight, but they have ordered Shamrock remeasured on Monday, and on the result of this will determine the outcome.

Lipton Not Censured Personally.

No one believes that Sir Thomas knew anything about the matter, or that he would have allowed it if he had. Some are not so certain about other people connected with the challenger.

It is generally believed that when remeasured with anchor and cable aboard Shamrock will be found over ninety feet on the water line and this will raise some difficult questions.

Ballast will have to be removed from the boat to bring it to the proper length.

A committee of the New York Yacht club on the cup challenger has been in communication with Col. Sherman Crawford of the Royal Ulster Yacht club committee and late today ex-Commodore Ledyard notified him that Shamrock was to sail with an anchor and cable on board tomorrow and be remeasured on Monday.

This will mean that if the Shamrock should win tomorrow and by measurement be found to exceed 90 feet length water line it will be disqualified because it exceeds the limit. If Shamrock is beaten in tomorrow's race and found to be over length it remains to be seen if the committee will call the race off or decide that it stand as one against the challenging yacht.

When the yachts were measured representatives of each club and the challenge and regatta committees were on hand to see that all rules were complied with. Charles D. Mower did the measuring and Designer N. G. Herreshoff looked after the interests of Reliance, while C. Oliver Iselin watched from the edge of the dock. William Fife watched the interests of Shamrock III. Robert Bacon was representative of the New York Yacht club and H. M. McGildowney represented the Royal Ulster Yacht club. Newbury D. Lawton was present at the measuring from the regatta committee of the New York Yacht club.

Second Race Today.

The second attempt to sail the first race to a finish in the contest for the America cup will be made tomorrow. The weather bureau tonight promised enough wind to carry the boats over the course in the time limit of five and a half hours. "Fresh southerly winds, probably shifting to southwest," is the forecast, and Forecaster Emery believes that the chances for a successful race are good.

The start will be at 10:45 o'clock, and the course will be the same as yesterday—fifteen miles to windward or leeward and return.

Japanese to Seek Cup.

A new aspirant for international yachting honors has arisen in the far east. If Lieut. Commander Isam Takeshira of the imperial Japanese navy can carry out his plans Japan will have a yacht in the next contest for the America cup. The commander, who came here to see the struggle between Shamrock III. and Reliance, declares he will interest financial men in his country to prepare at once for the building of a racer to enter the next international races.

"We can build just as fine a boat as either America or England," he said, "and you may be sure that at the next international yacht races you will see the flag of Japan flying on the winner."

Lipton Not Discouraged.

Sir Thomas Lipton, far from being disheartened by the showing of Shamrock III., declares that he is as sanguine as ever, and insists that its showing against Reliance when both were on an even footing was favorable to the British boat. The American yachtsmen, having had a night to think matters over, are not so supremely confident as they were last evening, and freely admit that a fair comparison of the merits of the two yachts is yet to be made.

Capt. Wringe says he wanted to tack Shamrock much earlier than he did, but was not quite far enough ahead to be sure of crossing Reliance's bow, and he did not want to bear off to go astern of the American boat. This shows that the two were close together. On both Shamrock and Reliance all were satisfied that the attempt showed nothing of the merits of the two boats, and the skippers and crews are content to wait until the wind will hold true and send them over the course in fair time, when the winner will have something to boast of.

Sir Thomas said: "I don't feel at all discouraged, strange as it may seem to many. In fact, I feel encouraged by the performance of Shamrock while the two yachts were sailing with the same wind. Every one else may disagree with me, but I think Shamrock did better work while the wind lasted. After the winds became fluky there were no means of judging the comparative merits of the two yachts. They simply drifted about, first one catching a puff and then the other.

Sees a Good Omen.

"In yesterday's attempt Reliance was the leading boat, and I think that is a good omen. You know the former Shamrocks could do lots of good work in fluky weather, and invariably led when the race was finished. I admit Reliance is a better drifter, but it ought to be with its big spread of canvas. With its big club topsail towering way up in the clouds it ought to catch the light airs that pass over Shamrock, but it cannot make a race within the time limit under such conditions, and when the two yachts meet a steady breeze I am hopeful of success."

Smith, the well known designer, said:

"You can base no prophecy on the race of Thursday. The conditions were tricky and either boat might have had the advantage. You might just as well have said the cup was safe before the races began as to say so now. It would have been mere guesswork before the races and no more than that now. So far as a line on form goes, the race amounted to nothing, in my opinion."

Betting Odds Increase.

Betting admirers of the American boat today offered 5 to 1 on Reliance, an increase of odds of over 100 per cent. This developed enough interest among the admirers of Shamrock III. to result in several wagers being recorded in the Wall street district. The largest wager on the basis of 5 to 1 was placed by A. C. Gwynne, a Wall street man, who laid $2,500 against $500 on Reliance. Several small bets, involving about $5,000, were placed at the same odds. Several wagers were placed with Reliance a 4 to 1 favorite.

The yachts were out today on short sail drying spins, but returned after an hour or so. The rest of the day was spent by the crews in resting.

Lipton to Wed American?

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

GLASGOW, Aug. 21.—A correspondent wires to the Citizen asking if it is true that Sir Thomas Lipton stated at a banquet that in case of Shamrock III. winning the America cup he would marry an American girl, and would he carry out the promise.

The Citizen in a leaderette on yesterday's yacht race, says it was identical with the flukes of 1901. The paper adds that it is curious Reliance should be a bigger craft than Shamrock III., but that this is intentional on the part of Designer Herreshoff in view of the August weather about Sandy Hook.

SAYS NEGRO MERCHANT IS VICTIM OF GRAFTERS.

Theodore Jones Declares He Must Pay for Privilege of Being in Business in Chicago by Donations to Churches.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Theodore Jones of Chicago, addressing the National Negro and Business league today, said the negro is compelled to pay a penalty for being in business in Chicago, and that his reputation suffers if he refuses to act as chairman of every anti-lynching and indignation massmeeting, or to contribute freely to every church entertainment, cake walk, or side show. He said the race problem would be wrought out by the negro.

F. D. Patterson, who represents an Ohio carriage manufactory, said the business offered greater opportunities to men of small means, for the reason that it is trust proof and that any man who can make a horseshoe can engage in it with profit. He declared the race question to be a personal issue, and said the standing of the individual fixed the status of the race.

The following officers were elected: Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee, Ala., president; G. L. Knox, first vice president, Indianapolis, Ind.; Emmett J. Scott, corresponding secretary, Tuskegee, Ala.; Frederick R. Moore, recording secretary and organizer, New York; G. C. Harris, treasurer, Boston; C. L. Williams, compiler, Chicago.

LANGLEY AIRSHIP IS READY TO TRY A FLIGHT TODAY.

Aerodrome Will Carry Prof. Manley in a Trip to the Clouds if the Weather Is Favorable.

Widewater, Va., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Prof. Langley's aerodrome is to try its wings tomorrow if weather conditions permit. Prof. Manley will probably be chosen to make the ascent.

The flying machine was placed in position on the house boat today, and for the first time representatives of the press were permitted to inspect it.

The body consists of several long steel bars centrally located. With bowsprit and rudder the craft measures sixty feet. Close to the motor is the navigator's car.

The gasoline motor, which weighs 200 pounds, generates something in excess of twenty-seven horse power. It is connected by bars to the propellers, six feet in diameter and capable of revolving 1,200 times per minute. The motive power is sufficient to produce a velocity of forty miles per hour.

Placed equally about the ship are five empty conical bodies designed as floats to keep the airship up when it strikes the water. Fore and aft are two strong platforms on each side to support the wings. These are of delicate but rigid construction, 20x10 feet, allowing a sustaining capacity of 800 square feet.

Looking for Negro Girl.

Lily King, a negro girl 18 years old, has disappeared from the residence of Charles T. Brown, 807 Park avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Brown fear she has been enticed away. The girl came to Chicago recently from Mount Vernon, O. The police are looking for a woman who may know the colored girl's whereabouts.

Pocket Map of Wisconsin Lake Region.

An entirely new map of the lake region of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, showing lakes, streams, wagon roads, trails, portages, camps, and clubhouses in the best hunting and fishing region in the world, has been issued by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway. TALKS POLITICS WITH ROOSEVELT

Gov. Odell and President Reach Perfect Understanding on Party Matters.

DETAILS OF LEAD TRUST.

Will Have a Total Capitalization of $27,000,000 and Includes Nine Companies.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Aug. 21.

Gov. Benjamin B. Odell, who is in this city tonight, had a three hours' conference with President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill today. They reached a perfect understanding on all points which they discussed and are in entire accord regarding all matters of either personal or party concern.

Odell Talks Politics with Roosevelt.

The governor said in response to inquiries that his visit was both social and political. He had not seen the president for several months and desired to discuss some party affairs with him. He said that he and the president incidentally discussed the political situation in both the city and the state of New York, but no definite conclusions were reached. He did not know whether Mr. Low again would be a candidate for the mayoralty of New York, but thought, if he were, he would be elected.

The Littauer-Lyon glove contract case and its possible bearing on New York politics, he said, was not mentioned. He was perfectly sure that the republicans would carry New York next year.

"There really was no news in the talk I had with the president," said the governor. "We talked of a good many things, but no decisions were reached of any public consequence."

It can be said, however, that the governor did not visit Oyster Bay to consider with the president the proposition that he be a third time candidate for governor, as has been reported.

Representative J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin, who also was at Oyster Bay today, talked with the president about the work of the extraordinary session of congress, especially with reference to financial legislation. No determination yet has been reached whether the session will be called to meet in October or in November. Before reaching a decision the president will talk or correspond with many members of both the senate and the house of representatives.

The governing committee of the stock exchange has shut down on horseplay by the brokers. All must behave themselves.

Announce Details of Organization of United Lead Co.

Details concerning the organization of the United Lead company were announced today. The company will have a capitalization of $27,000,000, of which $12,000,000 will be in bonds and the balance in common stock. Payment for the constituent companies will be made in large part in the bonds of the parent company.

The following include the subsidiary companies taken over by the United Lead company: Chadwick-Boston company of Boston, Merrell Lead company of St. Louis, American Shot and Lead company of Chicago, Raymond Lead company of Chicago, Gibson & Price company of Cleveland, McDougall company of Buffalo, Union Lead and Oil company of Brooklyn, Raymond & Blatchford company of Chicago, and the Hoyt Metal company of St. Louis.

It is understood that Barton Sewell, vice president of the American Smelting and Refining company will be made president.

Mrs. Clara Brockmen of Hoboken applied to Poormaster Barck today for assistance in finding her husband, George, who deserted her five months after their marriage, taking with him a $1,500 automobile which she received from him as a wedding present.

Hotchkiss Gun Threatens to Wreck Revenue Cutter.

With a big Hotchkiss gun plunging from side to side and threatening to tear off its plates with every lunge, there was quite a bit of excitement on the revenue cutter Gresham while it was on patrol duty for the yacht race. The gun weighed 1,800 pounds, and was in transport, not constituting part of the armament of the Gresham, but intended for one of the other ocean going revenue cutters. It had been dropped on the lower deck, and apparently nobody thought it worth while to lash it securely.

The Gresham, which was the flagship for the course patrol, was lying near the outer mark, where a heavy swell was running. At times it rolled so heavily that its rail almost went under water. It was amid this rolling persons on board heard the crashing down below and felt the tremors passing through the cutter as the gun struck its heavy iron sides.

With every roll of the cutter the big gun went crashing to port or starboard, following the listing of the boat and threatening with death anybody who got in its path. Many times the men risked their lives in trying to fasten a line to the gun. Finally they had the gun under control and tied so securely it could do no harm.

South Said to Be Solid for Grover Cleveland.

Sentiment in the south is said to be crystallising in favor of Grover Cleveland. If the democrats who are at Saratoga and who live in the south are to be believed, nearly every one of the solid democratic states below the old Mason and Dixon line will send a Cleveland delegation to the next national convention. Among those who are loud in their praises of the former president is State Senator J. D. Fisher of New Orleans, who said:

"Since the war between the states the democrats have succeeded in placing a man in the presidential chair only twice. The one man achieved both successes. It is natural that we feel confidence in his strength. The entire south is arousing itself to real enthusiasm for Cleveland. Louisiana is certain to send a Cleveland delegation to the next national convention."

Secretary Root, Wife, and Daughter Sail for Europe.

Secretary of War Elihu Root sailed for Liverpool today on the Celtic. He goes to England to act with Senator Lodge and former Senator Turner of Washington as the United States representatives of the Alaskan boundary dispute. Before sailing the secretary declared that he would, according to his present plans, get out of the cabinet about the middle of the winter. He denied that he was going to enter actively in politics in this state.

With the secretary went Mrs. Elihu Root and Miss Edith Root, while on the same steamer sailed Judge John M. Dickinson of Chicago, John W. Foster of Indiana, former secretary of state, and Hannis Taylor of Alabama, former minister to Spain, as counselors for the United States.

"I expect to be gone until November," said Secretary Root in answer to a question. "I go over as a member of the Alaskan boundary commission."

General Strike to Aid Machinists Is Threatened.

Representatives of the most important trades engaged in the shipyards about New York City conferred today with a committee of the Metal Trades association, endeavoring to obtain a settlement of the strike of the marine machinists. No agreement was reached, the employers, it is stated, refusing absolutely to grant the demands of the machinists for a minimum daily wage of $3.

A report will be made to the Central Federated union on Sunday, when the question of a general sympathetic strike to aid the machinists will be decided. At a conference between the machinists and the delegates of the allied trades on Wednesday it was decided to order such a strike if the demands of the machinists were not conceded by the Metal Trades association, the representative body of the big shipyard owners in this vicinity.

The machinists have been on strike for several months and the employers have resorted to injunction proceedings and suits for damages against union pickets.

Swim from the Battery to Coney Island.

Battling with eddies, tides, a high sea, and the turbulent wakes of passing steamers Edward Fuller and Phil Fay, life guards at Coney Island, swam from the Battery to Coney Island today, accomplishing a feat which has not been heretofore performed successfully. It is said to be thirteen miles distant and is probably fifteen miles. Both men collapsed when the race was over, but Fuller, being the first to arrive at Henderson's bathing pavilion, won a purse of $50, also a side bet of $25. His time was 5 hours and 20 minutes.

Moody Makes His First Visit to Navy Yard.

Secretary of the Navy Moody today made his first official visit to the New York navy yard. He arrived off the battery on the dispatch boat Dolphin and was taken to the yard on the naval tug Narkoota. The secretary was received at the yard with the honors due his rank, and after a tour of inspection he was the guest of the commandant, Rear Admiral Rodgers, at luncheon.

Negro Jumps from New Bridge Without Injury.

A negro named Cody successfully jumped from the structure of the new bridge being erected over the East river. It was a drop of 147 feet. He was picked up by a rowboat and recovered consciousness an hour later. His body was protected from injury by padding. Cody jumped from the Brooklyn bridge one year ago.

CLOSE CALL FOR JUDGE PARKER

Chief Justice of New York Causes Arrest of Chauffeur Driving Auto Carrying Mayor of Cincinnati.

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Alton B. Parker had a narrow escape from serious injury today when the horses attached to his carriage were frightened by an automobile in which Mayor Fleischmann of Cincinnati was riding. Judge Parker caused the arrest of the chauffeur.

The mayor and a party of friends were on their way to Mr. Fleischmann's summer home in the Catskills. The automobile sped past Judge Parker's carriage at an estimated speed of forty miles an hour. The team became frightened and only the combined efforts of Judge Parker and his companion, Judge Van Etten, and the coachman prevented their running away.

Meanwhile the automobile caused another team to run away, the horses plunging into the office windows of the Kingston Electric company.

Mayor Fleischmann was served with papers in an action of damages when he appeared at the courthouse. He settled all claims for $250, and secured the release of his chauffeur. He was accompanied by Henry Ackerman and Joseph Wilshir of Cincinnati and Charles J. Christy, his secretary.

MANY STRANDED IN BOSTON.

Teachers, Having Lost Their Return Tickets, Send Appeals to Relatives for Assistance.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Scores of teachers, who attended the National Educational association convention in July and staid on to visit the various summer resorts, are stranded in Boston, having lost their return certificates and spent all their money.

Many of them will be obliged to wait until September unless they get remittances, until the uncalmed tickets are reduced to a small number and their particular one unearthed. Two Chicago girls—Margaret Williams and Eleanor Lovely—were among those who lost their certificates.

But these had been found and sent to the agent, who was able finally to hand them their coupons. Their joy burst forth in rhyme, which the agent has kept as a souvenir. Others, not so fortunate, are writing home piteous appeals for assistance.

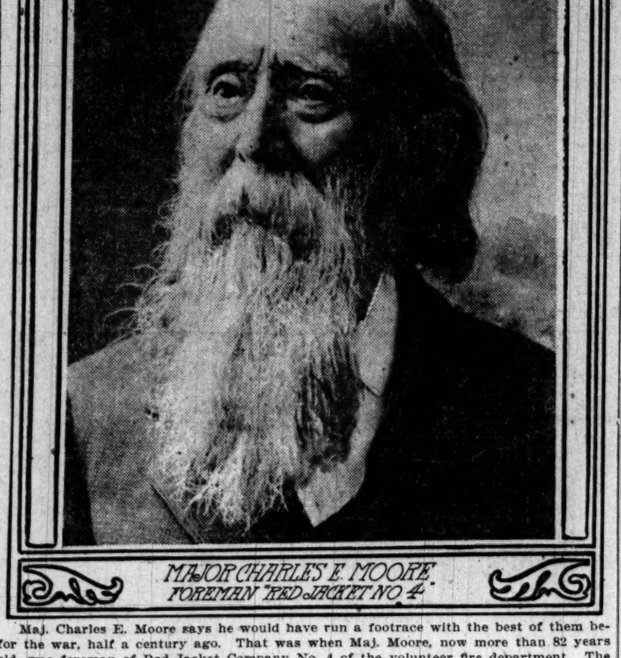

President Invites Butte Mayor.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has written to Mayor Mullens to deny the interview about the famous "bring on the feed" story, and he invites the mayor and his wife to Washington.

FOREMAN OF OLD RED JACKET FIRE COMPANY.

Maj. Charles E. Moore says he would have run a footrace with the best of them before the war, half a century ago. That was when Maj. Moore, now more than 82 years old, was foreman of Red Jacket Company No. 4 of the volunteer fire department. The company disbanded at the beginning of the war, most of its members enlisting in the Twenty-third Illinois regiment, of which Moore became major.

"No, no race for me now," the pioneer said yesterday. "In those days, however, I would run with any of them. Our engine was a hummer, let me tell you. I was sent away to Utica, N. Y., to buy it, and it was the finest ever brought to the city. Why, it outwashed the steam engines of the day. We tried it, and they could not keep up with us; many's the time we beat them."

The Red Jacket company had quarters back of the Long John engine house. Its famous engine was bought in 1854, and the few survivors of the company cannot forget the pride they felt in the new machine. Maj. Moore was born in Dublin, Ireland, and has lived in Chicago since 1848, making his home with a daughter at 230 Austin avenue. The centennial and the reunions of the "fire laddies" of decades ago have no more interested spectator.

COUNTRY GROWS EVENLY.

INCREASE IN POPULATION NEARLY SIMILAR IN ALL PARTS.

Census Bureau Finds Evidence That Percentage in All Sections Is About the Same — Probable Decline in Westward Immigration Is Noted—North and South Show About the Same Enlargement in Twenty Years—Only One Country Can Compare.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—According to a bulletin issued by the census bureau, discussing the increase in population of the United States as shown by the census of 1900, there is evidence of a rapid approach to equality in the rates of increase of various parts of the United States. This appears whether north be compared with south, east with west, or city with country.

The conclusion is drawn that the increased growth of the east and the decreased growth of the west may both be connected with a probable decline in the current of westward migration.

The rates of increase in the north and the south during the last twenty years were practically the same. But in the character of this growth the two regions differ widely, there being a relatively uniform growth over the whole south, equalized by a balance in the north between a lower rate of rural growth and a higher rate of urban growth.

Extensive but sparsely settled areas in the western parts of Kansas, Nebraska, and South Dakota show a decline of population in the last ten years, a fact which, it is said, may be connected with the increase of population in many agricultural counties of Iowa, Illinois, and adjoining states, 1890 to 1900, after losing population during the preceding ten years.

The increase in the population of continental United States, that is, the United States exclusive of Alaska and the recent insular accessions, was 13,046,861, or 20.7 per cent. Only one country, Argentina, has shown by the most recent figures a more rapid rate of growth. The present rate of growth in continental United States is estimated as double the average rate of Europe. It is nearly double that of Canada, and exceeds by one-sixth that of Mexico, and by one-tenth that of Australia.

GRAND ARMY PRAISES MILES.

National Encampment Commends Retired General as a Soldier Who Has Never Deserved Criticism.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 21.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, before its final adjournment this afternoon, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we congratulate that splendid soldier, exemplary commander, and patriotic citizen, Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, upon his attainment of a distinguished and honorable retirement after a matchless record as a soldier of over forty-two years' service, without just criticism of his official conduct, which began as a lieutenant in the Twenty-second Massachusetts infantry, progressing by the brightest grade of heroic patriotism from Manassas to Appomattox, during the greatest of all civil wars, from 1861 to 1865, and illuminating this record by his great military achievements as a successful Indian fighter and again as a great and judicial military disciplinarian and organizer."

Commander in Chief Black announced the following appointments:

Adjutant general—C. W. Partridge of Illinois.

Quartermaster—Maj. Charles Burrows of New Jersey, reappointed.

Judge advocate general—James Tanner of New York.

Inspector general—E. B. Wessen of Iowa.

It was resolved to telegraph to President Roosevelt the resolution favoring the pensioning of veterans of 62 years of age, which was adopted yesterday.

It was resolved to ask congress to erect a statue to the memory of Gen. Meade. The formal installation of officers then took place and the encampment adjourned.

DIES IN A BASEBALL GAME.

Foul Tip Hits Batter on the Right Temple and Causes His Death in a Few Hours.

Pawtuckett, R. I., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A base ball game on the Sabin street ground this afternoon was marked by a fatality. Allen Munro Newman of Bristol dying soon after the game of hemorrhage of the brain. The game was between the Pawtuckets and a picked nine from the Intercity league, Newman playing for the latter. In the first inning Newman went to bat. The pitcher sent in a hot ball. It proved a foul tip, as after hitting the bat it struck Newman heavily on the right temple. He continued to play, but soon afterward complained of pains in the head. He was finally relieved and went into the dressing room. There he was found unconscious after the game and died soon.

PARKS IS GUILTY OF EXTORTION.

Walking Delegate Convicted of Securing Money Under Threat of Strikes.

OTHER CASES TO COME.

Ten Years in Prison a Possible Penalty on One Charge; Prisoner Much Surprised.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Walking Delegate Samuel J. Parks of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, head and front of the blackmailing coterie that has used the power of the labor unions to extort money from employers, today was found guilty on one specific charge. A term of ten years in state's prison is a possible penalty on this count, and three other similar cases are pending against him.

This is understood to be the first conviction on record for an offense of the kind, and the verdict was a surprise to many of the prisoner's friends, who had expected him to go free.

Parks has had a remarkable record, rising from day laborer to a position of power in labor circles. Parks has the record of having called 5,000 strikes in the last seven years.

Only recently Parks was convicted of assault as the result of a controversy over labor questions, but sentence was delayed in order that the affair would not prejudice the finding in the extortion case.

Money Asked to Prevent Strikes.

The method of Parks, as proven in the evidence, was by using a threat of a strike to secure a cash payment from the employer of labor. When it was refused he would call out the men. It also was shown that strikes had been ended for a consideration paid to the walking delegate.

Parks was considered the king of the "grafters," who had built up fortunes through the willingness of the union men to follow their instructions. Even many labor leaders did not appreciate the walking delegate's power, and at first would not believe the charges.

The trial which resulted in today's verdict was held in Recorder Goff's Court of General Sessions. The charge was that of extorting $200 on Dec. 19, 1902, from Josephus Plenty of Jersey City. The verdict was announced in court at 11:20 o'clock tonight and the sentence was set for 11 o'clock on Monday morning.

The courtroom was filled with Parks' own friends, but his bondsman, Big Bill Devery, and Devery's assemblyman, Butler, who were in constant attendance, and Bernard Lynch, the saloonkeeper who got the Plenty check cashed, were not there. Parks' friends were stunned by the blow, as they were confident he would be acquitted.

The jury came into court at 11:15 o'clock. Parks was at once brought in, in charge of two turnkeys. He slouched with long strides up to the rail where the lawyers sat, leaned his elbows on it, and bent his tall, meager frame over it. Even when he heard Foreman John S. Kenane of the jury answer "guilty as charged," Parks showed no emotion.

"I demand the jury be polled," said Lawyer A. C. Eustace, sharply. The recorder directed it to be done and every juror answered yes to his name.

Refuses to Answer Questions.

Parks and his lawyer conferred for a minute or two and then when Clerk Penny started to take the prisoner's pedigree the courtroom was surprised to hear Eustace answer each question with: "Under the advice of counsel he refuses to answer."

When the clerk had finished the recorder asked if sentence should be pronounced at once.

"We will take the statutory forty-eight hours," said Eustace.

"I move the sentence be postponed for two weeks," said Assistant District Attorney Rand. "Three other indictments of extortion against Parks must be disposed of."

Eustace objected to the delay and Rand asked that Parks be remanded until Sept. 8.

"I shall not be sitting during the September term," said the recorder.

"Then I will move the postponement until the first court day in October," said Rand. "In view of the dilatory tactics of this man's lawyers it is not likely he can be brought to trial before that time."

Sentence Is Set for Monday.

The recorder then stopped further wrangling by the lawyers by announcing: "I will set the sentence for Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The district attorney may then bring forward any reasons for postponement."

Ten years is the maximum penalty for the crime for which Parks was convicted. Three ballots were taken by the jurors in all. The first was taken before dinner and stood seven in favor of conviction to five against. The second ballot was eight to four. The final ballot was taken after the return from dinner, preceded by a long discussion, and resulted in a unanimous vote for conviction.

Blames the Public Press.

Parks, when seen in the Tombs, said: "Well, you know what it is. I can thank the public press for this, all right. Yes, you know as well as I do what did it."

Assistant District Attorney Rand finished his forceful summing up for the prosecution at 5:15 o'clock. After the doors were locked the recorder began his charge, which lasted until 6:20. It was universally regarded by the lawyers in the courtroom as absolutely unbiased. The recorder instructed the jury that trades unionism was not on trial in the case, the only question being whether this particular defendant was guilty of the specific charge against him. "The economic relations of employer and employé have no bearing in this case," he said. "The right of workingmen of whatever calling to unite is settled in this state. They have the right to work or refuse to work for whomsoever they choose."

NUN ELOPES FROM CONVENT AND MARRIES ERRAND BOY.

Omaha Sister Thwarts Efforts to Keep Her from Wedding by Running Away with Youth She Loves.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Sister Mary Louise of St. Agnes convent of this city has eloped with Edward Johnson, a young man employed by the convent to do errands. They left the convent several days ago, and the sisters learned today that they had been married at Cedar Rapids, Ia., by a Catholic priest the day following their departure. The couple are now living in Clinton, Ia.

Johnson is 22 years old, and the nun-bride two years his junior. They became acquainted at O'Connor, Neb., a year and a half ago, where both then lived. Sister Mary's name before she became a nun was Shea.

The young nun was in the convent when the love affair started and the sisters sought to put a stop to the affair by sending her to Omaha. Johnson discovered her whereabouts, and following, soon obtained work at the convent.

WOMEN TAKE PART IN A RIOT.

Street Fight at McKeesport, Pa., Between Strikers and Nonunionists Over a Keg of Beer.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 21.—Women mixed with men engaged in a street riot here today. A number of strikers tried to take a keg of beer from some nonunion workmen. Shots were exchanged, but no one was wounded. Several workmen were badly beaten by the attack of the women. Two women who conducted a boarding house, where a number of the nonunionists are quartered, were chased several squares by the female strike sympathizers.

UNIONS AT WAR; CARPENTERS OUT.

Factional Fight with Laborers Delays Work on Two Big Buildings.

FEAR SPREAD OF STRIKE.

Brickmakers Open Struggle with the Purington Company at Galesburg.

Building and construction work in Chicago is threatened with a general tieup unless the carpenters and laborers settle a jurisdictional fight over "false" work. The dispute has already crippled the completion of the extension to Schlesinger & Mayer's store and the Iroquois theater, and may spread to other new buildings in a few days.

The jobs now affected are contracted to the George A. Fuller Construction company, which has given the false work, such as temporary arches and scaffolding, to the laborers. This caused a strike of the carpenters, who refuse to consider any settlement which does not give them the work.

Back of the fight against the carpenters is the Mason and Builders' association and the Associated Building Trades. The members of the association, who are all contractors, want the laborers to get the work, as their pay is only 30 cents an hour, while the carpenters are paid 50 cents. The unions affiliated with the associated trades are against the carpenters, because they refuse to join that body.

Strike Starts at Theater.

The Iroquois theater has an exceptionally large amount of false work, for wooden arches are used in building the doorways and in the auditorium. On this account the carpenters decided to center their fight on it, in the hope that the Fuller company would make concessions to avoid delay.

When it became necessary to build the temporary wooden arch for the Randolph street entrance the carpenters were given the work, but the laborers induced them to stop and took their places. When the firm refused to reinstate them a strike was ordered and fifty carpenters walked out. The men on the Schlesinger & Mayer building followed.

The laborers intend to strike at every building in which the carpenters get the work, and the carpenters have made similar plans. Contractors and builders are helpless.

According to the union officials, the First National bank, the federal building, the new Western Electric, and possibly Warehouse No. 5 of the McCormick Division of the International Harvester company will be affected before the close of next week. These contracts involve over $2,600,000.

"It is not a question of the contractors with us," said Business Agent Timmons, "for they would willingly give us the work. We are fighting to keep the carpenters from entering a branch of building that does not concern them. We have had the false work for years. The mason contractors pay for it and they hire us."

Plan Fight on Brick Firm.

A combination has been formed between the brickmakers and the brick teamsters' unions to force the Purington Brick company to unionize its plants at Galesburg, Ill. The unions acknowledge that the firm pays the scale of wages and grants the schedule of hours, but they want it to sign an agreement and hire only union men.

President Charles Hank of the brickmakers' union has tried three times to get the employés of the firm into his organization and has failed each time. Now he is about to force the fight by trying to keep the firm out of the Chicago market, and to do this formed the combination with the teamsters.

The Purington company holds the brick contract for paving the tracks of the Calumet Electric railway between One Hundred and Third and One Hundred and Fifteenth streets in Michigan avenue. The teamsters will refuse to haul the brick and the brickmakers intend to go into court to prevent the company from using the electric cars to transport the material.

President Hank left for Galesburg last night to make one final attempt to unionize the plant and if he fails he will order the fight. D. V. Purington, president of the company, denies that it has discriminated against members of the union and declares the fight is unjust.

"Our men are paid higher wages than the union demands and only ask to be let alone," said Mr. Purington. "I am under the impression this trouble is caused by our rivals in business, but if we are kept out of Chicago the city will be unable to get the proper kind of brick, for the other firms cannot put out material that will stand the paving tests."

Telegraphers Ask More Pay.

The Order of Railway Telegraphers has filed demands on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad for a 20 per cent increase in wages. The movement is a part of the general campaign of the railroad employés for more pay, and is in charge of H. R. Perham, president of the telegraphers' union.

SEEK TO COMBINE TWO UNIONS.

Carpenters About to Begin a Series of Conferences at the Sherman House.

Plans are being formulated for a series of conferences in the Sherman house to bring into one organization the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters. If the two are united the new association will control nearly 190,000 men.

The Brotherhood is the American union which was started in Chicago in 1881. The Amalgamated society is the English organization and most of its members are men born abroad. These two unions have been waging a bitter fight, and in some sections of the country, especially about New York, have demoralized the trade.

At its convention in New Orleans the American Federation of Labor ordered the two organizations to form a scheme of amalgamation. Adolph Strasser, former president of the cigar makers' union, was agreed on as umpire. He will preside at the Sherman house meetings. The other men present will be:

For the United Brotherhood—President, W. D. Huber, Yonkers, N. Y.; W. B. McFarland, Buffalo, N. Y.; E. G. Johnson, Cleveland; A. M. Swarts, Pittsburg; W. Byrnes, New York.

For the Amalgamated society—General secretary, Thomas Atkinson, New York City; William Fyfe, New York City; John Coleman, Buffalo; H. D. Thomas, Cleveland.

Preliminary meetings were held yesterday, but practically nothing was accomplished. The amalgamated society probably will ask instead of forming one organization the two have a working agreement. This is to be denied them. The brotherhood has over 180,000 members and the Amalgamated society but 6,000.

The employés of the Lydon & Drews company who are dredging at the foot of Thirty-ninth street and near the Washington street tunnel struck in the afternoon because they were not given an eight hour day.

PLACES FOR MORE IDLE MEN.

Nonunion Mills of the American Sheet Steel Company May Be Opened to Union Labor.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A meeting of the advisory board of the Amalgamated association will be held for the purpose of declaring the nonunion mills of the American Steel company open mills to enable the idle sheet workers to secure employment in them. With few exceptions the nonunion mills of the sheet company are in operation at the present time. Of the 164 mills of the company ninety-eight are operated as nonunion.

TO TEACH IN LOWLY HOME

UNIQUE TRIP FOR MRS. SCOTT DURAND AND W. G. EWING.

Christian Science Lecturer Will Preach at House of a Washerwoman in Centerville, Ia., Whose Brave Struggles and Faith Have Won Her Wealthy Friends—Lake Forest Resident Anxious to Adopt Two Poor Children—Mother's Love Interferes.

In the humble house of an Iowa washerwoman, Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Forest and former Judge W. G. Ewing, a lecturer at large for the Christian Science church, will expound the faith of the scientists to the friends and neighbors of their host.

Mr. Ewing and Mrs. Durand will leave for Centerville, Ia., early next week to visit the washerwoman convert who, they declare, has lifted herself above her surroundings through the aid of her faith and is now a Christian Science practitioner in her community. The visit is made in return for one the Centerville scientist made to Mrs. Durand's Lake Forest home last summer.

Mrs. Durand is looking forward to the visit not because it will be a unique experience to be the guest in the home of a washerwoman, but because she has a deep friendship for the Iowa scientist, who, she declares, is a "noble woman who has had to struggle with adversity and by her unswerving faith has come out victor."

Story of Woman's Struggle.

"This brave woman has been a great help to me," said Mrs. Durand yesterday. "Her successful struggle with poverty and the growing strength of her faith in the darkest hours of her experience teach us an eloquent lesson in faith. When I first knew her she was taking class instruction, as I was, and I found her the best kind of a friend. Soon after that she was left a widow with seven small children, one an infant. There was a heavy mortgage on her house. She had to feed and clothe her children and pay off the mortgage. There was nothing else for her to do, so she took in washing. That was five years ago. The mortgage has been paid off now, and the seven children are happy as children can be."

This is not the only case in which Mrs. Durand has reached out a helping hand to those in need. On Saturday the Lake Forest cottagers and the Onwentsia club members awoke to find two children playing on the lawn. One was a little golden-haired, blue-eyed girl of 2. A dark-eyed, 4 year old brother held her hand tightly and told the curious that they had come to be Mrs. Durand's children. On Monday the Durands returned from Lake Geneva and everybody told Mrs. Durand they were beautiful children, and that they had completely fallen in love with the "little elves." "But," they asked, incredulously, "you are not going to adopt them?"

Wants to Adopt Poor Children.

"O, yes, I am," responded Mrs. Durand, "and aren't they dears?" And then she told the history of Tom and Katherine, the children.

"Their mother," she told her hearers, "was married when she was only 18 to a boy of 20 of a splendid family of as good blood as can be found anywhere. Four children were born to them and they had a hard time making ends meet, as the husband received only a small salary. Less than a year ago he contracted typhoid fever and died, leaving his widow almost penniless. Since that time the children have been cared for in the homes of different friends. There is a girl of 5, Tom and Katherine, and a baby.

"A friend of mine who knew I wanted to adopt some children told me of them and they have come out here to visit me for awhile so that we can get acquainted. I would really like to adopt the whole family."

But the next day the mother called and told Mrs. Durand that she could not quite make up her mind to part with the children and would like to have them for awhile until she could give the subject maturer thought. So the children came back to Chicago with their mother and there was grief in the Lake Forest summer colony.

"I do hope," said Mrs. Durand yesterday, "that the mother will decide it is best to let me adopt the children, for I would like to so much."

SEEKING TO ESCAPE PARENTS.

Dorothy Johns, Cause of Several Actions in Court, Refuses to See Father During Hearing.

Dorothy Johns, the 6 year old girl who has caused several actions in the Evanston courts, showed yesterday that she preferred her foster parents to her own father and mother.

Judge Kersten was hearing habeas corpus proceedings brought by William E. Johns and ordered the girl to talk to her father.

"Don't you want to see your papa?" asked Attorney W. G. Anderson.

"No, I don't," the little girl said with decision.

Hill reached out to her and took her hand.

"Let go of the girl," ordered Assistant State's Attorney Barnett. "She is to talk with her parents by order of court."

"I'll keep hold of her if I wish," Hill replied, and a moment later trouble seemed imminent, but the child stood out between them.

The hearing was continued to Sept. 9.

Dorothy was given into the care of Thomas Hill of Evanston two years ago, and this arrangement was satisfactory until the two remaining children of Johns died, when the latter sought to regain possession of the little girl. It is said the habeas corpus case was preceded by two fights for the child.

SITE OF PROPOSED MARQUETTE MEMORIAL AT HIGHLAND PARK.

North shore residents are interested in a movement to erect a memorial at Highland Park to Father Marquette, who, tradition says, erected a huge cross, close to which the Church of St. Mary's in the Woods was built and stood until recent years. The movement to mark the spot is being furthered by Marquette Council of the Knights of Columbus of Chicago. A committee visited the spot this week and its investigation is said to have resulted in plans for the memorial. The picture shows the old log church and the place where the cross was placed by the Indians under the direction of the Jesuit missionary following his return from Green Bay over the old Green Bay road. This cross stood in the woods for many years, but with the coming of settlers the church was built about 1844. The church was about twenty feet west of the spot on which the cross stood, and until a few years before the destruction of the church by time, the huge wooden cross remained just as Marquette is said to have raised it. The church was often referred to as La Salle's church and was considered the oldest church in Illinois. The X in the picture shows where the old cross stood.

ROBBERS BIND TOWERMAN: THEN BREAK INTO CARS.

Operator Ehlers at Grand Trunk and Terminal Switching Plant at Blue Island Lies Gagged Half an Hour.

Two masked men entered the tower of the Grand Trunk and the Chicago Terminal Transfer railroads at South Blue Island late Thursday night, bound and gagged the operator, William Ehlers, and then invaded the railroad yards, intimating that they expected to find rich plunder in certain box cars. Several cars of the Grand Trunk railroad were broken open, but it is said nothing of value was taken.

The tower operator lay bound and gagged nearly half an hour. In that time the interlocking switching system was at a standstill and trains were blockaded.

Ehlers was released finally by a Chicago Junction train crew. After waiting a half hour the conductor of the train failed to receive the signal to proceed. He decided to investigate, and went to the signal tower. He severed the bonds which held the operator and then communicated with the Blue Island police. Seven suspects were arrested in a few hours, but one by one all were given their freedom.

It was at first believed that the overpowering of the tower man was the first move in a plot to hold up a passenger train.

Ehlers was standing at the levers when he heard footsteps. The lever room is kept darkened so the operator can better see the signal lights. Because of this fact Ehlers supposed the men entering to be trainmen until one of them seized him by the arm. He was soon bound and gagged. Before leaving the tower the highwaymen searched him, but found nothing of value. They asked for his pay envelope, knowing that Wednesday was his pay day. Ehlers had left his money in his wife's keeping, however.

SLAIN AT WATERMELON FEAST.

Turner Lamb Killed During a Quarrel with Oscar Johnson at Peoria and Lake Streets.

Turner Lamb, 140 Pacific avenue, was shot and killed early yesterday morning in a quarrel with Oscar Johnson at a watermelon feast in a hall at Peoria and Lake streets. According to the police, Lamb attacked Johnson with a knife. Johnson drew a revolver and shot Lamb. Lamb was taken to the county hospital, but died on the way. Johnson was found in the afternoon hiding under the sidewalk in Custom House place. Both men are colored.

LAW DEALS WITH "MASHERS."

Visitor from Mississippi Is Fined $50 and Another Man Is Held to the Criminal Court.

It was a bad day for "mashers." In Justice Caverly's court Richard Green, who says he is a wholesale merchant of Jackson, Miss., was fined $50 and costs for annoying a young woman on the street Thursday night, and in Justice Mayer's court Theodore Blaue was held to the Criminal court for annoying girls in Lincoln park. The only excuse that Green could make was that he did not know Chicago was "so strict."

CHICAGO LAWYER WHO MAY BE DROWNED.

YOUTH TELLS OF MURDER.

JOSEPH KOESTNER CONFESSES TO SHOOTING A DETECTIVE.

Breaks Down After Long Examination and Says He Was Incited to Crime by Tony Holland—Admits Entering Car, Struggling with Matthew McGrath, and Firing in the Dark—Flees from City, but Asserts He Intended to Give Himself Up on His Return.

After maintaining his innocence for hours, Joseph Koestner broke down last night and confessed to his connection with the murder of Detective Matthew McGrath of the Illinois Central railroad on the night of Aug. 8. In the presence of Inspector Lavin he told of firing at the special policeman during the struggle in an unlighted railroad car, and described his wanderings since the crime.

The 19 year old prisoner and former inmate of the Pontiac reformatory expressed no remorse for his crime and said he was not sorry he had been captured, for he intended to give himself up "when he got ready."

Koestner will be charged with murder today, and as the result of the confession Gustave Burry, 2510 South Park avenue, will be accused as an accessory to the murder after the fact. Tony Holland incited him to the crime, Koestner claimed. After hours of questioning by Lieut. Walsh in the Cottage Grove avenue station, the youth said:

"Bring Inspector Lavin and the rest around. I am ready to tell all I know about it."

Says Holland Urged Him.

"Well, to begin with," said Koestner, "my name is Charles Joseph Koestner; I am 19 years old and live at 2512 South Park avenue. On the night of Aug. 8 at 11 o'clock I was at 'Red' Burry's house. We drank considerable beer there. Finally Tony Holland made the hint at a proposition which has caused all this trouble. Tony told me about making a piece of money.

"He said: 'We will go and get some money anyway we can.' I said, 'No, I don't want to go.' He kept on and I said, 'No. I tell you I don't want any money.' He said, 'Now, see here, Joe, don't be foolish. We have done work together before and everything was all O. K.' Finally I gave in and went.

"We went down to the lake and then went out on the pier. Before tackling any cars we went to Sixteenth street. The first car wouldn't open with Tony's key. The second car opened and Tony and I went in. It was dark. Gee, but it was dark. Tony locked the door after us. I didn' like that move very well, because it was dark.

Fires at Detective McGrath.

"We hadn't done much ransacking when I found some one was on to me. I struggled with the man and we had a fight. The fellow put up a great fight. I understood he was determined to get me. We fought in the darkness long enough, and so I had to do something and do it quick. The thing I did was to pull and shoot. I fired either one or two shots. Tony helped me and I got out the end of the car.

"We went right back to 'Red's' and told him we wanted two hats. I spent the rest of the morning chasing here and there, and finally I got to Dolton, Ill. Then I went to Hoopeston, Ill., where I read in the papers they wanted me for the McGrath job. I was at Hoopeston a week, and then I came back to Chicago. I came with the intention of giving myself up, but wanted to take my time about doing it. I knew that once I was locked up it would be all day with me."

Koestner signed the statement. He had been confronted by Burry earlier in the day, but gave no indication of weakening then.

DENIES WARRANT TO CANTWELL

Judge Mack Tells Attorney He Has No Time to Take Up Racetrack Crusade.

A movement against the bookmakers at Hawthorne was attempted yesterday by Attorney Robert E. Cantwell. He appeared before Judge Mack with a petition asking that bench warrants be issued for a number of the track officials and bookmakers. The petition recited alleged misdemeanors of the officials and bookmakers.

"I have not the time at present to pass on this matter," said Judge Mack, who was sitting in the Juvenile court. "This is not emergency business and I have all that I can take care of just now."

If Judge Mack issued the warrants he would be called on to sit as examining magistrate. Mr. Cantwell may apply to Judge McEwen today.

For damages said to have been caused by libelous statements made by John Condon, owner of the Harlem racetrack, Christian Lange, the deposed chief of police of Harlem, yesterday filed a suit for $25,000 damages. Cantwell represents Lange in the case.

SORRY HE AIDED A FILIPINO.

Calvin Brazand Misses Boy He Befriended, Also Eight Dollars and a Suit Case Full of Things.

After befriending a Filipino boy named Mugil Santus, Calvin Brazand, a West Indian, who sells papers at Jefferson avenue and Fifty-third street, returned to his little store at that corner yesterday and discovered that the boy had left and at the same time $8 in money and a suit case filled with furnishings had disappeared.

It is believed by Brazand that the boy's love for the soldiers of the Twentieth infantry, with whom he came to this country, will lead him to make his way to Fort Sheridan.

Brazand says that the boy, who is 17 years old, is unaccustomed to Chicago ways, and because of his ignorance he has been in trouble several times.

MIDNIGHT VISITOR ALARMS RESIDENTS OF NORTH SIDE.

Causes Much Trouble in Astor and Banks Streets by Many Depredations, but Eludes Arrest.

Dwellers in Astor and Banks streets as well as the police are anxious to catch the man or men who have caused much trouble and some alarm in the neighborhood during the last three weeks. The disturber works only after midnight, and although patrolmen have been detailed to catch him, he has escaped thus far.

The disturbances included ringing door bells regularly every hour, the overturning of porch chairs, and strange noises. The greatest sufferers have been Mrs. Edna Shank and Miss Marie Manning, who are occupying the residence of Charles H. Hodges at 82 Astor street. They say they will be forced to move unless the disturber is caught. Other victims are:

Dr. E. J. Gardiner, 85 Astor street; area door found open.

E. W. Silden, 96 Astor street; porch chairs tipped over and thrown off porch.

Mrs. Edward F. Lawrence, 57 Lake Shore drive; negro porter heard men on the grounds; alarm sent in and two patrol wagons sent, but none found.

P. F. Newman, 596 Dearborn avenue; man heard at rear door; police summoned but could find no trace of intruder.

Mrs. Shank last night told the police that Thursday night the door bell was rung regularly every hour from midnight till dawn. She said she heard the watchmen and the policemen each time they made their rounds, and about five minutes later the bell would ring.

Three watchmen are guarding the block—B. Johnson, Andrew Harsok, and George McGreevy. Harsok is employed by Mr. Hodges, but says that he has seen nothing unusual. The other watchmen and the policeman on the beat tell the same story.

LAWN PARTY FOR CHURCH FUND.

Mrs. T. E. Barrett to Give One This Afternoon and Evening at Residence in Ravenswood.

One of the largest garden parties ever given in Ravenswood will attract people to the residence of Mrs. Thomas E. Barrett, Wilson avenue and Paulina street, this afternoon and evening. The fête is given to increase the fund for the completion of the parochial school of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, of which the Rev. F. N. Perry is pastor. There will be music in the afternoon and dancing in the evening. One hundred young women will assist at the booths and refreshment tables.

FOUR SAVED FROM FLAMES

YOUNG WOMEN AND AGED MAN NEAR DEATH AT FIRE.

Rescued Just as They Are About to Jump from Third Story Window — Neighbor Discovers Danger and Hands Ladder from Ground to Another Man in House Across Alley — Latter Reaches It to Sill Opposite and People Walk Across the Bridge.

Quick wit saved four lives last night. Three young women and an aged man, about to jump from the windows of their smoke filled rooms after flames had cut off the stairways, reached safety over a fifteen foot ladder extending across an alley to the third story of a building opposite the burning structure.

The persons endangered were Lottie Matthei, Lona Matthei, William Matthei, their father; and Mary Kane, their guest.

The fire started when they were in living rooms on the third floor of Mandel Bros.' stables, 4812 Cottage Grove avenue. Before they were aware of their danger the flames and smoke had made exit by the stairways impossible. The fire was so threatening that the first firemen who arrived turned in a second alarm. They came just as the last of the four was aided to safety.

Ladder Is Passed Up.

Frank E. Backus, proprietor of a paint shop on the first floor of the adjoining building, was the first to see the danger of the people in the brick structure. Driven back from the stairway the young women sought a window overlooking the alley. They were almost hidden in smoke when their cries were heard.

Mr. Backus seized a ladder fifteen feet long. He did not have time to carry it up the stairway, so he lifted it to his wife who was leaning out of a bay window in their rooms over the paint store. John Murdock in his flat above drew up the ladder as it was passed to him by the woman below. He extended it from the third story window until it touched the window opposite and was seized by the frightened girls.

The young women were about choked with smoke, and Lottie Matthei was struggling with her companions in an effort to jump to the ground. The condition of her father was serious, as he had been overcome while seeking an exit and had reached the window by crawling on hands and knees.

All Four Reach Safety.

When the ladder was rested on the sill of the window the crowd cheered wildly. Miss Kane was the first to cross. She fainted when dragged into the flat building. Lottie Matthei was the next to reach safety, and her sister followed, with their father in the rear.

When Mr. Murdock heard the screams of the girl he sent his wife for her ironing board, but this proved too short to bridge the space. In order to steady the ladder he extended his body out of the window, so that the persons rescued crawled over his back before stepping to the floor of his apartments.

The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by crossed wires in the hayloft, caused a loss of $5,000. Sixty horses and thirty vehicles were in the building, but all were saved by men employed in the place.

WOMAN IS A HUMAN TORCH: FINDS THE DEATH SHE SEEKS.

Mrs. Mabel Lathey Pours Kerosene on Herself and Then Ignites Her Clothing—Had Quarreled with Husband.

Holding a can of kerosene above her head, Mrs. Mabel Lathey, 24 years old, 2009 Wabash avenue, allowed the oil to trickle down over her head, shoulders, and clothing. Not until the can was empty did she put it aside, and then she struck a match and applied it to her garments.

It was yesterday morning that the woman sought a horrible fate, and it was not until 3 o'clock in the afternoon that death came to her relief. She suffered for hours in St. Luke's hospital, and it was there that she expired. She was burned from head to foot.

It was the second time within as many weeks that Mrs. Lathey had sought death. Her previous attempt at suicide was made with carbolic acid, but the bottle was snatched from her hand before she could do herself harm.

As on the previous occasion, Mrs. Lathey had quarreled with her husband, John, a boilermaker employed by the Illinois Central company. It was shortly after he had left their apartments that she saturated herself with the oil and then set herself on fire.

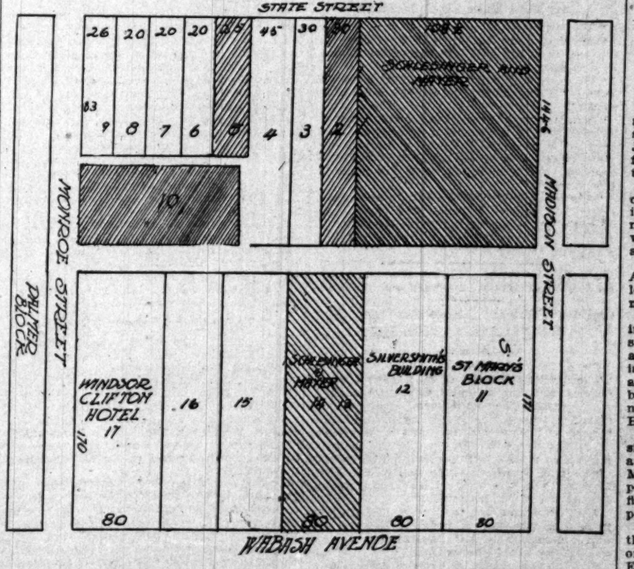

Neighbors were attracted by the burning woman's screams, but before they could smother the flames she was past relief.

Chided because unable to find a position, Derthlis Goddout, 23 years old, drank carbolic acid early this morning. He died while the police were taking him to the county hospital. Goddout had lived with his parents at 351 West Polk street. This note was in his pocket:

"I do not want to leave the city, so I will kill myself right here. D. GODDOUT."

ADD TO HOLDINGS NEAR BIG STORE.

Schlesinger & Mayer Lease Columbus Club Property of Katherine Adams.

STEP TO CONTROL BLOCK.

Apparently Aiming at Getting the Entire West Frontage to Monroe Street.

Another step looking to the acquirement of the entire State street west frontage of the block between Madison and Monroe streets by Schlesinger & Mayer has been taken by that firm in leasing for ninety-nine years the old Columbus club property at 45-49 Monroe street. Katherine S. Adams is the owner of the property.

For the six story building which covers the entire ground with a frontage of 49 2-3 feet and a depth of 107 feet the firm pays $50,000, while the annual ground rent is $12,000. Capitalized on a 4 per cent basis this establishes a value of $300,000, which is at the rate of $6,000 a front foot and $56.74 a square foot.

Large Profit in the Deal.

Miss Adams takes a handsome profit out of the transaction, as she purchased the property in February, 1902, from Z. P. Brosseau, D. F. Bremner, and W. A. Amberg for $275,000, the investment netting her $75,000 in eighteen months. The building is now under a lease to De Jonghe, having three years to run, the present rent being $17,500.

The significance of the acquirement of this property lies in the fact that, together with the Kraus property at 155 State street, leased by Schlesinger & Mayer last week, the firm controls the remainder of the block south from the Schlesinger & Mayer store to Monroe street in the way of preventing any effective combination of the other property interests.

Effort to Buy Young's Holding.

Another interesting thing in connection with this transaction is the fact that when it was taken up negotiations were also begun with Otto Young for the acquirement of his 105 feet extending from 145 to 153. The Columbian club property adjoins Mr. Youngs' property at the rear, a ten foot private alley only intervening, and the firm figured that by acquiring the two it would secure a Monroe street entrance as well as additional State street frontage, and would be in a strong position for acquiring the remainder of the State street frontage.

After considerable negotiation an annual ground rent of $75,000 was agreed for the Young property, which established a value of $1,875,000, or $125 a square foot. This looked like an exceedingly favorable deal for Mr. Young, as he is holding most of the property under long term leases at a valuation of from $69.20 to $62.35 a square foot. It happened, however, that insurmountable differences arose over the building to be erected, and the deal fell through. The Columbus club deal was, however, carried through, the firm believing it to be invaluable in connection with further probable operations in that block.

Establishes Low Valuation.

Even as an investment the deal is regarded, as a decidedly favorable one, as the property is highly essential to the proper development of adjacent State street holdings, which are only 83 feet deep. The value established by the lease seems low when it is said that Eugene S. Pike asks for the property immediately west, the northeast corner of Monroe and State streets, 46x83 feet, an annual ground rent of $45,000, or 4 per cent on $1,125,000, or a trifle less than $300 a square foot.

Oliver & Scott, who sold the property to Miss Adams, represented Schlesinger & Mayer, while Cooper & Burhans represented Miss Adams.

The building was originally erected for the occupancy of the Chicago club, and subsequently passed into the possession of the Columbus club, which disposed of it to Brosseau, Bremner & Amberg. It is 93 feet east of State street, 181 feet west of Wabash avenue. It is surrounded by alleys on three sides.

In addition to this property, Schlesinger & Mayer control 283 feet on State street and 80 feet on Wabash avenue.

Loan on Downtown Corner.

An important loan has just been closed by the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company on central business property. It amounts to $225,000, runs ten years, and bears 4½ per cent interest. It is to Rivers McNeill and others and covers the property at the southeast corner of Jackson boulevard and Market street, with new ten story building. The ground fronts 178 feet on the boulevard and 100 feet on Market street.

William Crede has sold to P. J. Kraus the property in Edgecomb place, 352 feet east of Sheridan road, with 50x131 feet of ground, for $23,000, with incumbrance of $12,000.

MONEY TAKES WINGS WHILE A LIQUOR DEALER SLEEPS.

Morris Abrahams Loses $1,000, and His Bartender, Julius Heppner, Is Accused of the Theft.

While Morris Abrahams was asleep in a room over his saloon at 395 South Canal street yesterday afternoon his bartender, Julius Heppner, is said to have taken $1,000 from the cash drawer and to have escaped through a side window.

Earlier in the day Abrahams had borrowed considerable money for the purpose of cashing pay checks today. He placed it in the money drawer, locked the drawer, and then went to the rooms above the saloon to take a nap.

The loss of the money practically ruins Abrahams, as the portion of it which belonged to him represented the savings of many years.

Taken on Theft Charge.—While boarding a train bound for St. Louis at the Union station yesterday afternoon, two men who are charged with robbing the house of William Schau, 1285 Ridgeway avenue, of valuables to the amount of $500, were arrested by city detectives. The prisoners gave the names of Arthur Sutherland and Alfred Bauman.

Robberies on North Side.—While north side residents are out of the city, burglars and lead pipe thieves are reaping a harvest. Many complaints of thefts have reached the police, and yesterday Victor Anderson was fined $25 for suspicious conduct in Bellevue place.

Burglary in Evanston.—Silverware to the value of $100 was stolen from the home of F. F. Peabody, 214 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston, Wednesday night. The burglar entered the house through a parlor window.

CHILDREN HAVE A WILD RIDE.

Pony Driven by Two Evanston Girls Runs Away, but Is Stopped by Two Men.

"Stop that pony and save my children."

Attracted by this cry from a woman running down Grove street toward Sherman avenue in Evanston two men who were waiting for a car stopped the runaway pony. A crowd gathered around the pony cart and the two children who had taken a wild ride were lifted out. One of them had sustained a slight scratch behind the ear, but otherwise they were uninjured.

Some boys said the pony came from Hinman avenue and that one of the children had fallen against the edge of the seat as the turn was made into Church street, and was saved from falling by her sister clinging to her dress. The names of the two children could not be learned.

LAKE VIEW MEN MAKE TAX PLEA.

Three Hundred Appear Before Reviewers to Demand Reduction in Assessments.

LOWER RATE EXPECTED.

Petitioners Say Land Is for Sale at Less Than the Board's Valuations.

Lake View property owners, 300 strong and headed by John J. Healy, stormed the board of review yesterday afternoon to demand a reduction of tax assessments levied in their section of the city. Reviewers Meacham, Upham, and West listened to arguments for two hours and adjourned until Monday, having agreed to consider the appeal. A reduction is expected, but it probably will not be so large as the petitioners desire.

President Meacham offered to hear from each section of Lake View, and Mr. Healy asked twenty to show cause for their demands. It was evident the property owners did not know the exact situation. With hardly an exception the speakers took their figures from the first returns of the assessors, which were changed materially before being sent to the reviewers.

Show Complaint Is Groundless.

"What do you think would be a fair assessment against this land?" asked Mr. Meacham, referring to a piece of property in Paulina street, Ravenswood, where Ernst Heim had asked a reduction.

"Not more than $80 a front foot," was the answer.

"That is the figure set upon it by the assessors," said Mr. Meacham. This was one of a dozen cases.

The speakers generally declared that Lake View property has decreased in value during the last ten years. It was explained that ten years ago there was a boom in that vicinity, when new lines of transportation promised a large demand for residence property. After the first rush the demand has fallen away.

Among the instances in which it was claimed the assessors had erred in their judgment of land values was that of H. E. Osborn, who spoke of property owned by Mrs. Lucy A. Waller in Buena Park.

"Mrs. Waller has thirty lots in one tract in Buena Park. They have been assessed at $478,000," said Mr. Osborn. "Repeated offers have been made to sell this property for $300,000. Eight lots on Sheridan road, near Montrose boulevard, have been assessed at $38,869, which is 25 per cent too much."

Sale Price Shows Errors.

R. J. Bennett, 2449 North Paulina street, offered to sell for $7,200 two lots which had been assessed at $9,600. E. W. Zander said the property at Evanston and Waveland avenues, assessed at $20,000, could be bought for $12,000. The residence in Arlington place, between Hamilton and North Clark streets, once occupied by the late John P. Altgeld, was assessed at $8,400, and was said to have been sold within a few weeks for $6,000.

Others who spoke were E. S. Rowley, E. A. Sherburne, D. N. Goodwillie, R. Richardson, C. Affeld, August Peters, Commissioner Joseph Flanagan, C. H. Adams, J. G. Elsdon, C. H. Wilson, J. B. Cleveland, William Quinlan, and M. J. Flaherty.

Want Last Year's Values.

The Lake View property was assessed last year at $13,000,000. This was raised by the reviewers to approximately $16,000,000. When the assessors canvassed the district this year it was agreed that $21,000,000 would be the proper amount. Now the owners would be satisfied with the assessment of last year.

Homer Galpin, chief clerk of the board, says the property of the Union Stock Yard and Transit company always has been assessed, and he asserts that the petition of J. C. Christman of Evanston is not understood. Christman asked that a mandamus be issued requiring that the property values be placed on the books. The assessment is less than $1,000,000, and it is supposed Christman's demand is for taxes unpaid in the last ten years.

"The property named in the bill has always been assessed," said Mr. Galpin. "It is placed in class A of railroad property, which means the right of way. The company frequently moves its tracks. No buildings have ever occupied the ground, and it has never been used for any other purpose than a way for the tracks. Mr. Christman filed a complaint with the board a week ago, and it will be considered when the subject of railroads is taken up."

TUNNEL STOPS RIVER TRADE.

Barges Ground at Washington Street, with Bridge Open, and Check Traffic for Hours.

Grain barges grounded on the Washington street tunnel blocked traffic in the Chicago river from 4 p. m. yesterday until early this morning. The swing bridge across the river was opened, and with a boat on either side of it could not be moved.

The barge Majestic of Detroit was the first to be grounded on the tunnel. Hawsers were attached to it, but three tugboats could not move the boat.

Another grain barge, the Cuba, became grounded at 9 o'clock last night in attempting to pass down the river on the east side of the bridge.

The boats were drawn together early this morning so as to check the flow of the water. In an hour the water had risen sufficiently to float the boats, and the bridge was swung back to its accustomed place.

SMOKE BOARD HAS A HEARING.

...rders Druecker Cold Storage Company to Make Changes and Threatens Miehle Corporation.

The manager and engineer of the Druecker Cold Storage company, at 109 North Canal street, were summoned before the board of boiler inspection yesterday and ordered to have the steam plant remodeled to prevent violations of the smoke ordinance. They promised to do this. The Miehle Printing Press company, Fulton and Clinton streets, failed to appear. The manager was warned that if he did not come on Monday suit would be begun at once. Inspector Schubert complained that the board is hampered by the ordinance, as it is necessary that the defendant receive three notices within the ten days preceding the day on which suit is brought. This means that the chimneys must be watched daily until evidence is secured.

LIGHT DIVIDES THE HEAVENS.

Strange Phenomenon Causes Apprehension in Several Towns in Michigan.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Some apprehension has been caused here and at other towns in this section this evening by the appearance in the sky of a broad band of light that appeared to directly divide the heavens. It was of unusual brilliancy while at its zenith, and faded as shortly as it had appeared. Its like has never been seen in this region before, and, while the weather observer is of the opinion the phenomenon was due to an aurora borealis, this explanation does not find general credence among the more apprehensive. At Ishpeming the streak of light created much excitement.

OBITUARY.

JOHN Q. THOMPSON, editor of the Washington D. C., Chronicle, a weekly publication, died in Washington yesterday, aged 64 years. He was a native of Indiana. A generation ago he was well known as a political writer and traveling correspondent, having at various times written for Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, and other papers.

HOWLS LIKE A WOLF; SOUNDS LIKE A GHOST.

JAMES E. PATERSON

People living in the neighborhood of North Normal parkway do not know the difference between a wolf's howl and the shriek of a banshee. James E. Paterson, 411 West Sixty-seventh street, is the boy whose imitations of the wolf have curdled the blood of the neighbors. On three successive nights—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday—as James, who is a disciple of Ernest Thompson-Seton, went to his room, he illustrated to all within a radius of half a mile what the wolf would do when he sought his lair. But the city bred folk connected the sounds with something supernatural, and a number of the bolder spirits set out Thursday night to find the "ghost." They learned then that the noises were only the howls of the wolf, which James had learned at Mr. Thompson-Seton's lecture last winter.

BOOM DAY AT BRIDEWELL

MORE PRISONERS COME IN THAN MAYOR CAN PARDON.

Supt. Sloan Happy When His Family Is Reduced by Thirty-four, but Joy Is Short Lived When He Hears That New Arrivals Number Fifty-two — Has Not Beds Enough to Go Around—How the Prisoners Take Their Release.

A stalwart man with a bushy red beard emerged from the mayor's office, his chest swelling with a new born hope yesterday afternoon. He sat down to the telephone and called Canal 268, which is the bridewell.

"Hello, Murphy, this is Sloan. You can turn out all those on that list of thirty-four—the mayor's pardoned them."

A moment the man with the bushy red beard lingered intent with the receiver at his ear. But the light of hope faded from his eye, his face went white beneath the ruddy hair, and with a groan he hung up the instrument and leaned limply back in his chair.

"What's the matter, superintendent? Jail delivery?" asked the sympathetic attendants of the mayor's anteroom.

"No, I could wish it was. We turn thirty-four loose from the bridewell today and now they tell me they've just got fifty-two more in. What's the use? The mayor's pardoning them out by the score because we haven't got room for another prisoner, but they're coming faster than they're going."

And the superintendent rose sadly and passed out.

Fears "Standing Room Only."

The capacity of the house of correction is 1,400. Last night after the mayor had pardoned out two squads of thirty-four prisoners each there were 1,615 inmates of the institution. There are not beds enough to go around, and Supt. Sloan fears that another week will find him with accommodations of standing room only.

To relieve the congestion in the institution it was decided to pardon out all prisoners convicted of petty crimes or committed for the first time. Supt. Sloan made up the lists of recommendations and submitted them to the mayor. The news of the wholesale pardoning penetrated to corridor and cell, and threw the inmates into a rare state of excitement. Those of the first lot of thirty-four pardoned by the mayor on Thursday were released yesterday, while the members of the second lot will be turned out today.

How Men Take Their Release.

"We are letting you out because you've never been here before, and because you have a family," said the attendant to one departing inmate.

"Thank you," said the man in a husky voice. "You can bet you won't see me here again."

Then another but more hardened individual shuffled out of the corridor and greeted the turnkey familiarly. "You're going because your sentence is pretty nearly up," said the turnkey. "It's lucky for you the place is overcrowded."

"Overcrowded? Well, say," the man stopped to observe, "I thought I knew what crowdin' was—got ten in my family and only three beds—but three in a bed is nothing compared to this here joint."

ACCUSES HIS ACTRESS WIFE.

Charles Marks Elaborates on His Charges Against Mrs. Julie Marks.

The marital troubles of Mrs. Julie Marks, actress, and her husband, Charles, business manager of "The Tenderfoot" company, received another airing yesterday when Marks caused to be taken a number of depositions attacking his wife. In each of the depositions Mrs. Marks' name is coupled with that of Thomas Fitch, an actor and playwright. Charges also are made that Mrs. Marks threatened to kill her husband.

A letter, purporting to be from Mrs. Marks to Fitch, also was introduced. In it the writer threatens to kill herself unless she be enabled to join Fitch at once.

Mrs. Bertha Stevens seeks divorce from Herbert Stevens. The defendant is said to be known as "Mysterious Kid."

FLOWERS TO BE SUPREME.

FASHION, GROWERS SAY, CANNOT DICTATE THIS YEAR.

After Convention in Milwaukee the Association Comes to Chicago for a Banquet and Members Declare Taste Alone Will Decide What Blossom Women Wear—F. W. Job Invited to Talk on Labor, but Delegates Forget Him.

If you have a favorite flower you may wear it the coming season without consulting the dictators of fashion. American independence has broken down the conventions in flowers as in dress, and henceforth the dictum will be: Grace first and style afterward.

This prophecy is the outcome of the deliberations of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, which concluded a three days' convention in Milwaukee with a dinner at the Auditorium last night. There were 800 dealers at Milwaukee, where the problems in relation to the trade were discussed and the prizes awarded for new floral creations. At the dinner in Chicago, which was attended by 600 delegates, Willis N. Rudd, on behalf of the convention, presented a diamond ring to J. C. Vaughan as the dean of Chicago horticulturists.

Anxious Over Labor Outlook.

It developed at the dinner that the flower men throughout the country are alarmed by the attempts to organize their employés. The gardeners and hothouse employés in Chicago are being unionized and plans are on foot to form a national body to treat with the association of employers. It was with a view to informing themselves on the outlook and also to pick up a few hints on the best methods of dealing with labor unions that the convention officers invited F. W. Job of the Employers' association to attend the banquet and address the delegates. Mr. Job appeared prepared to explain how to deal with the unions, but he went away unheard. It was getting late, and the 600 diners, with appetites appeased, forgot the menace of organized labor in the fear that they would be late for the theater.

The advent of a union among the florists is considered so momentous in Chicago that fifty local dealers met previous to the dinner and organized an employers' association to deal with the workers. Mr. Job was present to direct the organization.

Rose Still the Floral Queen.

The rose is still the queen of all American flowers. No other bloom receives half as much attention from the hothouse men and the florists, and no other flower commands such unqualified homage from the public. There are to be at least six new varieties of roses introduced for the approval of the Florists' association in the next two months, and two of the new grafts, as yet unnamed, are already on exhibition in Chicago.

The demand for violets is expected to be about double what it was last year. During the last four years it has become a rule in the trade to double the output of violets for each succeeding year, and the market has never been overstocked.

The dealers are more certain in regard to violets than in the matter of roses and of carnations. Until the growers find out what colors are to predominate in women's dress during the fall and winter season they cannot determine whether to flood the market with white, red, or pink roses and carnations.

Talks of the Labor Outlook.

In regard to the labor outlook President Philip Breitmeier said: "The employés are organizing, and of course we wanted to hear what Mr. Job could tell us about the labor situation. But we anticipate no trouble with our employés, and it is unlikely that the association would take up the matter officially. Whatever demands the new unions of the gardeners and florists may make will be dealt with by the interested employers individually."

At the exhibition held in conjunction with the Milwaukee convention there were eighty classes of plants and flowers in which prizes were awarded. The highest prize on plants went to R. T. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., who exhibited the so-called Pierson fern, to which the association at its last convention awarded the only gold medal it has ever conferred. The newly elected officers of the society are:

President—Philip Breitmeier, Detroit.
Vice President—A. J. Benèke, St. Louis.
Secretary—W. J. Stewart, Boston.
Treasurer—H. B. Beatty, Oil City, Pa.

HOMING PIGEON RESTS ON BOAT.

Tired Bird Lights on Steamer City of Milwaukee in Midlake and Escapes Near East Shore.

While the sidewheel steamer City of Milwaukee was in midlake on the way to St. Joseph yesterday a carrier pigeon, evidently worn out by long flight, approached from the westward and settled on the upper deck. The pigeon was finally cornered near the pilot house and captured by Capt. Stewart, its leg being broken in the struggle. A string by which a message evidently had been attached, was on the left leg, but the message had disappeared. The pigeon was kept in the pilot house until the Milwaukee started back, but when a short distance from the Michigan shore the bird escaped through the open door and flew toward St. Joseph.

ORDERS POOLS RUN DOWN.

MAYOR TELLS LYNCH TO BEGIN AN INVESTIGATION.

Instructs President of Board of Local Improvements to Stop Street Work if Prices Are Too High—Says Evidence of Conspiracy Will Be Presented to Grand Jury — Two More Forgeries of Tax Rebate Receipts Discovered.

Mayor Harrison instructed President Lynch of the board of local improvements yesterday to stop all street improvement work if the prices charged were exorbitant and if there was evidence of pools between contractors or material men. He also asked President Lynch to make a thorough investigation into the charge that such pools exist.

"Nothing more can be accomplished at present," said the mayor. "If he secures evidence of illegal combines or pools I shall ask the state's attorney to present the matter to the grand jury. Pending that inquiry work will be stopped if prices are advanced further."

More Forgeries for Rebates.

Two more forgeries by which warrants for special assessment rebates have been secured from the city controller's office were discovered yesterday.

The discoveries were made when C. W. Parker complained to Acting Corporation Counsel Fyffe that two rebates due his father had been collected by some unknown person.

"My father died in 1883 at Oconomowoc," he said. "The rebates were not due until 1884, so he could not have collected them, and the signatures to the receipts no way resembled his handwriting."

Says Harris Will Get No Pay.

Mayor Harrison has put a quietus on the talk of voting G. H. Harris, the president of the board of education, a salary of $10,000 a year. He said:

"It is a dead proposition which probably will never be revived. I do not care to appear as if interfering with the work of the board, but there is no doubt that if it is attempted some taxpayer would stop it with an injunction suit."

Expressmen Must Quit Market.

The police have been ordered to see that no one but legitimate traders occupy space in Haymarket square. The truck farmers complained to the mayor that expressmen are accustomed to back their wagons up to the curbs before they got to the place with their vegetables and produce, and then charge a fee for the places preempted.

Mayor Off for the West.

Mayor Harrison left in the evening on a western trip, which is expected to last until Sept. 15. With him went Graham Harris, president of the school board; City Electrician Ellicott, and Col. William Haskell. The party will visit the Yellowstone park and spend a short time at the ranch of A. S. Trude in Idaho.

Signs Wide Tire Measure.

The wide tire ordinance was signed by the mayor yesterday. He put his name to it, according to promise, after the law department had returned it to him with the opinion that it was satisfactory from a legal point.

KIERULEFF IN MORE TROUBLE.

New Charges Brought Against Assistant Bacteriologist of the Health Department.

A list of new charges were brought yesterday against Assistant Bacteriologist L. A. Kieruleff of the health department. The hearing before the civil service commission was postponed to Aug. 31, when Dr. Kieruleff says he will confront his accusers.

These are among the new complaints against the man accused of whistling for his stenographer:

Disobedience of orders of laboratory superintendent.
Habitual neglect of duties.
The use of disrespectful language concerning his superior officers.
The use of profane language in business hours to employés of the laboratory.
The uses of indecent language concerning employés.
Discourteous treatment of visitors.

FIND LIVE MAN ON A COFFIN.

Police Discover Him Sleeping on Bier, with Candles Burning on All Sides.

Passing through an alley in the rear of an undertaking establishment at 263 Wells street early this morning three policemen from the Chicago avenue station came upon a coffin with candles surrounding it and chairs arranged as though for a wake. Startled at the sight, they were given an additional shock when they found on top of the coffin the body of a man, whom they thought dead.

As one approached the supposed corpse awoke. He was taken to the station, where he gave his name as John Golden, and said he lived at 120 Chicago avenue.

The police say Golden fell asleep in an alley, and companions, finding him there, got a coffin from the undertaker's barn and sought to place him in it. The coffin was too small, however, so they put him on top.

MAN SHOT; WILL NOT EXPLAIN.

Police Say James Boalth Attempted Suicide While Saying Good Night to Young Woman.

While saying good night to Miss Hilda Hanson, at whose home, 27 Bickerdike street, he had spent the evening, James Boalth was shot last night. The couple were standing at the door at the time, and, although there is some mystery in the case, the police say Boalth shot himself. When the police arrived Boalth was sitting in the parlor. He asked for a doctor, saying he was wounded, but neither he nor Miss Hanson would talk of the case. The man was taken to the county hospital, where it was found he had been shot in the arm. Neighbors say that Boalth drew his revolver while talking to the girl and attempted to kill himself, but the bullet lodged in his arm. Boalth lives at 44 Clark street.

SMOKES CORN SILK; ARRESTED.

Son of Evanston Minister Held on Unusual Charge—Recalls Case of His Brother.

Smoking seems bound to cause trouble for the children of the Rev. J. D. Woods of Evanston. A year ago one of the Rev. Mr. Woods' sons complained to the police that his father had chained him to a bedpost for smoking. Yesterday a younger son, Frank, was arraigned before Justice Boyer, charged with having stolen corn silk to smoke. Charles Even said young Woods and a companion, John C. Wood, aged 13, stole corn from his garden for the sake of the corn silks, and that they tore up his cabbage patch and caused general havoc. The case will be heard on Sept. 1.

MORE AUTO OWNERS PAY FINES.

Justice Ely of Evanston Disposes of Last Cases of Men Arrested on Sunday.

The last of the automobilists who were arrested in Evanston on Sunday for violating the speed ordinance was arraigned before Justice Ely yesterday. W. L. Kelly, president of the Kelly-Atkinson Construction company, 5710 Washington boulevard, was the defendant. He was fined $20. Two other cases were heard yesterday. A. R. Baldwin, 47 Woodland park, pleaded guilty and was fined $20. F. U. Loveless, chauffeur for Charles Pope, 18 Lake Shore drive, asked for a trial by jury. He was found guilty and a fine of $10 was imposed. He says he will appeal.

Marriage Notice.

They're married. He got the Diamond engagement ring on easy monthly payments from Lotzis Bros., 92 State street. Everything is lovely.

CANDIDATES ARE SEEKING CULLOM.

Senator Has Learned Much About Campaign in the Last Week.

SHERMAN PARTY PLANS.

Gov. Yates Is Coming to Chicago Today and May Go to Rockford.

Senator Cullom is being brought into the struggles of gubernatorial candidates much earlier than he expected, and in spite of his expressed wishes. The senator said yesterday that he was not trying to acquaint himself with the situation, but had received calls from a number of prominent republicans since he returned home last Tuesday. Among his callers have been Charles S. Deneen, L. Y. Sherman, and Col. Frank O. Lowden.

While he declined to tell what their conversations were, the senator did not deny that their respective chances of securing the republican nomination for governor formed the chief topic.

"I've talked so much politics the last two days," said the senator, "that I am entitled to a rest and propose to take it."

It is generally believed now that several of the aspirants for gubernatorial honors will proclaim their candidacy within the next two weeks. The friends of ex-Speaker Sherman are putting him forward. It is understood that he will soon issue a statement of his candidacy. Mr. Sherman and his supporters are, however, not unfriendly to Mr. Deneen, and in the event Sherman cannot be nominated, Mr. Deneen would undoubtedly be their second choice. But present plans to some extent depend on future developments. It is admitted that if Mr. Deneen gets a fairly safe majority of the Cook county delegation he will be in a better position than any of his rivals to draw enough more from the country districts to land the prize.

Suspect an "Organization" Trick.

Word went out yesterday to the effect that the organization leaders have decided to "lay quiet and do nothing" until holiday week. Several of the experienced fighters at once pronounced the story a ruse. "It comes from the Lorimer-Jamieson camp," they said, "and should be taken with a grain of salt. Wait until Gov. Yates opens his headquarters, the organization chiefs will be forced to show their hand."

The governor expects to meet a large number of northern Illinois republicans in Chicago today. Rockford, Freeport, Galena, Dixon, Elgin, and other points are counted on to send representatives. The attempt of Edward Marsh to suppress Col. J. H. Strong will not succeed. Col. Strong has no intention of taking a back seat. The colonel intimated that he would be on the ground today along with other confidential advisers of the governor.

Yates May Go to Rockford.

It was said that if Gov. Yates makes formal announcement of his candidacy he will accept the advice of Mr. Marsh and attend the Rockford conference and that Col. Strong will accompany him. It was learned last night that none of the Cook county leaders, not even Congressman Lorimer, will be seen among the governor's callers.

Developments of the week stirred things in the Hyde Park district. The talk was that "Doc" Jamieson's lieutenants are becoming active and threatening to precipitate a fight sooner than expected. This is on the grounds that another Cook county candidate is to be put in the running agaist Mr. Deneen.

DENEEN GAINS IN FIFTEENTH.

Ward Club Holds an Enthusiastic Meeting and Three Hundred Voters Join It.

With the aid of a large staff of active assistants Ald. A. W. Beilfuss is having notable success in lining up the Fifteenth ward for Charles S. Deneen. The Deneen republican ward club, formed a week ago, has grown rapidly, and the meeting held last night in Manstien's hall, Division street and California avenue, to perfect the organization, brought out a crowd of enthusiasts and more than 300 names were added to the membership roll. Both Ald. Beilfuss, who is president of the club, and Ald. Anderson made speeches.

SUICIDE MAY KILL MOTHER.

Mrs. John O'Brien, Whose Daughter Took Poison, Is in a Critical Condition from the Shock.

Whether Mrs. John O'Brien will survive the shock of the suicide of her daughter, Katherine, which she saw but could not prevent, is the grave question in the O'Brien home at 5939 La Salle street. All day yesterday Mrs. O'Brien lay moaning and sobbing, calling over and over again the name of her child, whose body lay in the darkened parlor. The mother had just been brought home from the hospital, where she had been for weeks. Anxiety over the illness of her mother and worry over the absence of her fiancé, Charles Minich, who had gone to Nebraska, are said to have been the causes of the young woman's taking her life.

HOTELS CROWDED TO UTMOST.

Downtown Hostelries Are Unable to Accommodate the Visitors to the City.

Chicago hotels are filled to their capacity, and many of the principal hotels have been obliged to turn prospective guests away. At the Sherman house last evening there were as many as ten persons in some of the larger rooms and fifty persons were turned away. At the Auditorium, Palmer house, Great Northern, and other downtown hotels every room was occupied. Numerous excursions from New Orleans and other southern points, together with the crowds returning from vacations, are responsible for the crush.

W. J. BRYAN REFUSES TO TALK.

Passes Through Chicago on Way to a Chautauqua Assembly in Iowa.

William J. Bryan was in Chicago yesterday and left in the evening for one of the Chautauqua assemblies in the west.

"I have merely been east to attend a funeral," he said. "I am not going direct to my home, but shall stop in Iowa."

Mr. Bryan refused to discuss any topic, saying he did not even know the crop prospects in Nebraska, as he had been away for two weeks.

Fatal Accident on New Building.

While at work in the new Schlesinger & Mayer building, at State and Madison streets, Mathew L. McMahon, a laborer living at 840 Thirty-fifth street, fell from the third floor to the basement yesterday and died later at the Alexian Brothers' hospital.

Trouble Follows Fishing Trip.

Police Lieutenant Schwass left yesterday afternoon for Holland, Mich., to bring back Robert B. Carmichael, 1102 Lake street, Oak Park, who is charged with wife abandonment. About ten days ago he left Chicago on a fishing trip to northern Michigan and his wife fears he has deserted her.

Protests She Did Not Take $10 and Faints When the Patrol Wagon Arrives.

Arrested for theft, a salesgirl in a downtown department store protested her innocence to the police yesterday and fell unconscious when the patrol wagon arrived to take her to the Harrison street police station.

Ellen White, 1890 North Paulina street, is the prisoner. She is 22 years old and was arrested because a customer charged that she had kept $10. Miss White insists she put the money in a cash carrier, and claims the cashier failed to return the change.

The cashier said she did not receive the money.

TURKS MASSACRE 1,200 INSURGENTS

Sensational Report of Latest Atrocity in Macedonia Comes from Vienna.

BULGARIA FEARS A CLASH

Revolt Spreads to Its Frontier; Army May Be Mobilized at Once.

Among the sensational reports circulating here it is stated that 20,000 Turks under Marshal Omerrushti Pasha have surrounded and annihilated 1,200 insurgents in the Monastir district, and that at Constantinople on Thursday a Turkish soldier insulted and attacked an official of the Russian postoffice, who was severely wounded and had to be taken to the Italian hospital.

Bulgarians May Mobilize.

It is reiterated in spite of denials from Sofia that Bulgaria has decided to mobilize two army divisions on the pretext of preventing volunteers from joining the insurgent bands in Macedonia.

Officials here are still hopeful that peace will not be seriously endangered. They base this opinion on the fact that the Austro-Russian agreement remains unshaken and that Great Britain is maintaining her peaceful intentions.

Bulgaria Fears a Clash.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

SOFIA, Aug. 21.—The revolt in Macedonia has spread to the eastern part of the vilayet of Adrianople, where the insurgents have captured the town of Vasiliko, attacked a Turkish post south of Tirnovo, and burned a number of villages.

This outbreak brings the revolt up to the Bulgarian frontier and increases the seriousness of the situation.

The Turks are now certain to send a considerable force to the territory to suppress the outbreak, which will necessitate the strengthening of the Bulgarian troops along the frontier. With the two armies close to each other under the present strained relations the situation becomes extremely desperate.

Bulgaria Takes Precautions.

The Bulgarian government is taking every possible step to prevent a calamity, but the officials express the greatest concern.

In addition to the danger of a collision between the military forces, there is the no smaller one of popular excitement getting beyond control and forcing the government to adopt a belligerent attitude.

The insurgents completely burned Vasiliko, and also twelve villages in the neighborhood. The Bulgarian officials arrested the insurgents who brought the Turkish officials at Vasiliko to the Bulgarian frontier.

Severe fighting is reported to be proceeding near Gehgele, with heavy losses on both sides.

How Revolt Is Spreading.

The Sofia Dnevjnjk declares that all the Turkish vilayets in Macedonia will be in full revolt on Aug. 28, and that the revolution is spreading from Salonica into the districts towards Seres.

Several new bands have appeared in the district of Voden, southeast from Monastir.

A general panic prevails in the vilayet of Uskub, where the inhabitants are hiding their property.

The Turkish and Christian inhabitants at Kumanovo have agreed to mutually support each other in the event of an attack either by insurgent bands or Turkish soldiers.

At Kratovo half of the Turkish garrison has deserted, the men saying that they had enough to do at home.

Will Assess Macedonians.

The Macedonian revolutionary organizations are preparing heavy assessments on the rich Macedonians resident in Bulgaria. They have drawn up a complete list of names, with the amounts to be demanded against each.

Russia's move in sending warships to Turkish waters has caused surprise in diplomatic circles and disapproval and regret in government quarters. The feeling expressed here is that it can only do harm in inclining the insurgents, who are ignorant of the complications of European politics, to the belief that Russia is supporting their cause against the Turks.

Conflicting Stories of Massacre.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 22, 3 a. m.—The pro-revolutionary report from Monastir declares the Turks butchered 200 Bulgarians near there after they had surrendered.

There are conflicting accounts of what happened at Krushevo. The Bulgarians say the Turks entered the town on Aug. 14, pillaged the houses, violated many women, and killed about 300 Bulgarians and sixty Greeks and Wallachians, and that 8,000 people now are homeless and starving. The Turkish version from Constantinople says forty-four persons, including two women, were killed during the operations at Krushevo, and that 100 insurgent prisoners were marched to Monastir and released.

Many Villages Destroyed.

According to a Belgrade dispatch to the Daily Mail the Turkish troops, under the pretext of capturing revolutionary bands, have destroyed the villages of Armenska, Strebeni, Letschani, Peckopannje, Nelkazi, Zelinich, Patele, and Banitza, massacring the women and children. The male inhabitants fled and joined the insurgents.

The Odessa correspondent of the Standard affirms that immediately the Russian squadron left Sebastopol for Turkey orders were issued to vice Admiral Skrydloff to hold the remainder of the Black sea squadron in readiness for active service in case of need.

Besides demanding the execution of reforms in Macedonia Russia also demands the concession of the Black sea cable, now held by the Eastern Telegraph company, a British concern.

Russia's Fleet to Depart Soon.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Official advices say the Russian squadron off Iniada is likely to leave Turkish waters within the next few days, as the Turkish government has given adequate assurances that it will meet all the Russian demands. The withdrawal of the warships will be due chiefly to Turkey's assurances, but also to Russia's desire to avoid a step which might appear antagonistic to Bulgaria.

LOAN FOR BANANA GROWERS.

Governor of Jamaica Wants England to Advance $1,250,000 to Pay for Hurricane Damages.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 21.—Gov. Hemming has asked the imperial authorities to advance the colony a loan of $1,250,000, to assist the banana growers in recovering from the damage caused by the recent hurricane. The St. Mary Fruit association has suspended its operations for twelve months. All the United Fruit company's steamers, except one, have been withdrawn.

"There need be no fear of a shortage of bananas," said Frank Cuneo of Garibaldi & Cuneo yesterday. "The supply is unlimited, and bananas are rotting by the thousands in Central America. Prices will be a little higher for a few months because of the storms in Jamaica, which curtail the supply to the Atlantic coast cities. Chicago gets most of its supply from Central America, mainly from British Honduras.

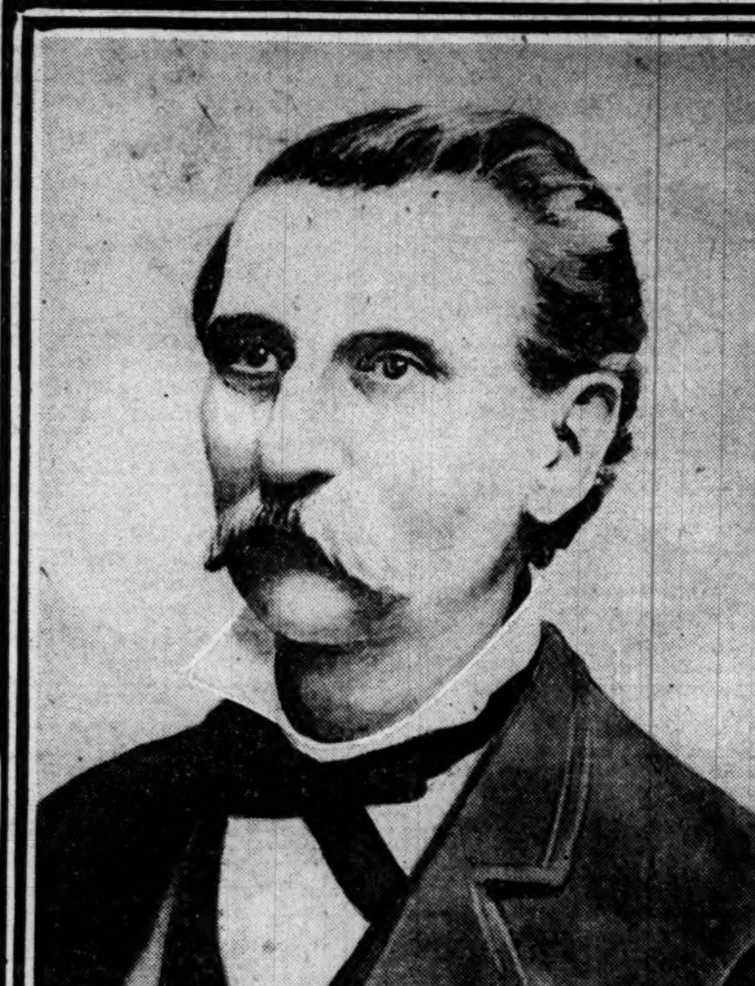

"These shipments come by way of Mobile and New Orleans. Some of the cargoes to the latter ports will have to be diverted to supply the east.

"Prices are not likely to advance more than 10 or 15 per cent. They already are up 10 cents per hundred pounds."

VETERAN ACTOR AND MANAGER DIES, AGED 82.

JOHN A. ELLSLER

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—John A. Ellsler, the veteran actor and manager, who brought into prominence Clara Morris, Joseph Haworth, and his own daughter, Mrs. Effie Ellsler Weston, died today at his home, 479 West One Hundred and Fifty-second street, after having been ill two days. Death was caused by heart disease. The body will be taken to Cleveland for burial on Sunday.

Mr. Ellsler was born in Harrisburg, Pa., on Sept. 26, 1821. In 1846 he went to Philadelphia, where he began his theatrical career with William G. Burton, taking comedy and character parts. In the early '50s he left the stage to become a theatrical manager. His first venture was in partnership with Joseph Jefferson, taking a company through the southern circuit for two or three years and meeting with great success. Maggie Mitchell and other celebrities were members of that company.

In 1855 Mr. Ellsler went west, where he remained for thirty years. He established his home in Cleveland, and while there managed theaters in that city, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, and Columbus. In the Academy of Music in Cleveland, of which he was then the manager, he brought out his daughter, Effie Ellsler, the original Hazel Kirke in the play of that name, about the same time also bringing into prominence Joseph Haworth and Clara Morris. In the company with his daughter at that time were Mrs. George Gilbert and James Lewis.

Mr. Ellsler retired from active life in 1886 and came to New York City. For several years afterward he frequently toured with his daughter Effie, but within the last few years he gave up traveling altogether. The widow, two daughters, Effie and Annie May Ellsler, and two sons, John J. and William C., survive him.

LAUDS HAY AS STATESMAN

LONDON SPECTATOR PRAISES THE AMERICAN SECRETARY OF STATE.

Head of the Roosevelt Cabinet Declared to Be One of the Most Successful of Living Diplomats — Holds Place Among World's Most Famous Men of the Day — Ruling Qualities Are Serenity, Firmness, and High Sense of Honor.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Spectator, in connection with the news of the prospective signing of a commercial treaty between the United States and China, including a clause providing for the opening of the ports of Mukden and Tatung-tao on Oct. 8, devotes an article to Secretary of State Hay, in which it says:

"The treaty is a crowning proof that he is one of the ablest and most successful of living diplomatists, or foreign ministers. The incident affords a useful opportunity of considering John Hay's place among the world's statesmen and for noting the qualities that have raised him to that great position. His ruling qualities are serenity, firmness, a high sense of honor, as well as public duty, a wide knowledge of men and affairs, and without the trace of a bully or blusterer in his composition. He never is awed, not merely by other men, a kind of courage which is not uncommon, but never is awed by rumor, circumstance, or the creation of bogies of any kind."

Proof of Statesmanship.

The Spectator pays a high tribute to Mr. Hay's behavior while ambassador to England, especially during the Spanish-American war, when a man who had been considered to be only a brilliant man of letters proved to be a true statesman.

The Spectator attributes Secretary Hay's calmness and self-possession, his quiet ability to meet and hold his own with the ablest of foreign diplomatists to his training as President Lincoln's secretary during a period which made the Spanish war seem like a storm in a teacup.

The article concludes by expressing regret that Roosevelt, Hay, and others do not collect young men around them to train them in a similar manner for a few years as secretaries, since such training will be invaluable if in later years they are called to serve the state.

Confirms China's Concession.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Sir Liang Chen Tung, the Chinese minister, informed the state department today that he had received a dispatch from his government confirming the information previously received that Prince Ching had informed Minister Conger that in the treaty to be signed on Oct. 8 provision would be made for opening two ports in Manchuria. The Chinese minister, after his last conversation with Secretary Hay, informed his government that the United States would insist upon open ports in Manchuria, and he advised them to yield gracefully to the American demands.

JOKES ON KAISER: SENTENCED.

German Actor Gets Nine Months' Imprisonment for Lese Majesty While on Stage at The Hague.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Konrad von Fielitz, an actor, was today sentenced to nine months' imprisonment on a charge of lese majesty in libeling the German emperor in his jokes on the stage. Fielitz was engaged at the German theater at The Hague at the time when the emperor was honoring Field Marshal Roberts in Berlin. He sang couplets voicing the feeling among the Dutch against Emperor William. After the performances there were festive gatherings, at which Fielitz indulged in pleasantries which two Germans present considered insulting to Emperor William and reported to Berlin. On Fielitz's return to Berlin he was arrested. The public prosecutor asked for a sentence of fifteen months' imprisonment.

KING PETER STILL THREATENS.

Servian Ruler Twice Within Last Ten Days Has Declared Purpose of Abdicating.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—From a Russian official source at Belgrade it is asserted that King Peter twice within ten days has threatened to abdicate not only personally but on behalf of the Karageorgevitch dynasty if the present distracting situation in the Servian capital continues.

HUMBERT TRIAL NEAR END

LABORI ATTACKS MINISTER OF JUSTICE FOR UNFAIRNESS.

Famous Lawyer Declares Men High in Government Office Have Used Their Influence Against the Paris Woman and Her Family Accused of Swindling—Says the Mysterious Crawfords Do Exist and Challenges Proof to the Contrary.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Maitre Labori closed his address in defense of the Humbert family with a sensational attack on the minister of justice, M. Valle, and on the banker, the money lender, who is prosecuting the Humberts.

Incidentally, mentioning M. Waldeck-Rosseau's and M. Valle's part in the prosecution, he declared the political leaders had become degenerate. Labori pointed out that M. Valle first acted as attorney against the Humberts and afterwards became minister of justice, supervising their prosecution.

Cattani, he asserted, belonged to that class which is bringing dishonor on France and seeking to gain all through the use of money thus corrupting the public administration.

The charges of Maitre Labori, although avoiding specific accusations, reflected severely on the chief personages in the system of the administration of justice. He reasserted the existence of the Crawfords and maintained that the prosecution had failed to establish that they and the millions did not exist.

Labori said Mme. Humbert would address the court after counsel had concluded, but even if she did not, he claimed that the evidence offered was not sufficient to warrant her conviction on the charges.

TELLS OF COLOMBIA'S DILEMMA

President Marroquin's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Panama Canal Treaty Now at Hand.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 21.—According to advices received from Bogota overland, before presenting the Panama canal treaty to the Colombian senate, President Marroquin said:

"Either our sovereignty must suffer detriment or we must renounce pecuniary advantages to which in the opinion of many we have a right, or we must maintain our sovereignty and claim the pecuniary indemnity to which we consider ourselves entitled.

"If the canal should be opened through the Panama isthmus the just desire of the inhabitants of that department would be satisfied, but the government would be exposing itself to having the charge brought against it later that it did not duly defend our sovereignty.

"Should the canal not be opened through Panama the government will be reproached with not having allowed Colombia to obtain that advantage which is considered an essential condition of our aggrandizement. The immense responsibility of deciding must be assumed by congress."

LORD SALISBURY AT DEATH'S DOOR.

Physicians Hold Out No Hope for Life of England's Former Premier.

KEPT ALIVE BY OXYGEN.

Slight Rally Believed to Be Only Temporary—Familyat the Bedside.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 22, 1 a. m.—Lord Salisbury is barely alive, and members of his family are assembled at Hatfield house waiting for the end, which appears to be inevitable within a few hours. He is expected to survive the night, but there is little expectation that the brief rally last evening will prove more than the last flicker of the flame of life.

Oxygen is being administered, but the heart weakness, which is the most alarming feature of the former premier's illness, is hourly becoming accentuated.

The distinguished patient has been in a state of coma for many hours, with a few brief intervals of consciousness. He suffers no pain.

Rally Is Only Transient.

The last bulletin, at midnight, stated that there was a slight improvement in his condition, believed by the physicians to be only transient.

Gathered at Hatfield house are the members of Lord Salisbury's family, including his sons, Viscount Cranborne, Lord Arthur Cecil, Lord Robert Cecil, the Rev. Lord William Cecil, Lady Gwendolin Cecil, the earl and countess of Selborne, and his nephew, Premier A. J. Balfour, who came from Scotland. They remain in the vicinity of the sickroom awaiting the final call.

Gates at Hatfield Closed.

The gates of Hatfield house were closed at midnight with the announcement that there had been no change in the patient's condition since early in the evening and that no other bulletin was expected until morning.

Telegrams poured in all day yesterday from notable men throughout the world. Late in the afternoon King Edward telegraphed for additional information, though his majesty has been kept informed by bulletins. There was a continual stream today of callers in carriages and on foot.

Hatfield house is a gloomy structure, though one of the most magnificent remaining specimens of Elizabethan architecture. It is situated in a magnificent park which skirts the quaint town of which the marquis of Salisbury is practically the owner. He was always regarded there as the type of England's great nobles, and he retained the love and respect of his tenants and neighbors, which he reciprocated in many kindly ways, especially by opening Hatfield park completely for the use of the townspeople and residents in the vicinity, reserving only a small portion for his own use.

CROKER DENIES INTERFERING.

Declares He Did Not Authorize Statement That He Favored McClellan for Mayoralty of New York.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Richard Croker attended the race meeting at Hurst park today and expressed indignation at the statement that he favored the candidacy of George B. McClellan as mayor of New York. The suggestion that he was interfering in politics and attempting to dictate nominations in New York from England annoyed and angered him. "The statement that I favor any particular candidate is evidently inspired by a desire to injure McClellan's candidacy by the suggestion that I am attempting to dictate New York's policy from here," he said. "If so, it is a contemptible piece of politics on the part of my enemies. I want to state again emphatically that I am out of politics forever."

PRINCE WHO IS NEVER WEARY.

Ludwig Ferdinand of Bavaria Attends to Theatrical Duties and Physician's Work, but Does Not Tire.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Prince Ludwig Ferdinand of Bavaria, who is a physician, a musician, and a nephew of the regent of Bavaria, has told the Hungarian writer, Desider Szomomry, that he is a prince who never suffers from weariness.

"I go to the Prince Regent theater every morning," he said, "and take part in the rehearsal. After leaving the rehearsals I occupy myself until 3 o'clock fulfilling my duties as a doctor. Then I must go off to the theater and play in the orchestra."

The spectacle of the prince playing the horn is one of the sights of the Munich opera house.

CANADA WANTS LAWS CHANGED

Congress of Chambers of Commerce Urges Alterations on Trade Mark, Patent, and Cattle Statutes.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 21.—At today's session of the congress of chambers of commerce of the empire resolutions were passed urging the British government to order a full inquiry into the unsatisfactory working of the trade mark law. It was also urged that all chambers should make recommendations for the assimilation of the various patent laws and the reduction of expenses in connection therewith; that the British government be urged to hurry the codification of commercial laws, and that the imperial government be urged to remove the embargo on Canadian cattle.

RELIEF FOR ANTARCTIC PARTY.

British Government Sends Ship to Release Men Frozen In with Discovery in Ice Pack.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Aug. 21.—The auxiliary relief ship Terra Nova, formerly a Newfoundland steam whaler, sailed today for the antarctic regions to relieve the British exploring vessel Discovery. The ship was fitted out by the British government. The Terra Nova will proceed to McMurdo bay, where the Discovery was left last February by the relief ship Morning. The Terra Nova will carry gun cotton, which will be used to blast out a channel, and if the Discovery cannot be extricated the officers and men will be transferred to the Terra Nova, and the Discovery will be abandoned.

HONOR MEMORY OF LEADER

PROHIBITIONISTS UNVEIL MONUMENT FOR HALE JOHNSON.

Pledge Themselves to Take Up with Renewed Vigor the Fight for the Abolition of the Liquor Evil and for the Betterment of the Nation—John G. Woolley Delivers Address Presenting Granite Shaft to the City of Newton.

Newton, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A monument of Barre granite to the memory of Hale Johnson, the prohibition leader, who was assassinated on election day last year, was unveiled by prohibitionists of the United States today. During the ceremonies addresses were delivered by John G. Woolley of Chicago, National Chairman Oliver W. Stewart, Robert H. Patton of Springfield, and former Congressman George M. Fithian. After the ceremonies the state executive committee met.

Woolley Makes Presentation Address.

The monument was presented to the city by John G. Woolley, who spoke, in part, as follows:

"My errand is simple. I bring a message to you today from the national prohibition party, of which Hale Johnson was the leader in this state. We come to place a beautiful and imperishable token on his grave. And because his resting place is in your custody, my comrades and his comrades have appointed me to convey to you with words as fitting as I can command, what they have said in eloquent but silent stone.

"Hale Johnson put his religion into his politics and gave it right of line. He was not more religious than you are. He was not more patriotic than you are. He was not braver than you are. He went to war, it is true, and that is to his credit certainly.

"For my last word I am going to venture this to Mrs. Johnson and the children—twenty years from now Newton will make holidays to come and decorate this grave; not because Hale Johnson was a solider, but because, as a peaceful, quiet citizen, he stood, when it cost something to stand, for the greater politics which will then be dominant in the great republic."

Johnson as a Lawyer.

Robert H. Patton of Springfield spoke of "Hale Johnson as a Lawyer and Patriot," in which he said that Johnson was to the manner born a patriot.

"He practiced law twenty-seven years busily and successfully, during the last eighteen years of which he was the devoted and ceaseless champion of the cause of prohibition. For sixteen years he was a member of the prohibition party state committee, and for many years its chairman. In 1896 he was our candidate for vice president. During that stormy campaign, when the clouds of despair hung heaviest over us, he bravely upheld the banner in almost every state in the union.

"The true greatness of the life of Hale Johnson is best shown in relief by the side of the other members of his profession. But few able and busy lawyers have been prohibitionists.

Fights License Evil to End.

"Standing here by his tomb, unveiling this humble monument, let us join hands with renewed zeal, and pledge each other, God being our helper to see to it that the saloon shall die. Then will the greater, living monument of a sober, free, and happy people mark forever the land that gave to the world such heroes as Hale Johnson, Neal Dow, Frances Willard, Clinton B. Fisk, and the host of others who have gone home to God, crowned with the glories of this fight."

Prof. A. A. Hopkins read a poem entitled "Hale Johnson," a eulogy of his life and work, and former Congressman George W. Fithian accepted the monument on behalf of the citizens of Newton.

ENDS SEARCH OF THIRTY YEARS.

Woman Finds Brother in British Columbia After Thousands of Miles of Traveling.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—After years of search, involving a perilous trip to the Klondike in midwinter, Mrs. H. Hamilton, a trained nurse, has found her brother, who long ago was mourned as dead by the members of his family, and in a few weeks will go to preside over a home in British Columbia which he will build.

He is the owner of two mines in the west Kortenay country, is rich enough to dwell in comparative luxury, and the two will pass their declining years in peace. James H. Christie is the brother's name. He left his home in Scotland when 17 years old and was never heard of again.

Ten years ago his mother took up the search for him, and when four years ago she died, Mrs. Hamilton, her daughter, promised to take up the work. She searched California and next got trace of him in Alaska. Neither the brother nor sister knew each other when they met, as they had not seen each other for thirty years.

CONGRESS COMPLETES WORK.

Adopts Resolutions Favoring Statehood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 21.—The transmississippi congress adjourned today after passing the following resolutions: "Favoring statehood for Oklahoma and Indian territory combined; a territorial government for Alaska; an American merchant marine; an international fish hatchery; closer trade relations with Canada; placing the consular service under civil service; also resolutions relating to forestry, irrigation, public lands, and the improvement of rivers and harbors; favoring an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the Lewis and Clarke exposition at Portland, roads and bridges in Alaska; favoring more stringent pure food laws; the St. Louis exposition and a differential of 4 per cent in favor of Pacific coast bidders on battleships; recommending the construction of an isthmian canal; favoring The Hague tribunal as a court of last resort, and discountenancing the sale of large tracts of Philippine lands and the introduction of coolie labor into those islands.

CONDEMNS ORGANIZER'S WORK.

Royal Labor Commission of Canada Is Against International Organizations of Workmen.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 21.—The report of the royal labor commission, appointed to investigate the industrial troubles in British Columbia, has been published.

One of the strikes under investigation was that of the Canadian Pacific railroad men of the western division. The report says that the men were organized as "a secret society, bound together with a strong oath and under control of a foreign executive."

The chief organizer for the Brotherhood of Railway Employés in Canada, the report says, sold his services to the railway company.

The report condemns international organizations of labor which may at any time place Canadian workingmen under control of an American executive.

OFFICE DUE TO SOCIALISTS.

Entitled to a Vice Presidency in Reichstag — Many Oppose Acceptance, as It Would Limit Opposition.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—The socialists are entitled to have appointed from their party one of the three vice presidents of the reichstag, on account of their increased representation, and the other parties appear willing to concede this. The socialist leaders, however, differ as to whether they ought to accept the office, because it would limit their complete freedom of obstruction and opposition. The socialists of Munich rejected the idea by a majority of eighteen yesterday, while Stuttgart voted for it.

New Guard for McKinley Tomb.

Another change in the detail of soldiers on guard at the tomb of President McKinley, in Westlawn cemetery, Canton, O., is to be made on Sept. 1. Maj. Gen. Bates, as commander of the department of the lakes, has ordered that two officers and thirty-six enlisted men from Fort Brady, Mich., report at Canton.

MIMIC WAR OPENS OFF MAINE COAST.

"Hostile Fleet" Now on Its Way to Capture Harbor of Portland.

ARMY ON THE DEFENSIVE.

Regular Troops and National Guard Hastening to Aid Threatened Port.

Portland, Me., Aug. 21.—Theoretically, a hostile fleet sailed from the tropics today to attack Portland, and secret service agents notified the United States government of the fact. In this way began the mimic war, in which detachments of the United States army and the combined fleet of the North Atlantic squadron are to take part during the next ten days.

Rear Admiral Barker has received sealed instructions relating to the attack. The contents are unknown to Gen. Chaffee, in command of the army. According to the rules for the maneuvers, the blues, two squadrons of battleships located at Guantanamo and Culebra, are covered by a superior allied fleet, or red and black, when the political situation in the United States is suddenly strained to rupture.

A strong red fleet, including torpedo boats, sails at 6 p. m. on Aug. 23 from the port of "X," holding south with the following sealed orders:

"The red fleet at 'X' will proceed at once to Portland and seize and hold the same as a base of operations."

Portland Warned in Time.

Information of the sailing of the fleet from "X" is received at Portland six hours after its departure. The time required for the red fleet to reach Portland is fifty-four hours. It will be assumed that prior to the sailing of the red fleet from "X" no channels are mined or obstructed. Thereafter all enterprises sanctioned by international law are permitted.

Preparations will be made to resist attacks by forts and by landing parties.

The period of hostilities shall be from midnight of Aug. 25 to noon on Aug. 29. The period from midnight Aug. 23 to midnight Aug. 25 shall be known as the period of preparation.

The fleet, which is supposed to be sailing toward Portland really is at anchor off Rockland, where it will remain for the two days which would be consumed if it was actually approaching from the tropics. Then the vessels will appear in this harbor and commence operations.

Army of Defense Assembles.

In the meantime, prompted by the imaginary receipt this forenoon of news of the advance of the enemy's ships, the army of defense will assemble and prepare for the protection of the harbor and the city. The local batteries being the first naturally to hear the news of the threatening danger, responded promptly, and by noon all the companies had gone into camp and taken up active duties.

The First and Second regiments, which constitute the entire state militia, started as soon as notified for Portland, and they were in camp in good season. Before Sunday night additional forces from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New York will be here ready to assist in preventing the operations of the enemy from being successful.

Maj. Gen. A. R. Chaffee is to command the land forces. The enemy will be under Rear Admiral A. S. Barker.

MILLER DENIES BIGAMY CHARGE

Federal Employe Says It Is a Conspiracy to Get Him Out of the Printing Office.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—William A. Miller, assistant foreman in the government printing office, against whom the bookbinders' union preferred charges of bigamy, made a statement today saying he had every reason to believe his first wife had secured a divorce before he married a second time.

"I shall take no notice of these charges," said Miller. "They are the result of a conspiracy to get me out of the government printing office at any cost. The union made two attempts to have me discharged and failed in both. The majority of the charges are based on hearsay and for this reason I do not intend to answer them.

"I do not care anything about this myself," said Miller, "but I have a wife and three children living in Minnesota, and it is on their account that I feel bitter toward my persecutors. I have a boy 17 years old, one 14, and a little girl not quite 3 years old. My wife and I are on the best of terms and always have been. I understand also that my first wife is happily married."

THE TRIBUNE TRULY REPRESENTATIVE.

[From the Mail Order Journal.]

THE TRIBUNE is the truly representative morning and Sunday newspaper of Chicago. It wields as great a prestige and influence today as it has at any time in its successful history. The large dry goods houses and the big retail emporiums use more space in it than in any other morning paper, and did it accept all the medical and get-rich-quick advertising copy it would have to add, on Sundays especially, another big supplement.

The Wide Tire Ordinance.

Mayor Harrison approves of the wide tire ordinance. So do all owners of real estate who do not own more teams than they do realty. So do all intelligent men who have observed how quickly expensive pavements are destroyed by the teams with narrow tires and heavy loads. The only opponents of the ordinance are team owners, who contend that they have an inalienable right to ruin pavements in order to escape a slight expense. Fortunately for the city, their selfish arguments did not affect the mayor. He listened for three hours to the entreaties of some of them and sent them away with the information that the narrow tires must go. They should have gone years ago. They have contributed to the destruction of pavements costing millions of dollars. Before the ordinance takes effect most of the teamsenow in service will need repairs, and it will not be an expensive matter to equip them with new tires. Really the expense which the ordinance will entail upon team owners is a mere trifle. It would not be a trifling matter if they were asked to pay for the damage they have done during the last third of a century.

Speculative Bank Officers.

A Chicagoan who has read the dispatches printed during the last week or two reporting the wrecking or crippling of several banks by officers who had used the funds intrusted to them in stock, grain, or other speculations, says that if bank directors will pass a rule to discharge any subordinate who speculates, and will enforce the rule, their institutions will be safe. The correspondent says also that if the employés of a bank are speculating and directors do not know it they are willfully blind or are unwilling to know what they should and can know. The suggestion is not a new one. Probably it is part of the written or unwritten law of a great many banks whose responsible employés know that to be detected in anything that resembles gambling will cost them their positions. It is not, however, so simple a matter as the correspondent thinks to discover the speculations of bank officers unless an elaborate detective system is devised. The facilities for speculating unobtrusively are ample. Occasionally the persons who think they know all about the daily life of a bank officer have reason to marvel at the depth of their ignorance. If all the banks in the country had such a rule as is spoken of and if all directors were attentive to their duties and tried conscientiously to keep track of what was going on, from time to time a bank officer of a speculative turn of mind would pull the wool over the eyes of his director guardians, and lose the bank's money in stock speculations. There is no precaution against dishonesty which will not sometimes be eluded. Still, it is a good rule that nobody connected with a bank, from the directors—who have sometimes aided in wrecking such institutions—down to the messenger boys, shall speculate.

THE PENNY ARCADE.

There was a time when the dime museum was the cheapest amusement provided. But it has now been superseded by the penny arcade, which is the cheapest kind of amusement ever concocted for the delectation of an audience of countrymen and boys bound on seeing the sights of a city and seeing them cheap. In the penny arcade the low water mark of cheapness has been reached. Nothing could be cheaper.

Entrance to the penny arcade is free. A man can go into one and stand up as long as he wants for nothing. A goliath automatic organ will grind out hymns, tunes, and popular airs incessantly during his stay. But if he wishes to do something besides listening to the music he must spend one cent. For that sum he can see a series of perhaps 200 suggestive photographs arranged kinetoscope fashion, so that by turning a crank rapidly the figures seem to assume the movements of life. The placards above the different machines are written in a style often evilly suggestive, and the penny spender puts his coin in the slot with the expectation of viewing something vile. He is not disappointed, for though the pictures may not be so bad as he thought they would be their suggestiveness is sufficient to condemn them.

Boys 6 years old and upward may be seen crowding these cheap amusement halls, tightly clutching the pennies which they have coaxed from their parents or earned by selling papers, intent on spending their money only on the "best" pictures in the hall. They come in bands of two, three, or half a dozen, sometimes sharing with each other peeps at the pictures which one cent threw into view and sometimes working cooperatively, advising each other which pictures to look at. In this lies the penny arcade's subtle poison; that it caters to impressionable boys, that its cheapness enables them to patronize it largely and constantly, and that its suggestiveness fills their minds with evil and debasing thoughts. The harm it does is far greater than that of the penny in the slot gambling machine, in the abolishment of which the city government has frequently taken pride.

It is fair to say that some of these automatic exhibitions are not bad. But the majority of them are bad and should be either strictly censored or abolished.

MUCH STOCK AND LITTLE PROPERTY.

The other day the board of review reduced the personal property assessment of the Union Traction company from $10,100,000 to $9,120,000. This was a substantial cut, but not so large a one as the company asked for. It has no exalted opinion of the value of its personal property when it is a matter of paying taxes. All estimates which have been made are higher than that of the company.

Day before yesterday the board of review took up the valuation of the real estate and buildings of the Union Traction company, which the assessors had put down at $3,440,000. That is about $40,000 lower than last year's valuation. The board, after listening to the arguments of the representatives of the company, took off $1,230,000. The valuation of the real and tangible personal property of the company is $11,350,000, as compared with the $14,900,000 valuation of the expert, Bion J. Arnold.

THE TRIBUNE has no inclination to challenge the accuracy of the assessment as revised by the board of review. It is by no means unlikely that other estimates have failed to make due allowance for depreciation of plant. Everything has been allowed to run down during the last few years. A good deal of the company's property is fit only for the scrap heap. Much of its machinery ought to be thrown out and better machinery put in. It may, indeed, be that the company is right in its assertion that the reduced valuation is too high. Possibly it will be necessary to expend $10,000,000 or more to put the plant in condition to give the public tolerably decent service.

If it be assumed that the actual value of the tangible property of the Union Traction company is $11,000,000, and that $10,000,000 will be expended in improvements, there will be an actual investment of $21,000,000. A company whose capitalization fairly represented that investment would be entitled to and would get net earnings which would make it easy to pay respectable dividends.

A $21,000,000 capitalization would look small, indeed, beside that of the Union Traction and its underlying companies, which is, in stock and bonds, $75,000,000. There is a difference of $63,650,000 between the capitalization and the assessed value of real and personal property. What is there to represent the $63,650,000? The claims based on the ninety-nine year law cannot be worth that much. The unwillingness of investors to dabble in the securities of the Union Traction and the underlying companies shows they do not think so. Evidently the present capitalization is beyond all reason—too much stock and too little property, too much wind and too little value.

The public should insist upon an honest reorganization of the Union Traction company as a preliminary to negotiations between it and the city. That kind of reorganization will mean a great scaling down of stock which represents nothing.

A DWINDLING ARMY.

Gen. John C. Black of Illinois has assumed command of an army which is as glorious as it ever was. It will never cease to be glorious. When there is but one survivor of the civil war, that solitary man, gathering up in himself the traditions of a great conflict and drawing in toward himself the affections of a great people, will maintain in his own person the glory of the whole army which saved the republic.

Gen. Black's army can never be so dwindled but that it will keep all of its renown and prestige. We cannot be blind, however, to the fact that the dwindling is in process. The army which Gen. Black commands is smaller by 7,245 men than the army which his predecessor took over.

Year by year the leaves fall from the old tree. We should prefer to see the leaves stay where they are. But even the bare branches which show us where the leaves used to be are beautiful to look upon. They give us outlines of strength and majesty which reach our hearts as well as our eyes. When we have nothing left but bare branches, when all the leaves are gone, when the Grand Army of the Republic drops its men of flesh and blood and retains only its volumes of records, we shall still think about it, speak about it, write about it, honor it.

May that last day of the living Grand Army be long deferred! May Keats' prophecy about the Grecian urn apply, with one change, to it! May it—

> Remain . . . . .
> . . . . a friend to man, to whom it saith:
> "Duty is truth, truth duty—that is all
> Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

THE PUBLIC EMPLOYER.

A private employer is at liberty to determine whether he will run an "open shop" or the "closed shop" which labor unions wish him to run. The public employer—the national government, or a state or municipal government—has no such freedom of choice. It must maintain the "open shop." It cannot lawfully say that none but union men need apply for employment, and that whatever may be the qualifications of a nonunionist, there never will be work for him.

"Organized labor" has often behaved as if it were ignorant of the fundamental difference between the public and private employer—between the government, which must be impartial, and hence cannot give the preference to one class of citizen workers over another class of citizen workers, and the individual employer, who can be as partial as he pleases. "Organized labor" has made repeated efforts to induce public employers to give it a monopoly of work. Occasionally the attempts have met with some measure of success, but the objectionable discrimination against one class of labor will not last long after attention has been called to it.

The case of Foreman Miller in the government printing office has given President Roosevelt an opportunity to say that the national government will make no discrimination between employés who belong to labor unions and those who do not. This will be the rule of action henceforth if it has not always been in the past. If a government employé belongs to a union one of whose laws is that a member must not work with a nonunion member, and a nonunion man is put to work beside him, he can obey the union rule and leave the government service. The nonunion man will not be dismissed so that the unionist may stay without breaking the union rule, which is not of so much authority as the law of the land.

What is true of the national government is true of inferior governments. Neither the state of Illinois nor the city of Chicago has a right to discriminate between men who belong to labor unions and men who do not. This is a fact which labor leaders who are zealous for municipal ownership ought to keep in mind. If the city were to operate street railroads a demand that none but union men should be employed could not be heeded. The city has to run an "open shop."

BOATS AND CREWS.

If Sir Thomas Lipton, besides anglicizing the American people to the extent of making them drink tea, should anglicize the America cup to the extent of taking it to London, he would undoubtedly deserve a peerage. Lord Lipton of Sandy Hook, Lord Lipton of Liftem, Lord Lipton of Bohea, Lord Lipton of Orange Pekoe—any one of these titles would be impressive. In time Orange Pekoe might have as many clustering traditions as Orange Naseau.

But it does not seem just now as if Sir Thomas would get his peerage. The showing his yacht made day before yesterday indicates that the blood in his veins is not going to become bluer. He will remain a vertebra in that backbone of the English nation, the middle class.

The fact is that, although Shamrock and Reliance are so much alike that one can hardly tell them apart, the men who man them are different. There are two places in the world where seafaring men are best bred. One is the coast of New England. The other is the coast of Scandinavia and Denmark. The United States draws from both those places. The New Englander and the Scandinavian sail boats just as the Italian eats spaghetti, or the Tyrolean yodels, or the Scotchman becomes a steamship engineer. As long as we have Yankees and Scandinavians among us, and as long as we know the winds and currents off New York, the cup will not be lifted unless the English boat is so superior in build that its disadvantage in crew is overbalanced.

THERE are nearly 70,000 automobiles in the United States, and the number is increasing every day. Does Evanston see what it is up against?

SOME old men act like they imagine they are regular lady killers.—The Commoner.
That's where they fool theirselves, ain't it?

IF St. Louis were located on the Illinois river, just this side of Peoria, it would have no trouble with its water supply.

IN the opinion of the Globe-Democrat the Missouri river is too valuable a highway of commerce to be abandoned by the government. All it needs "is to be interpreted." Made clear?

THERE has been a big jump in the price of bananas. A suffering people may have to worry along on Michigan peaches and Georgia watermelons.

MANUFACTURING firms that leave Chicago on account of labor troubles may find the same kind of troubles elsewhere, but that doesn't help Chicago any.

STILL, Sir Thomas might lift the cup with a good, strong tug.

DOWN McDonough county way they still refer enthusiastically to our illustrious governor as "his vacancy."

THE south park commissioners will have to be a great deal angrier at each other than they are now before any of them will resign.

MR. WEBSTER of Nebraska has his ear as close to the ground as he can get it without soiling his waistcoat.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Knew His Rights.

The two newsboys had quarreled over the possession of 6 cents, of which the smaller boy insisted he had been defrauded.

They proceeded to fisticuffs and the smaller boy was whipped.

"You licked me all right," he said, wiping his bloody nose on his ragged shirt sleeve, "but I'll fight ye agin if ye don't fork over 2 cents o' dat money."

"What fur?" demanded the other boy.

"Doggone ye, I got a right to claim de loser's end o' de purse, hain't I!"

Recognized It.

The man at the typewriter, during a lull in the clicking of the telegraph instrument, which had been giving off news from the Balkans, idly hammered out this line, to see if his machine was all right:

Zxcvbnm, .asdfghjkl; qwertyuiopp[outre!

He neglected to erase it when the telegraph instrument started up again. The conscientious compositor set it up, and the proofreader carelessly let it go through.

Next day the editor sent for the proofreader.

"Can you explain that?" he demanded.

"I'm not sure," said the proofreader, "but it looks as if it might be a cry from Macedonia."

His Foot in It Again.

"I don't suppose," confessed the fair poetess, "anybody has the slightest idea how hard it is now and then for one who is in the literary grind to express with the precise shade of meaning the idea one has in one's mind. I have worked sometimes three hours or more upon a single line."

"Dear me," commented Mr. Makinbrakes, anxious to be complimentary, "your poems don't read as if you bestowed the slightest thought upon them. I mean, of course, they do. That is, they seem, you know, so kind of—or, rather, you understand, so—so easy to do, don't you see, that—that—well, you just dash 'em off, you know—anybody can see that—and—don't you think there's altogether too much fuss over this yacht race, Miss Rybold?"

At His Own Estimate.

His height was a little over 5 feet.
He was slender in proportion.
But he was proud—O, so proud!
He stood erect and with folded arms, near the rail of the steamer, and gazed out upon the lake in stern, majestic silence.
Presently the captain approached him and touched his arm.
"What is it, my good fellow?" he said, turning his head slowly and eying him from head to foot.
"Would you mind stepping over this way a little?" asked the captain, touching his hat.
"What for, my good fellow?"
"To trim the ship. You are giving it a decided list to port."

Depends.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright, 1903, By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

THERE are two ways of maintaining a monopoly. The one savoring of old world despotism owes its establishment and the continuance of its existence to superior force exercised by the government or the crown or their agents. The second is by means of a great commercial trust, which, securing possession through purchase of all lines of communication with the markets and with the seaboard, controls the industry in question and the trade resulting therefrom quite as effectively as if government authority were employed for the purpose.

Of the two methods the latter—that is to say, the monopoly by means of trust—is the least offensive to the democratic sentiments of the present day, and, realizing this, King Leopold is about to abolish all the monopolies, no matter by what name they may be described, which now hold the exclusive control of the Congo trade, and is turning over his entire interests in the Free State to a trust in which certain of his American friends predominate and which will manage and finance the entire affair. Owning the railroad already in existence as well as that in course of construction, and also the entire fleet of shipping on the Congo river, the trust will thus command the sole means of access to the Congo Free State markets, and the monopoly which it will be in a position to exercise will be quite as efficacious as those which have existed until now.

At the same time, the substitution of this Americo-Belgian trust in the place of the monopolies will relieve King Leopold of the principal charges which have been brought against him in connection with his administration of the Free State, and will not only put an end to the agitation now in progess against him in every corner of the civilized world but will likewise render unnecessary the action initiated by the English foreign office in deference to parliamentary pressure, and which, as I pointed out here the other day, is taking the form of a circular letter addressed to the various powers who signed the treaty of Berlin, which called the Congo Free State into existence and intrusted its sovereignty to King Leopold. This is the meaning of those mysterious stories now going the round of the European and American press to the effect that Leopold is on the eve of a coup which, entailing a radical change of the Congo policy, will completely disarm the enemies of the Free State.

It is to an American artist, August Benzinger, that belongs the credit of making the only portrait of Leo XIII. that could really be described as a likeness. The late pontiff, it may be remembered by those personally received by him in private audience, always wore large, old fashioned spectacles. With the exception of this portrait of Mr. Benzinger there is not one of the portraits of Leo that shows him with the spectacles, and without them he presented quite a different appearance. Mr. Benzinger's portrait, which is in water colors, is known as "Leo XIII. of the Spectacles," and copies made by the artist are in the possession of the king of Portugal, the widowed countess of Paris, the emperors of Germany and of Austria, and of several prelates of high degree.

In response to an inquiry which reaches me from a reader at St. Louis I would say that, while the domestic prelates appointed by the late pontiff retain their title of monsignore and their office, those divines who were "secret chamberlains" of Leo XIII. lose their title of monsignore and their office through the death of the pontiff who appointed them, unless continued in office by his successor. This same rule applies to the laymen who are honorary "chamberlains of the cape and sword," of whom there are quite a number in the United States.

In mentioning the other day in these letters that King Edward had issued a private notification to the effect that he would feel just as much honored by having the officers of his army and navy drink his health in water as in wine, and in alluding to the fact that the toast of "the king" is given at the mess table of every British man of war and of every regiment—save the Black Watch—each day throughout the year, I omitted to state that on board ship naval officers do not stand up to drink the sovereign's health, differing in this respect from their military comrades ashore.

The origin of this custom of remaining seated on such occasions dates back to the reign of King William IV., who, it may be remembered, was a sailor by profession. In those days the cabins were far less roomy, and the ceilings much lower on board ship than in these modern times, and King William, dining one day on board a battleship at Portsmouth, and noticing, although probably not for the first time, the difficulty which the officers experienced in rising all in a body to do honor to the toast of his health, directed that in future all naval officers should remain seated when "the king" was proposed.

Lord Leconfield, who entertained a large party at Portsmouth in connection with the Goodwood races, is far from being as rich as believed to be by the public. In fact, he has been considerably hampered since his accession to the title and to the estates of his father.

This is attributable to an unsuccessful attempt by the late peer to get the best of the revenue authorities. Like quite a number of other wealthy members of the upper house of parliament, he planned evasion of the terribly onerous succession duties, popularly known as "death duties," by transferring during his lifetime the bulk of his estates to his eldest son. The latter happened to predecease him, and the property thereupon returned to the late peer, who had to pay the full amount of the death duties as the heir of his son. When he in turn died, and the present Lord Leconfield, the second son, came into the honors and estates, the death duties amounting to something like a quarter of a million dollars had to be paid all over again, much to the satisfaction of the revenue officials, who naturally laughed in their sleeves.

The presence of the veterans of the papal zouaves at the various memorial services held in this country in honor of the late Pope Leo XIII. serves to recall to mind the homeric duel fought by their commander, the French baron de Charette, with an Italian officer at the battle of Castelfiardo. It was a single combat, which savored of the medieval ages, the opposing armies temporarily suspending the hostilities in order to watch the encounter, which resulted in the infliction by baron de Charette of a fatal wound upon his adversary, and it was not until the latter had been carried back into the Italian lines and cared for by the surgeons that the battle between the Italian forces and those of Pius IX. was begun.

The baron, who is married to an American woman, a Miss Polk of Tennessee, a member of the well known family of that name, which has furnished generals, divines, and statesmen to this country, has royal blood in his veins. For his mother was the morganatic daughter of the duc de Berry, and of his English wife, Amy Brown. The duc de Berry was the son of King Charles X. of France, but was murdered at the Paris opera by Louvel during the lifetime of his uncle, King Louis XVIII.

TO THE PORT OF DREAMS.

Now, where will we go
When the sun is low
And sending its dying gleams?
Ahoy! and a hail
For the spreading sail!
And now for the Port of Dreams.

And where is the Port of Dreams? you say.
It's there in the sleepy sea,
And far from the Land of Workaday
It beckons to you and me.
The Port we may see if we close our eyes—
It rests 'neath the silent moon
And breezes are whispering lullabies
That float from it in a croon.

So where will we go
When the sun is low
And purple with fading beams?
Ahoy for the ship
And the peaceful trip
After to the Port of Dreams.

But who is to guide us? you ask. That's true—
There's no one but you and I,
And we are the captain, and mate, and crew,
So steer by the sunset sky
To where drowsy poppies have closed one way,
And then as we sail along
A voice from the Land of the End of Day
Will chant us a sleepy song.

O, where will we go
When the sun is low
And lazy the whole world seems?
Our course we will run
By the westering sun
And into the Port of Dreams.

EXCITEMENT IN EVANSTON.

Linkum Stabbems Arrives and Takes Notes of the City's Wickedness.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 21.—Prof. Linkum Stabbems, the eminent magazine expert on corrupt cities, arrived in Evanston on a special train this morning and was met at the station by a brass band and Butler's hack line. He was escorted to the principal hotel and given the bridal suite. Every honor will be shown him during his stay here. The discovery of a municipal scandal in Evanston puts this classic city at once in the class of the first magnitude, and the enterprise of the publishers of McShure's Magazine in sending Mr. Stabbems here post haste is taken as due recognition of the merit of this city. Mr. Stabbems refuses to be interviewed, but it is hinted that he has already unearthed the real reason for the arrest of so many automobilists, as well as for the failure to abolish flat wheels on the street cars. In respect to him the groceries and meat markets are closed this afternoon.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 21, 7 p. m.—[Later.]—Mr. Linkum Stabbems has written half of his article on the scandal that has shaken Evanston from center to circumference. He will say that he has found something crooked in Ridge avenue, and will inquire wisely why the northernmost street here is called "Central," while "Main" street isn't the main street. Your correspondent found beneath Prof. Stabbems' window several crumpled sheets of paper on which Prof. Stabbems evidently had been drafting the headlines for his article. Some of the titles are:

"Evanston—City of Classic and Clique."
"Brains and Boodle."
"Evanston—Quiet and Queer."
"Evanston—The Town of the Taint and the 'Tisn't."
"Evanston—Beautiful but Bad—A Bower of Boodle."
"Evanston—On the Lake—But, on the Level?"

Prof. Stabbems was informed that there were some blind pigs in Evanston and remarked to your correspondent that in all cases of official wickedness he had observed that somebody got the pork.

UNTIL the races are over Sir Thomas is a jolly good fellow which nobody can deny(eod).

DO YOU REMEMBER THAT—

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO TODAY:

A score of American seamen were seized in the streets of London by British naval officials and forced to serve on British warships.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY:

Franz Joseph Gall, founder of phrenology, died in Paris.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY:

Pitro Bachi, a Sicilian exile implicated in Murat's attempt to reascend the throne of Naples in 1815, died at Harvard university, where he was employed as instructor.

FORTY YEARS AGO TODAY:

London sympathizers with American rebels were estimated to have lost $4,000,000 on rebel securities to that date.

Confederate currency was quoted at eight cents on the dollar.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY:

Peter H. Clarke of Cincinnati, in an address before a state conventon of Ohio negroes at Chillicothe, urged a national protest against the discrimination against negro labor and the treatment of negroes in hotels and railroad cars.

Cholera appeared at Columbus, O., one death being reported there.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY:

Henry George of New York, in testifying before a United States senate commission, declared the opportunities for workmen to become employers had practically disappeared in the United States because of the growth of monopoly.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY:

Daniel W. Voorhees of Indiana, chairman of the senate finance committee, opened the fight for free silver in the senate with a speech advocating the repeal of the Sherman purchase law and the creation of a state bank currency.

The West Point cadet ball was given at the Chicago world's fair.

SUPO had been in a state of health which had been causing worry for several weeks. Uncle Ned's complexion indicated that something serious was the matter with him. Poll also was in a perilous condition. Mandy had not been complaining exactly, but any one could tell that she was not feeling well. Mandy was the rubber doll that had been melted in the oven and she had never recovered fully from that accident.

Then Granfather Bill seemed to have rheumatism in his back and the two grandchildren, Red Bill and Blue Bill, had the whooping cough or the measles or some other infantile disease.

Something was wrong with every individual member of Miss Mike's family of ten, and in spite of the care she gave them they did not seem to improve. She put a new dress on Mandy, but it did not revive her spirits. She left Red Bill and Blue Bill out in the rain one night, but instead of benefiting them it actually made them look worse.

Therefore Miss Mike was worried. Father recommended that Grandfather Bill have his head taken off in an operation to see what was wrong inside. Miss Mike consented and father did the work with his penknife. When the baby saw the pitiful spectacle of Grandfather Bill in two pieces, still smiling, although his head was severed from his body, she broke down and wept bitterly. This brought mother to the scene.

"Why, Frank, what do you mean?" she exclaimed to the guilty surgeon. "Why, the idea of treating Grandfather Bill in that manner. Don't cry, baby. We'll put his head back on."

"We were just trying to find out what is the matter with grandpa," remonstrated father, trying to console Miss Mike. "We'll put his head back on, Mike. Come, see how easy we can put it back on. Why, he's still smiling at you."

Miss Mike took refuge in mother's arms and refused to be comforted by father, who had led her to sacrifice poor old Grandfather Bill on the operating table. Mother sewed the head back on so cleverly that you hardly could tell that it had been taken off. The baby consented to kiss father good-night, but it was evident that she had not forgiven him.

When she arose the next morning she had a vast plan within her head, but gave no indication of it. To have done so would have been fatal, as she fully appreciated. She seemed to have forgotten that the health of her numerous family had been a source of worry to her and also to have dropped all resentment against father for his part in the harrowing incident of the night before.

After father had gone and after mother had become deeply involved in household work, Miss Mike put her plan in execution. She collected Supo, Mandy, Poll, Grandfather Bill, Red Bill, and Blue Bill, Uncle Ned, and all the others, and put them in her red express wagon.

The method used by Miss Mike in naming the dolls never had been understood by father or mother. Why the rag baby should have been called Supo and what Supo meant was a mystery. To call the rubber baby Mandy seemed purely arbitrary and capricious. Red Bill was purple and Blue Bill was green, so that the color scheme did not appear to be perfect in their cases. No suggestions had been given her, but as rapidly as a new doll was added to the family it was given a name which seemed to come from Miss Mike's sense of the eternal fitness of things.

The family having been deposited and arranged in the wagon, Miss Mike pushed it over the top of the steps carefully and made preparations to follow. With a great clatter and bang the wagon went to the bottom with the baby tumbling after, but never losing hold of the wagon tongue. Grandfather Bill was landed on his injured head in the middle of the sidewalk and an impartial distribution of the other children was made about the immediate neighborhood.

Miss Mike picked them all up carefully and solicitously and refilled the wagon. Then with many wary glances back at the house she set forth. She traveled rapidly at first, running with the family bouncing about in the wagon behind her. Once a man stopped her to announce that Red Bill had been jolted out and was reposing face downwards on the pavement a half block behind. Miss Mike recovered him, and after making a careful examination to see that no bones had been broken spanked him for a naughty boy and put him back with instruction to hang on tightly the next time.

In this way she traveled blocks after blocks which were miles after miles to her. She entered a strange country where people stared curiously at her and her babies. Women occasionally stopped to kneel by her and ask her questions, laughing as she answered them. Once a little girl took hold of the wagon tongue with her and they traveled together, looking at each other shyly without talking. Then the little girl's mother ran after her and took her away just as they were getting acquainted.

But no one stopped her, and that was the great thing. She had no mind to be turned back until she had accomplished her purpose.

"Why, little girl, what are doing with all the babies?" asked a woman, kneeling beside her.

"They are sick," said Miss Mike, soberly. "They are sick and I take them to the park."

"O, they're sick, are they?" laughed the woman. "But you are not far from home, are you?"

"No," said Miss Mike, soberly, but she was afraid that was not the truth. She had an idea that home was a long ways off somewhere, but she would be able to find it after she had given the babies their airing. All she would have to do would be to go back the way she came, and that would be easy. Poor Supo already was showing the good results of the trip and Grandfather Bill smiled serenely. Evidently the air would do them good and mother would not care when she discovered how much benefit had resulted from the trip.

Presently she came to the park. She remembered it because mother and father had taken her there many times. She found a quiet spot on the grass in the shade of a bush and took all the babies out of the wagon, laying them in a row on their backs. She debated for a while as to whether they would be better in the sun or the shade, and decided to keep them in the shadow of the bush part of the time and in the sunlight part of the time.

This required a constant shifting of dolls and kept Miss Mike interested. Five were in the sun and five in the shade. Their temperature had to be observed carefully by touching their faces from time to time, and the transfer from one position to another made as it indicated the necessity.

For a long time this was done, and then Miss Mike decided that the children would like to see the animals. They were placed in the wagon again and the journey resumed. The baby trudged along for hours it seemed to her, but no animals could be found. The search was given up finally and Miss Mike began to realize that she was hungry.

No provision had been made against an occurrence of this kind, and the baby sat down on the grass again to think it over. Thinking did not seem to improve the outlook, and it began to appear that the excursion would come to an inglorious end all because she had forgotten to put something to eat in the wagon with the children.

A woman with a family of five children came and sat down in the shade of a tree near her. They evidently had not forgotten that eating is important. They had brought a large lunch basket from which the woman took out numerous appetizing looking viands and spread them on papers. Miss Mike took to watching these proceedings with great and sober interest. The woman saw her and noticed that she watched the lunch basket intently.

She said something to one of her children, a little girl. The child approached Miss Mike, and, taking her by the hand, led her to the family circle.

"Ain't you hungry, little girl?" asked the woman.

"Yes," said Miss Mike, honestly.

"The poor dear," said the woman. "Well, you just sit down and eat."

Not being bashful, Miss Mike accepted the invitation. She did not have a great deal to say, and the presence of a stranger made the other children quiet for a time, but before long they all were talking again, and Miss Mike, having been fed, brought her dolls to show the other little girls and explain how Supo, Mandy, Grandfather Bill, Red Bill, Blue Bill, Uncle Ned, and the others had suffered long and grievously.

After the woman had packed things back in the basket again the family got up to leave. They wanted Miss Mike to come with them, but she shook her head. The woman feared that she had been left there by some person who might call for her, being unable to discover by questioning Miss Mike the circumstances of her being in the park. Therefore, the family left, saying good-by to the baby.

Then she fell asleep on the grass with the dolls scattered about her. How long she slept she did not know. She was awakened by a park policeman, who raised her to her feet. She rubbed her eyes a minute and looked at him. Then she remembered an expression of dadee's and gravely asked the man:

"Am I pinched?"

He laughed as he raised her to his shoulders. "No," he said, "but I'm afraid you're lost."

Miss Mike saw that the policeman placed her babies back in the wagon and that he was pulling this behind him. Then she went to sleep on his shoulder. Several hours afterwards distracted mother and distracted dadee got possession of her again. And as dadee raised her in his arms she opened her still sleepy eyes and smiled.

"The babies is all cured," she said.

The Study Table

LITERARY COMMENT OF THE WEEK.

BRIEF OPINIONS ON HAPPENINGS IN THE BOOK WORLD.

SATURDAY, AUG. 22, 1903.

Tendencies in Fiction.

There is some evidence that the so-called historical novel is on the wane. The craze for fiction with a setting of history has tempted scores of American writers, sans everything but a typewriter and muscle, to rush in where angels heretofore have feared to tread, and to foist upon the public yarns which Ned Buntline, even in his most pressing need, would have scorned to write.

Most of these works have been nothing more nor less than the old dime novel of thirty years ago, amplified, printed in handsome style, well illustrated, and issued by publishers of more or less repute. It is doubtful if 10 per cent of these works would have been accepted by any reputable publisher a generation ago. Many of them read much as though they were but elaborated paraphrases of the orange colored novel our fathers whipped us for reading. It would be a good joke, if this were so even in one case, but it would be difficult to determine who the joke hit hardest, the publisher who accepted or the public which swallowed the tale.

There is also some evidence of a reaction in favor of a quieter novel of country life. Something of this significance lies in the reproduction of Bayard Taylor's "The Story of Kennett" by the Putnam's. This is one of the books which delighted all readers forty years ago, and the charm of which is not yet faded. The reaction from the strenuous reading of the pseudo-historical stylé to the bucolic quiet of Taylor's pastoral romance is radical, but it cannot but have a good effect upon the public.

Anachronism in Novels.

In the haste with which books are produced in this country at the present time it is little wonder that they go forth with all their imperfections on their heads, but this hurry of publishers has led to some grievous blunders that not only mar the reader's pleasure but make the book, author, and publisher a laughing stock. One wonders how the readers for some of the publishing houses can look a history in the face after letting such blunders go through.

It is only a few months ago since THE TRIBUNE called attention to a glaring error in a novel by a woman the sale of whose books must be in the first rank. She writes at least one novel a year. She presumably appeals to an intelligent public, and yet in her historical novel of old New York she makes the crowds on the streets in 1791 unite in singing the "Marseillaise" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

Now, is there a reader of THE TRIBUNE who does not know that the latter patriotic song was written almost a generation after the time of which the author writes? This is a small thing, and yet it is an anachronism which nothing will wipe out. The author might as well have had the crowds sing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," "Mr. Dooley," or "A Hot Time." What availeth it if your characters have revolutionary names and say "S'blood!" and "Damme," and you know no more about the time than to make them sing a song which was not written till twenty-three years afterward?

In two handsome volumes the Irwin press of Pittsburg has issued a reprint of "The History of Mr. John De Castro," a work of fiction which had some vogue in England in the beginning of the last century and which the publishers have thought worthy to be revived. Considerable pother is made over the authorship, but that seems to us unnecessary, for it makes little difference who wrote it, and the labor of reproducing the work appears to be thrown away.

It is true that there can be dug out of the pages of the "History" a fair idea of English country life at that period, but that life and its portrayal in this book is so hopelessly vulgar that the excavation is without profit. Stress is laid upon the Rabelaisan quality of the work. Aside from the questionable taste of this claim, it is not borne out by the book itself. Rabelais has been described, not inaptly, some think, as a "dirty old blackguard," but he had the old Gaulois wit which one can sometimes enjoy if his literary stomach is strong and he keeps constantly in mind the man and the audience for which he wrote. But there is not in these hundreds of pages a glimpse of the old French rascal's wit, pornographic though it was. That the pictures are true to life there is no doubt, for they describe the sort of things Rowlandson drew—Rowlandson, who so completely represented the awful vulgarity of the Georgian period. But fidelity to life does not excuse the deadly dull banality of the whole work.

Literary Fertility of Magazine Contributors.

The literary activity of some Americans is amazing. This is chiefly true of certain women writers. There is scarcely a month that from two to five magazines do not contain contributions from Theodosia Garrison, Ethel Watts Mumford, Beatrice Hanscom, E. L. Sabin, John Vance Cheney, Carolyn Wells, Arthur Stringer, Josephine Dodge Daskam, and several other well known authors. Some of these write verse entirely, but others seem equally at home in prose and verse and the magazine contents are studded with their names as contributors of poems, stories, essays, and plays.

Most of this work is surprisingly good, the invention is original, the wit effervescent, and the English well turned. We who toil at a paragraph, barren of ideas and produce phrases with the labor of a stump puller, stand in amaze at the constant flow of these contributions in the periodical press. The aggregate of a woman of Miss Wells' work in a year is enough to make quail the stoutest heart and shrivel the typewriter. Mrs. Wiggs twelvemonth she appeared in seventeen contributions to magazines, besides bringing out no less than nine books and doing some editorial work besides. And it was nearly all excellent reading at that.

Mary MacLane? Here She Is.

A few weeks ago we ventured to ask what had become of Mary MacLane, and, as if in answer to the query, comes the announcement by H. S. Stone & Co. that her new book, "My Friend, Annabel Lee," is about to appear. We have the author's word for it that it is made up "of reflections and impressions and sketches." She adds that the book is not quite like a diary, because there are no dates, but it is all in the first person. "It has a tinge of the first book, and it's a fascinating book, yet it relates to my friend Annabel Lee and me. It is more Annabel Lee than me. I take the part of a foil to my friend Annabel Lee. I take the part well. . . . The book is her conversation and some of mine. It is her ideas mostly." The names of some of the chapters are "Boston," "The Flat Surfaces of Things," "The Young-Books of Trowbridge," "When I Went to the Butte High School," "Minnie Maddern Fiske," "To Fall in Love," "A Lute with No Strings."

"I take the part well." There is no mistaking that assurance. This is the real thing from Butte.

On Advertising in England

If Popular Magazines Print Much They Lose Readers.

By JEANNETTE L. GILDER,
Editor of The Critic.

WHEN I see the things that might be done in the publishing line in London I wonder that they are not done, or I did wonder until a few days ago, when I had a chat with one of the most successful periodical publishers in England. I had looked at things from an American point of view; he gave me the English side and I bowed to his superior knowledge of the subject.

Between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 people live in London, so that one need not reach outside for readers if one happens to be the publisher of a magazine. London has countless newspapers and periodicals, none of the latter the best of their kind, though most are the worst—I mean commonplace—of their kind. You could not give away such weeklies as Pearson's, Tit-Bits, or Answers in America, and yet hundreds of thousands of English readers eagerly await their appearance on the news stands. There is no harm in them, but they are too infantile to appeal to American tastes, and yet they are perhaps the best, as they are certainly the most popular of the penny weeklies. These three are virtually unillustrated, an occasional line cut of rude workmanship hardly counting as an illustration. There are, however, penny illustrated weeklies, but their appearance would shame an American country newspaper office. They pretend to print half tones, but it would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer to tell one of their portraits from a map of the Irish coast. Between these atrocities and the sixpenny illustrated weeklies there is nothing. The daily papers, with one exception, and that exception proves the rule, are not illustrated, so if one wishes to see the portrait of a stage favorite or the hero of the hour one must not only wait till the end of the week—possibly longer—but pay sixpence (12 cents!) for the privilege.

I talked over this singular situation with a well known publisher, a man who owns more periodicals than our evening papers publish editions, and I learned many interesting things from him. "Why don't you publish a properly printed penny weekly illustrated with decently printed half tones?" I asked him. "For the simple reason that it wouldn't pay," was his reply.

"Not with 500,000 circulations, which is what some of your own papers have?"

"No; impossible. We have to make on the circulation."

"Where is the advertiser?" I asked.

My friend looked sadly at me. "He is in America; we don't have him in England."

"Not with your circulations?"

"We would not have the circulation if we had the advertising. Our subscribers won't have it. I know to my sorrow. I worked up a fine advertising patronage for one of my weeklies, but my readers said that it was out of all proportion to the, reading matter and the circulation fell off. It was the circulation that the advertisers wanted, so they dropped out.

"And the subscribers?"

"They all came back, and I was just where I began, less a good deal of money spent in working up the advertising. When I look at your American magazines my mouth waters. You can publish one magazine and make more money than we make with a dozen, thanks to your advertising. We have to publish a great many to make anything worth while."

"I thought that the English were a nation of advertisers," I remarked.

"Foreigners all think that, but they judge by the buses and the hordings. That is the beginning and the end of English advertising."

I reminded him that the penny (2 cent) papers carried a good deal of a certain sort of advertising, and his reply was that they could afford to because of their high price and comparatively small circulation, but the half penny papers could not afford the luxury. The Daily Mail, a half penny paper, is said to have a circulation of between 500,000 and 600,000. One Saturday, presumably a good advertising day, equivalent to our Sunday, I counted the columns of advertising in the Daily Mail. There were less than twenty-one. There would have been twenty-one pages of advertising in an American paper of the same circulation.

The English shopkeeper does not advertise, except in the 6 penny weekly fashion papers. Occasionally, when the summer or winter "sales" are on, he puts a small advertisement in a daily paper, but such advertising as is done by our leading dry goods houses or department stores is utterly unknown to him. Some day a man of enterprise will come to London, an American probably, and revolutionize the dry goods business as Mr. Yerkes has revolutionized travel with his "tuppenny tube."

It still remains for an American publisher to start a magazine in England. I should hardly advise one to try the experiment. American magazines are published in England, that is, English editions of American magazines are sold here, but it is merely as a matter of pride with the American publisher. The money gain is insignificant. I doubt if either Harpers, the Century, or Scribners circulate as many as 30,000 copies in England. A few American publishers have branch houses in London, but, again, I think it more a matter of pride than of money. Indeed, they often publish English books here that are not published by the New York house, and of late they are doing a large business in American books that are not published by the home concern. For instance, they publish in London "The House on the Hudson," published in America by Messrs. Scribner, and Mr. A. S. Hardy's "His Daughter First," brought out at home by Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. This is an admirable stroke of business on the part of Messrs. Harper.

A writer in the Daily Mail who signs himself "A Novelist," in an amiable article on the subject of the American book and its booming, argues that the English novel was the favorite in America until the Spanish-American war. As to the reason for this he is in the dark. Why this skirmish should have created a patriotic demand for American fiction is hard to define, but he thinks that it undoubtedly did so, adding "great deeds, it may be, called for great books." The "great deeds" may have called, but I hardly think that "great books" responded to the call.

On the subject of the "booms" in fiction "A Novelist" has this to say:

"The question is, Will this era of big booms last? Most Americans interested in literature, who have studied the subject, reply in the negative. It is, they allege, a phase, and will die out as suddenly as it arose. Already many guns have missed fire, and publishers are showing a nervous dread of what they call 'one book' men. It is interesting to remark that these one book men have injured also the better American author. The first class American novelist has suffered as much as his English confrère by the new development. He does not love it, and protests that it will not last. Likely not; but in the meantime the English author suffers the pinch, for, whereas once he had two audiences, now he has but one. His little day of sunshine is over; it is to be hoped he made all the hay he could while it lasted."

I cannot agree altogether with "A Novelist." The "little day of sunshine" is undoubtedly over for the rank and file of English novelists, but the commissioned officers have more sunshine (golden shekels) from America than from their own country. Ask Mrs. Humphry Ward, Dr. Conan Doyle, Mr. Kipling, or Mr. Barrie, or Mr. Hall Caine, and Miss Corelli about this.

Francis Adrian Van der Kemp.

A Good Biography of One of Our Revolutionary Friends.

By GEORGE C. HOWLAND,
Professor of Romance Languages, University of Chicago.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish the autobiography of "FRANCIS ADRIAN VAN DER KEMP," together with extracts from his correspondence, edited by Helen Linck-laen Fairchild. Van der Kemp was one of the earliest friends the United States of America had in Europe, and after a useful and honorable career in his native Netherlands the vicissitudes of fortune drove him to seek refuge in the country which he had befriended, and he died an American citizen.

Van der Kemp was born in 1752, of a well known Dutch family. While still a mere boy he enlisted in the regiment of which his father was an officer, but after a few years left the army to pursue his studies at the University of Groningen. His studies were more varied than in these days of premature specialization, and were such as to deserve the recognition of them later in life by the learned societies of Europe and the United States. De Witt Clinton called him in his old age "the most learned man in America."

Upon leaving the university Van der Kemp entered the ministry, and when John Adams visited Leyden in 1781 he was, as Adams wrote, "minister of the Mennonist congregation, the richest in Europe, in that city where he was celebrated as the most elegant writer in the Dutch language." But even in the pulpit he aimed, as he said, to make good citizens as well as good Christians, and after morning service was finished he used to place himself in uniform and aid in drilling a militia company. He left the ministry not long after Adams' visit and gave himself up to politics. His writings were of great importance, both in aid of the United States and in defense of the liberties of his own country.

The principles which he advocated ultimately triumphed, but for a time the opposition was too strong for him, and after suffering imprisonment and confiscation of most of his property he left Leyden for New York at the age of 36. Some 40,000 of the patriot party went into more or less voluntary exile at this time, and both France and America profited by the accession of Dutch blood, brains, and treasure.

The larger part of his life—the last forty-one years—Van der Kemp passed in the wilderness near Oneida lake. He strove actively to aid the development of his adopted country by the establishment of agricultural societies, by the early advocacy of a canal from the great lakes to the Mohawk, and by the encouragement of civilization and commerce. Harvard gave him the degree of LL. D. and he was elected an honorary member of the Phi Beta Kappa society. He carried on a correspondence with John Adams which ended only with the latter's death, and many other learned and patriotic men of his day were among his friends. Yet he was comparatively obscure, and the importance of this period of his life lies rather in showing what sterling material has gone into the making of the American people.

The editor has done his work well, and several excellent portraits and an index add to the value of the volume. The part that the Netherlands played in giving financial aid as well as moral support to the new republic is well brought out, and the record is one for every Dutch-American to be proud of, whether his ancestors were on the one side of the ocean or the other during the struggle for liberty.

The title of "CHEERFUL AMERICANS," by Charles Battell Loomis (Henry Holt & Co.) is a stroke of genius. The book is sanely American, and one of the cheeriest books published in a long time. It is a collection of stories reprinted from magazines through which they have been scattered during the last two years. It is a favor to the public to gather the stories into one volume. The humor is natural, the characters well drawn, and the style simple and unaffected. The author has the knack of seeing the funny side of things without making himself disagreeable to the unintentional funmakers. Even the Americans abroad, who are sketched in four of five of the stories, would laugh at this genial revelation of their failings.

The automobile stories, while distinctly original, suggest Stockton in their serious absurdity. Of the other tales the gems are probably "Veritable Quidors," a pathetic little story which ends in sunshine; and "The Men Who Swapped Languages," a marvel of condensation, humor, imagination, and sense.

Collectors of first editions will do well to get hold of Mr. Loomis' book. When he has written another volume or two like it we will treat him like the other immortal and drop the Mr. People will ask: "Have you read Loomis' latest?"

"MISSION METHODS IN MANCHURIA," by John Ross, D. D. (Fleming H. Revell company), while it appeals particularly to those interested in Presbyterian missions, has some interest for the general reader on account of the pictures it gives of Chinese life in that province. The author, for all his narrowness when treating of other bodies of Christians, shows a remarkable breadth of view in regard to the Chinese beliefs. Recognizing the good that there is in the native codes of morality, he insists that the writings of Confucius should form the basis of study in the mission schools, and that no one should undertake to convert the heathen who does not know what the heathen believes, who does not respect native rules of behavior, who is not, in short, sympathetic and well informed.

Another principle, which seems so self-evident that it is a matter for regret as well as wonder that it must be recorded as a novelty, is that the missionary should win the confidence of the people and avoid the adherence of selfish and hypocritical counterfeit converts by obeying the laws of the land and not relying upon foreign gunboats to prove him always in the right. The persecution of the church may be the test of its sincerity, while foreign intervention may rouse hatred and attract rogues.

With the omission of the attacks upon other forms of Christian belief the author would have produced a book that might have reached a larger public, but it is worthy the consideration of those whom the author especially addresses.

"ALAIN TANGER'S WIFE," by J. H. Yoxall (L. C. Page & Co.), is a story that possesses all the elements of the successful historical romance—real people, a real country, mystery, love, singing, and the flash of swords. The scene is France, favorite land of the romantic novelist, but not the France of Henry of Navarre or of the Grand Monarch. The year is 1899, the period of the Fashoda incident, and Maj. Groshaud in the fictitious world is the Maj. Marchand of history. Whoever remembers the day that Marchand came to Paris, when the approaches to the Gare de Lyon were filled for miles with Frenchmen singing the "Marseillaise" and shouting "Vive l'armie!" "Viva la France!" "Vive Marchand," ready for a moment, to put down the government, England, the world, will appreciate the part played by Maj. Groschaud in the calculations of the royalist and imperialist schemes of the romance.

But the chief interest in the novel lies not in the political intrigue, though that is an essential element, but in Alain Tanger's strange experiences. Lois, the passionless, and Bluette, the bewildering, between them drive the poor man almost frantic, and no wonder.

The author of the novel is an English member of parliament and this is his second story. His style is nervous, quick, picturesque. His diction at times gathers quaintness from the device of having the French characters speak an English which is a word for word translation of the idiomatic French they would have spoken in real life. Fortunately this is not a large enough portion of the dialogue to become wearisome, and the piquant flavor justifies the experiment.

The reader is plunged into mystery in the first chapter, and the dénouement is a genuine surprise. The author's ingenuity in planning the most extraordinary yet natural incidents is matched by his insight into the heart, and by the vividness of his descriptions. The result is one of the most successful attempts in recent fiction to throw over the present the glamour of the past.

GEORGE C. HOWLAND.

Miss Yonge's Heroes.

"The interesting note in a hero was no longer wickedness but goodness. That was the work which Guy Morville did for his generation." This is Miss Christabel Coleridge's summing up of the effect of the appearance of "The Heir of Redclyffe" upon the English public. It appeared just fifty years ago; and, as Miss Coleridge records in her volume on "Charlotte Mary Yonge: Her Life and Letters," "scholarly gentlemen wept over Guy's death," and "trying to be good was made interesting and romantic to thousands of good girls." Events were few in Miss Yonge's long life, but the personality reflected in these pages is in the highest degree delightful. As late as 1865, when Miss Yonge made a visit to Oxford, the enthusiasm for her among the undergraduates was surprising. The volume is illustrated with a number of beautiful photogravures, and contains Miss Yonge's autobiography (a fragment) and a selection from the best of her chatty letters to her friends.

Geography of Commerce.

John N. Tilden and Albert Clarke have written "A Geography of Commerce" (B. H. Sanborn & Co., Boston), a text book designed for academies, high schools, and business colleges, which in the present ascendency of commerce in our national life should find ready response in those it is designed to instruct. Among the excellent maps in the volume are those showing the world's resources, regions of grain, tobacco, sugar, cotton, minerals, commercial staples, and also the ocean cables, winds, etc.

Two Books on Dogs.

E. P. Anschutz of Philadelphia has compiled a handy little book, "Dogs: How to Care for Them in Health and Treat Them When Ill," which Boericke & Tafel publish. Conrad J. Miller has arranged a number of floating poems and prose articles on "Dogs of All Nations" (J. S. Ogilvie & Co.). Some of the matter is interesting, but much of it is poor trash. Lovers of the dog, however, will find plenty in it to justify the purchase of the book. Both volumes are illustrated.

Garden Books in Demand.

Garden books seem more in demand this spring than ever before. One of those most eagerly read since February is "A Woman's Hardy Garden," the circulation of which in two months and a half amounts to several times that eventually reached by the ordinarily successful novel. The special interest in this book probably arises from the circumstance that, almost alone among garden books, it gives specific and downright instructions to the amateur gardener for laying out her garden from the beginning in such a way that it will be a success. Most garden books, however, enjoy a steady sale the year round, this being specially true of Alice Morse Earle's "Old Time Gardens," Mrs. Mabel Osgood Wright's "Flowers and Ferns in Their Haunts," and Mrs. C. W. Earle's volumes of "Pot-Pourri from a Surrey Garden," besides, of course, the perennial "Garden of a Commuter's Wife."

BOOK GOSSIP IN LONDON.

Revival of the Publishing Trade in Edinburg One of the Features of the Week.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—If things are dull in the publishing world in London there seems to be plenty of activity in Edinburg. There has been of late quite a revival in the headquarters of the old publishing firms of Blackwood, Chambers, and Nelson, and they are being supplemented by the establishment in the northern capital of several new publishing houses. One D. Hay now is established in the picturesque old house in Hight street associated with the name of John Knox Sands. A London publisher has completed arrangements for beginning business in the central part of the city. George Morton, long business manager with Blackwoods, has opened premises just a few doors away from the famous office he so long has been connected with.

Jack London has another book that Isbister is to issue in the autumn. Some time ago he walked into their office, explained that he had been living three months in the east end of London to study life there. Then he took from his pocket a crumbled manuscript of his coming book, "The People of the Abyss."

Authors—even well known authors—make curious slips sometimes. In one novel just out the author has associated with the villain of the story another villain, a Hindoo, whom he calls Naoroji. It is just as if an English author were to call a North American Indian, Sioux or Iroquois, by a Mexican cognomen. No Hindoo that ever lived has been called Naoroji, which surely is a Parsee name, well known to Londoners by reason of its being the name of a former member of parliament for central Finsbury. He was a Parsee gentleman who resided in London for nearly forty years, and was widely respected. To take his name as a label for a particularly abominable, murderous Hindoo man, not of the Parsee race, is quite rough. This puts one in mind of a famous writer of a serial appearing in one of the illustrated weeklies who made a man with a Mahommedan name swear by Brahms.

A volume of essays on the subject, "Famous Lovers in French History," has been undertaken for publication by Chatto. It is by Paul Gaulot, and has been translated from the French by Dr. Charles Laroche. Gaulot says, though the papers may individually be devoted to distinct historical characters, they all show what love passions were in the eighteenth century. Moreover, they have a double interest of being studies alike in history and psychology. He adds that he has not introduced any romance other than what the heroes and heroines actually furnish themselves.

Frances Gerard has written the strange, checkered history of Milan, king of Servia, in a book which Hutchinson is to publish. She had nearly finished it before the tragedy which wiped out Milan's dynasty took place at Belgrade. Miss Gerard already is known for her book dealing with King Ludwig II. of Bavaria, whose life was also a curious story. The present volume, which has much to say of Queen Natalie, and something of King Alexander and Queen Draga, will be entitled "A King's Romance."

Although since his illness of a month or two ago George Meredith has made uninterrupted progress, being able to take open air exercise, his improvement received a check this week in consequence of which he again is confined to his bed, but it is stated there is no immediate cause for anxiety.

"Murdock" Not Rockefeller.

It is perhaps only natural that Mr. James Weber Linn's novel of college graduate life should have been thought by many to embody a fictional picture of John D. Rockefeller in the character of Murdock, the multi-millionaire picklemaker. Considering that Murdock in "The Chameleon" gives $10,000,000 to Colfax university, and by virtue of that gift undertakes to dictate its policy, and considering that Mr. Linn is a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, which Mr. Rockefeller has endowed, the inference is not surprising. A number of the newspapers have "discovered" that "Murdock" is Rockefeller. The fact is, however, that in the original draft of the story the millionaire was quite a different person, and his character and career so nearly paralleled those of a man prominent in a certain line of literature that the publishers persuaded Mr. Linn to alter and modify the picture. Under these circumstances it was a surprise to the author to find himself accused of satirizing Mr. Rockefeller as a millionaire who enriches a college financially and pauperizes it intellectually.

THE MILLS OF MAN

IVORY TRADER IN NORTH KENIA.

NOW that the seed of civilization has found its way into the soil of nearly every foot of the earth's surface, the remaining area of unexplored territory is small, indeed. But even now there are left to the seeker after adventure a few countries in which the bravest heart may thrill and quake with sensations quite akin to fear. Tibet remains almost untrodden by the feet of white men, and in Borneo and other and more remote islands in the south seas are regions full of unseen wonders and fearsome natives. Africa has furnished an enormous territory for exploration, but in the past three decades it has been pretty well opened up to white men. Yet the dark continent is not all a matter of ease and comfort to traverse, for around the towering peak of Mount Kenia clusters myriad adventure for him who may brave its dangers.

A. Arkell-Hardwick, a rugged young Englishman, has lately invaded east equatorial Africa, and has made a capital record of his experiences in "AN IVORY TRADER IN NORTH KENIA" (Longmans, Green & Co.), which is subtitled "the record of an expedition through Kikuyu to Galla-Land in east equatorial Africa, with an account of the Rendili and Burkeneji tribes." For the information of geographers it may be stated that the author's travels led him into the regions north of Kilimanjaro, south of Lake Rudolph, and around Mount Kenia, a country inhabited by savage tribes and hitherto seldom visited by white men. A few years ago William Astor Chanler, the rich young American explorer, penetrated it, but Mr. Hardwick and his companions succeeded in getting farther into the wilderness than any mere geographer or scientist. Ivory and adventure were the objects of their quest, and it is no exaggeration to say that they got both in abundant quantity.

Mr. Hardwick is an engineer, a mighty hunter, and an observer of everything worth mentioning, both from the scientific and purely descriptive standpoints. Besides being a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, he is gifted with an insight into ethnology, and the result of his observations as set down in this volume is worthy of a more careful attention than is accorded a mere tale of riotous adventure.

With a companion of like tastes and qualifications, Mr. Hardwick found himself in British east Africa. It was their plan to proceed to Uganda, there to secure employment in building launches or in construction of light harbor works. But at Nairobi he met a mysterious Englishman, who makes his home in the wilds and who figures under the name of El Hakim (Anglice, The Doctor). At the invitation of the latter the two young men joined in an expedition to plunge into the wilderness for ivory. Forty natives were armed and laden with the necessary equipment, and the party advanced, proceeding upon the assumption that they entered territory ultimately to be under the Union Jack. This, at least, may explain their lack of compunction in shooting hostile natives when the latter appeared as obstructions to their progress.

In a modest preface, the author admits that the implement of his choice is the rifle rather than the pen. This is undoubtedly the fact, but his style of narration is clear and direct, often fascinating in its rough picturesqueness. A saving bit of humor appears here and there amid scenes of blood, and once he relates a laughable incident. At a native embassy, where courtesy demanded some refreshment, he produced some strong cigars, which had been the despair of his comrades. How these weeds affected the natives, who tried to inhale the smoke as they would that of a cigaret, is excructingly funny; one after another passed the cigar to the next man, until the whole party had decorously marched out of camp and disappeared behind a clump of bushes to conquer their rising emotions.

No matter where the column halted or how sore was their plight, the leader was equal to the occasion:

"El Hakim seemed to have cattle and trade goods scattered all over North Kenia in charge of various natives. He had also a score or so of loads of brass, copper, and iron wire buried on the Waso Nyiro. I mentally likened El Hakim's head to Aladdin's lamp. If we wanted cattle or cloth or wire, El Hakim would, metaphorically speaking, rub his head, and lo! after a moment's cogitation, he would announce that buried in such and such a spot, a few days' march away, or in charge of such and such chief not far distant, were the identical articles we required."

Small wonder the expedition penetrated deeper than any of its predecessors.

Once the author's party joined in a punitive expedition against some natives who had massacred a Somali caravan. The enemy was alive to their coming, and ambushed them in the darkness. A Somali was speared through the body before the white men knew that danger impended, whereupon a friend of the murdered man thrust his shotgun against the side of an innocent lad and blew the boy to pieces on a suspicion of treachery. The ensuing description of the party lying in the jungle with the corpses until daylight, not daring to move, is enough to cause a prickly sensation about the roots of one's hair.

Rhinoceroses, hippopotami, and elephants all fell to Mr. Hardwick's aim, and his yarns of this Titanic sport are sufficient to stir the dormant blood of less ardent sportsmen. Once he encountered a charging rhinoceros while armed only with a .303 rifle, but the brute compelled him to fire. Badly scared, he pumped bullets into it until it fell, thus gaining the tremendous respect of his companions and the frightened natives.

It is with such things that the book teems. Surely no one could read exciting romance with such a record of facts available. The volume is illustrated with reproductions of photographs by the author.

Grant as a Novel Hero.

The swift success which has come to Churchill William's just published novel, "The Captain," is another demonstration that the story which draws its inspiration from American history and is written with regard to truth has, other things being equal, a larger and more enthusiastic audience awaiting it than any other form of fiction. There have been comparatively few such novels. "The Conqueror" might be named by some as one; "The Crisis" is a conspicuous instance. In each of these stories the actual environment of history has been preserved; in each there is an honest effort to vivify a distinguished American. Mrs. Atherton gave us a glowing portrait of Hamilton; Mr. Churchill a picture of Lincoln. In "The Captain" dominating a dramatic love story, is Grant, and the New York Times, in the course of an article upon the book and its treatment of the subject historically, declares it to be "a satisfying portrait of the brave, indomitable soldier who, in the reverence of every American heart, stands side by side with Abraham Lincoln."

The Tramp's Handbook.

This little book by Harry Roberts, the well known English writer on gardening and outdoor subjects, is a delightful guide to English vagabondage, and it makes one wish to cross over immediately and begin the life which he portrays in such a fascinating manner. After a delightful introduction he enters upon defense of vagabondage, describes the art of walking, the ass as a comrade, caravans and tents, concerning food, the roadside fire, roadside cookery, wild food, fruits and herbs of the hedgerow, mushrooms and truffles, night under the stars, weather wisdom, what o'clock is it? gives a list of books useful to the tramper, and a short vocabulary of Romany and travelers' cant. Mr. Pascoe's illustrations are rather crude. (John Lane, New York.)

Remembrances of Emerson.

John Albee has revised his book, "Remembrances of Emerson," and R. G. Cooke of New York has brought it out in a new edition, appropriate to the centenary. The contents are "A Day with Emerson," "Emerson's Influence on the Young Men of His Time," and "Emerson as an Essayist." It will be welcomed in its new form as a contribution to the literature which has grown around the philosopher and his work.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

FOR SEPTEMBER

THE WYOMING GAME STRONGHOLD. By Frederic Irland. One must see the extraordinary photographs that Mr. Irland has made of herds of elk at large to appreciate the full interest of this article. It describes a trip to a region south of the Yellowstone, recently visited by the President, and tells of adventures among the great game herds found there. Mr. Irland was especially fortunate with his camera and he presents in his article what will undoubtedly be pronounced the most remarkable photographs of wild game at short range that have ever been made.

TOM FOLIO. By Thomas Bailey Aldrich. A delightful and most sympathetic character study of one of the author's early acquaintances in the old Boston book shops.

EDITH WHARTON'S SERIAL, "Sanctuary." The second instalment of this fine story by one of the most accomplished and finished writers of our time. Illustrated by Walter Appleton Clark.

WORK AND PLAY OF THE MILITARY ATTACHÉS. By Captain T. Bentley Mott. Captain Mott is the American Military Attaché in France, and has enjoyed exceptional opportunities for becoming acquainted with both the military and social sides of French army life. He tells in the most entertaining way of the doings and pleasant relations enjoyed by the French army officers and the many foreign officers associated with them. The illustrations are from photographs by the author.

A NIGHT OUT. By F. Hopkinson Smith. An inimitable account of certain amusing adventures that befell the author during a recent lecture tour in the West. Illustrated by George Wright.

THE FLOWERING OF THE ELYSIAN FIELDS. By Beatrice Hanscom. A story of the cheerful struggle of a young artist and his wife in Paris to gain recognition, and of the way they finally achieved fame. Illustrated by W. Sherman Potts.

AT THE HIGH WATER. By Lucia Chamberlain. The dramatic and vivid story of a Western flood, by a new writer. The illustrations by Mr. Schoonover are exceptionally fine.

TODDYKINS. By Marguerite Merington. An amusing story of the adventures that befell two young women, a poet and a musician, in their quest for a suitable place to live and do their work. The illustrations are by George Wright.

SOME FAMOUS JUDGES. By Senator George F. Hoar. Senator Hoar presents in this article a full measure of entertaining reminiscence and anecdote of prominent members of the Bench with whom he has been associated in his long public career, lightened by his well-known humor and shrewd appreciation of personal character.

Some Novels of the Week.

Fiction by Mrs. Brookfield, Mrs. Reynolds, and Others.

By ELIA W. PEATTIE.

"THE DIARY OF A YEAR," "edited" by Mrs. Charles Brookfield, is a book which exudes femininity. It has what Mr. Yeats would term "that flitting incoherence" which is often a characteristic of woman's work, and which implies a caprice of thought, a wantonness of expression, a vague ideality, and an illusive bewitchment. Women as letter writers are seldom dull, unless they be ultra-respectable and domestic. "The Diary of a Year" was written by the potential author to a friend, and possesses therefore the qualities of a letter many times often interrupted and feverishly resumed. It tells the story of a year in the life of a woman of the world. She is probably an English woman of title. She is married to a heavy hunting young man who forgets to look after his wife until it is almost too late, and who comes to love her only at the moment when she has considered the possibility of sacrificing all claim on him and his protection. The woman has an episode, of course, and it is a curious one. A Hungarian baron makes love to her and she is carried away by his impetuosity. He begs her to meet him at a certain French village and to elope with him. She consents and goes to the tryst. She waits a week. The man does not come. Any one who wants to know why, may read the book "For the first time in the annals of crime," says the heroine in a night of confession, "the man did not come."

How the heroine won out of all this and got upon comparatively firm ground is a pretty bit of psychology. An engaging feminine fastidiousness takes the place of principles with this woman, but serves her in the end—ties the poor wayward vine to the trellis, as it were, and holds it there insecurely against storms of temptation.

The book is clever, of course. Not so clever by far, nor so passionate and significant as "As In a Looking Glass," which is of the same general order, but still sufficiently original to justify the lover of "the cheap art," as Henry James calls fiction, in the reading of it. Sometimes there is a foolish aphorism, as this:

"Repented! Of course he has—repentance always comes with ennui. It is a virtue invariably achieved at the expense of others."

But now and then there is a more sincere and noble witticism, as this, for example: "O, I will try, I will try hard, to be good and content—and ordinary! Ah! To be ordinary is a higher ambition than many suspect."—(L. C. Page & Co., Boston).

Mrs. Fred Reynolds tried a curious experiment when she wrote "THE MAN WITH THE WOODEN FACE." She contrived to avoid the use of names in denominating her characters. Not one possesses a patronymic. Not one has—so far as the reader can determine—visited the christening font. Her characters are the Little Teacher, the Man with the Wooden Face, the Brown Eyed Girl, the Artist, the Artist's wife, the Effective Girl, Ringlets, Mine Host, the Whitey Brown Woman, and so on. It grows tiresome, but has the one effect of making the reader see the characters humorously.

The story is that of a little London music teacher, who, after twenty years of drudgery, went on a vacation in the Welsh mountains and met a number of persons, one of whom eventually, after many days and sorrows, becomes her husband and gives her great joy, and an estate and title thrown in. It is a tender book at times, but foolish, and in no sense literature. It might be recommended to lonely governesses, who will be encouraged by thinking that, after all, something may happen. (Fox, Duffield & Co. New York).

"THE RED TRIANGLE," by Arthur Morrison, is a story or series of stories concerning Martin Hewitt, the investigator; or, as we would say in America, the detective. Martin Hewitt is certainly an astute, brave, and diverting man, from whom nothing appears to be hidden, and it is a brisk task to follow him through a day's work. It would not be true to say that Mr. Morrison is at his best in a tale of this sort, though he is ingenious enough to suit anybody. The author of "Tales of a Mean Street" is, however, neglecting his best power in devoting himself to work of the order of "The Red Triangle." He can do something better than astonish, and bewilder, and horrify. (L. C. Page & Co. Boston.)

Molly Elliot Seawell can tell a good tale and a dramatic one, and "THE GREAT SCOOP" is undeniably dramatic and almost more than good. It may be called goody goody. However, it is enjoyable, and no just reviewer, who has to go through many bady bady books, can object to a rare example of the goody goody kind.

The story is about a newspaper office and a lively and excellent office boy named Henshaw. Henshaw is Irish-American, and he means to arrive and eventually does. His brothers and sisters have the same desire, and they all pull hard and pull together, with results which are, thank heaven, often equaled in the real life about us in this country of many chances and more or less free field.

Miss Seawell has a style as direct and hearty, firm and clean as that of Mr. Harding Davis, and there is much the same sort of a wholesome, alive pleasure in reading her work that there is in reading his. This well got up little book will make a fine gift for a boy. (L. C. Page & Co., Boston.)

By the way, speaking of Mr. Davis, is it not amusing how the public turns and rends its heroes ever now and again? I have always been diverted—or, perhaps, that is the wrong word, and maybe I have always been annoyed—at the periodical attacks upon Mr. Davis. I think the worst thing he was ever really accused of, however, was lack of hypocrisy. He never pretended to know the things he did not know, and when he saw anything wonderful for the first time he cried out in frank delight. He never affected to be blasé, but was always genuinely surprised at surprising things and heartily delighted with beautiful ones, and he always liked the world and the paths and the people in it, and said so. Perhaps these characteristics have placed him among the writers for juveniles, but since we are all of us a little hurt and wounded at being forced out of that class, is he not rather to be congratulated than blamed, if he can keep in the paths of perpetual youth?

Kipling is horribly out of favor nowadays. Almost every one seems to be ashamed to speak a word for him. I read a good verse on that in the National Progress, a new Chicago magazine.

Here it is:

Dogs can see ghosts, they say; what better proof
Could certain critics have in their behoof—
Those who say Kipling's "dead"? Still, Kipling's word,
Today or yesterday, a nation stirred;
And yet he must be "dead," a specter dim,
Since Tray, Blanche, Sweetheart all do bark at him.

Miss Gilder reviewed at some length in this paper, from the proof sheets, Thomas Dixon's strong new novel, "The One Woman," and further remarks would be out of place save as a reminder that the author of "The Leopard's Spots" now has his second book upon the market. The tale is founded on the story of Henon, the socialist, whose consistency to his theories finally revolted even his most ardent followers. Mr. Dixon's purpose has been to show how socialism, introduced into modern life, will undermine the home and destroy integrity. But the "purpose" does not at any moment detract from the charm of the book, which is really a tumultuous love story. The characterization is fine, the men diverse and strong, the women fascinating, and the heroine one to remember, though she lacks somehow the reality of the other characters. Mr. Dixon is not a heedless worker. He has taken up his work with a sense of its responsibilities. He is not a great artist, but he has something definite to say and he says it in a lucid and graphic manner. Moreover, from first to last he holds the interest. (Doubleday & Page, New York.)

Helen Bradford Thompson, Ph. D., sometime fellow in the department of philosophy, the University of Chicago, now director of the psychological laboratory Mount Holyoke college, has issued a book entitled "THE MENTAL TRAITS OF SEX," the same being "an experimental investigation of the normal mind in men and women."

The experiments were made entirely or mostly at the University of Chicago, and the book is published by the University of Chicago press.

The capabilities of men and women tested by various methods are indicated by diagrams. Comparative investigations were made of the motor ability, of skin and muscle senses, of taste and smell, of hearing, of vision, and of the intellectual faculties. The Hipp chronoscope was used as a test for the motor powers, and the summary shows a higher development in motor ability in the male than in the female—more rapid movement, more accuracy of movement, less liability to fatigue.

The comparative examination of the skin and muscle senses was made by means of various instruments, showing that women have keener senses than men at least in most particulars. In taste men are found to have superior perceptions; in smell women rank above men. The examination in hearing has not been sufficiently extended to content Miss Thompson, but the results of her experimentation so far indicate a possible superior perception on the part of men of the lower sounds, and a superiority in pitch on the part of women. In vision men are better than women in brightness vision, and women better than men in color vision. The summary of experiments of intellectual faculty is vague. This summary may be of interest to the general reader:

"It is well established that women have better memories than men; they memorize more quickly and retain as well. The results of the various experiments on association do not agree as to either quantitative or qualitative differences of sex. The most trustworthy evidence goes to show that the process of association is more rapid in women than in men. As to qualitative differences, none of the methods employed seem to have thrown, or to be capable of throwing, any real light on this question. The experiments which have been performed to determine comparative ingenuity show the men superior to the women. There are indications, however, that mechanical training, which boys unquestionably receive to a greater extent than do girls, is an important factor in this result. In total amount of general information there is no difference between men and women who have taken the same course in education. The women are better informed in literary and the men in scientific subjects, but this is probably due to selection of studies and not to sex."

The real gist of the book lies in the concluding chapter, which is a brilliant psychological treatise. Miss Thompson has been so astute, so clever, and so discerning that, were she to pass her work on to Mrs. Edith Wharton and collaborate with her in the making of a psychological novel, written with scientific principles and irreproachable art, such as these two would be able to achieve by united effort, the result would be impressive indeed.

"There is nothing unknowable," says a modern philosophy, "there are merely some things which are as yet unknown." The soul of man appears to be one of these—if by the soul of man we mean the part which aspires, conspires, devises, mistakes, and arrives.

"TOWARD THE RISING SUN" is a book of travels in Asia Minor, Greece, Egypt, Ceylon, and central India by a Chicago man, Sigmund Krausz. Mr. Krausz printed his impressions of these far lands in German and English dailies, and has now caused them to be reproduced in book form. He is an interested and interesting traveler, who has a sense of humor as well as an appreciation of the beautiful and the curious. He has no affectations whatever, but brings a well stored mind to bear in a direct and practical manner upon all he sees. A kindly, catholic, and open mind appears to have guided the traveler and caused him to behold all manner of men with curious and brotherly eyes. Photographs of the author's taking have evidently supplied the originals for the many halftones which sometimes ornament and sometimes detract from the book. As a piece of mechanism the book is a poor one, with a cheap cover, heavy glazed paper, and poor printing. (Laird & Lee, Chicago.)

KRISHNA OR CHRIST.

A Study of India's Problem, by J. P. Jones, D. D.

"INDIA'S PROBLEM: KRISHNA OR CHRIST," by John P. Jones, D. D. (Fleming H. Revell company), is a brilliantly successful book. Its grasp and clear mastery of its great theme is remarkable. As a study of the Indian empire of today it is no whit behind Mr. Bryce's famous "American Commonwealth." In certain respects it is a profounder and more masterful study than that by our English friend and observer. The point of view is equally above all personal antipathies. He looks at the vast and so strongly complicated situation broadly, with a total comprehension and with that intimacy of knowledge that can only come of scholarly studies combined with many years of close observation.

Mr. Jones has been a missionary of the American board for many years. The substance of the volume was given in a series of lectures at several theological seminaries, at Andover, Yale, and Hartford.

The special subjects are: "The Land and the People," "The Religions of India," "Hinduism and Christianity Contrasted," "The Products of the Two Faiths," "The History of Christian Effort in India," "Present Day Missionary Problems and Missionary Results."

The people of India, by the census of ten years ago, number 291,236,000—about one-fifth of the inhabitants of the globe. Not less than seventy different languages are spoken by them. In its extent of railroad India is the fifth country in the world. No other country has so extensive a system of irrigation, giving fertility to nearly 14,000,000 acres.

"With a population greater than that of the five great powers of Europe put together, with a revenue exceeding $350,000,000, with a foreign commerce exceeding $768,000,000, with a standing army of 2,300,000, more than two-thirds of which are native soldiers, with a code of laws in many respects superior to those found on the statute books of European countries, and with courts of justice as impartial and as faithfully conducted as any to be found in the world, India may well claim a place among the great empires of the present era." How on the whole the British government administers this vast empire is set forth with sympathetic clearness and appreciation.

As an intelligent and really illuminating contribution toward a comparative study of races, nationality, and religions this book will be found of signal value.

MILK SUPPLY IS BETTER.

INSPECTORS FIND THERE IS LITTLE ADULTERATION.

Record for the Last Week Shows the City Is Now Receiving an Excellent Grade of the Fluid—White Clover Causes Rapid Souring—Many Physicians Eager to Become Municipal Inspectors—Dr. Jaques to Name His Ten Next Monday.

Inspection of the milk shipped into Chicago showed a decided improvement. Samples were taken from many of the sixty-seven depots at which the milk is delivered, and little trace of watering was found. T. F. Grady, chief inspector of the health department, believes that the farmers have profited by the agitation being conducted by the city and state health authorities. The record for the last week also shows an improvement. The analysis of 724 samples indicated an average of 4.5 per cent below grade.

"For a great city like Chicago," Inspector Grady said, "that is a pretty good showing. Anything better than 7 per cent below grade means milk better than is used in most large cities.

Why Milk Sours Quickly.

"Milk sours more quickly than during the last seventeen years, making this, in one respect, and exceptionally trying season. The cause is found in the widespread growth of white clover. The milk from cows that feed on it is heavy with sugar, and it ferments readily."

The ten additional milk inspectors will be named by Dr. W. K. Jaques on Monday and will begin work at once. The first applicant for a position was a veternarian, J. R. Kelso, 837 Webster avenue. He was followed by S. Jokubowski, 451 Larrabee street, and George Nasslich, 932 Park avenue.

Many Doctors Want Positions.

"It is surprising how many competent physicians want places," Dr. Jaques said, "although the pay will not exceed $50 a month. When I went home last night an interne from the county hospital was waiting for me on my doorstep, and he is believed to be one of the fortunate young graduates."

R. M. Patterson of the state food commission reports that the six inspectors in his department are engaged in studying the conditions of the production of Chicago's milk supply.

"Next week," he said, "we will be able to tell where adulterations are added."

Mr. Patterson had a conference with Charles R. Lott, president of the National Association of Retail Grocers; C. H. Tibbits, president of the state association; and S. Westerfield, president of the Chicago association, in regard to safeguards for new butter against "renovated" or "process" butter.

EVENTS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY.

Wedding of Miss Alice Cleveland Judson to Mr. Gordon Jennings Laing Tonight.

A wedding this evening of more than usual interest is that of Miss Alice Cleveland Judson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, to Mr. Gordon Jennings Laing. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock at the Church of the Redeemer, the Rev. Robert Morris Kemp of Trinity parish, New York, a cousin of the bride, officiating.

The maid of honor will be Miss Priscilla Grace Gilbert, and there will be three bridesmaids, Miss Davida Harper, Miss Janet Gilfillan of Minneapolis, and Miss Louise Dodge of Dixon, Ill. Mr. John M. Laing, brother of the groom, will act as best man. The ushers will be Prof. R. F. Harper, Dr. Ralph N. Webster, Mr. Charles S. Eaton, and Mr. A. L. Underhill of Bath, N. Y.

A small reception will follow the church service at 9 o'clock at the family residence, 5765 Washington avenue.

Another wedding attracting the attention of Chicagoans is that of Miss Isabella G. Carpenter, daughter of the late A. V. H. Carpenter, to Mr. George Kendall, which takes place today at the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Earling at Oconomowoc. Miss Carpenter is secretary to Third Vice President J. H. Hiland of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. Mr. Earling was a close friend of Miss Carpenter's father and asked that the couple be married at his country house. The ceremony will be performed at noon in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Pierce of 1067 Wilson avenue will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage on Monday, Aug. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kenneth Mackenzie of 2614 Indiana avenue returned to Chicago yesterday from abroad. They will leave today for the summer residence of Mrs. Mackenzie's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clinton Locke, at Wequetonsing, Mich.

Dr. Frank Billings is entertaining Dr. and Mrs. George H. Simmons at his Mackinac house.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clarkson are at home after several weeks' outing at Oregon, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Hildreth of 2022 Indiana avenue will leave tomorrow for New York and Seabright.

Mrs. W. W. Keith of 1904 Prairie avenue is at Narragansett Pier.

Mr. and Mrs. George Walker of Oak Park have returned from Lake Geneva.

Mr. W. D. Cooper of the Chicago Beach hotel sails today on the Celtic for a six weeks' tour through France and Germany.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter and Mrs. Jack Winterbotham entertained the visiting nurses at a supper on the beach at their summer residence at Glencoe Thursday evening.

KIDNAPER SENT TO PRISON.

Hazel Avery Given Three Years for Taking Alice Furlong—Two Held in Larkin Case.

Hazel Avery, kidnaper of little Alice Furlong, was sentenced to the penitentiary for three years yesterday by Judge McEwen.

"You are a harmless woman," Judge McEwen said. "Having no children of your own, and, perhaps, filled with the love that dominates a woman, and of which a man cannot conceive, you carried away the little girl. Mentally or morally, there would be no change worked in you by a sentence of one day in jail or forty years in the penitentiary, but the world must be shown that children are protected. You are ordered to the penitentiary for three years."

Patrick Kennedy and his wife, Emma, were held to the grand jury by Justice Chott yesterday on charges of being implicated in the disappearance of Annie Larkin.

NEW RECORD IN NASTURTIUMS.

Mrs. Zelma L. Brown of Highland Park Has Plant with Largest Leaves Reported.

Competition among nasturtium raisers is growing keener than among big pumpkin raisers at a county fair. Mrs. C. F. Alward, 238 Watt street, raised nasturtiums, with leaves six inches across, and mentioned the fact. Then came others whose plants had grown larger leaves, and yesterday Mrs. Zelma L. Brown of Highland Park raised them all. She sent to THE TRIBUNE leaves of nasturtium plants that were nearly eight inches in diameter and twenty-three and one-half inches in circumference. So far Highland Park leads.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

The prosperity of a nation depends upon the health and morals of its citizens; and the health and morals of a people depend mainly upon the food they eat and the homes they live in. Ellen H. Richards.

LESSON NO. 22—Food for Invalids.

TEXT—"She is a wisdom in this beyond the rules of physic."

It has been said that about two-thirds of all diseases are brought about by error of diet. Hence the importance of the housewife's understanding of the composition of the different foods, their digestion, and the proper methods of cooking such. If a member of the family become ill, is it not doubly important that the nurse should understand correct proportions of food principles and the best methods of preparing different kinds of food, and what foods to use in different forms of disease? Absorption and elimination must be understood by the nurse.

Physicians agree that the proper preparation of food for the sick does as much toward the restoration of health as the use of drugs. The manner of serving is also of great importance. Let everything prepared for the patient be arranged to please both eye and palate. Consider carefully the arrangement of the tray, using a spotless tray cloth, selecting the prettiest of the china, the nicest of the silver, and placing both china and silver with regard to the convenience of your patient. A bright flower always pleases the invalid. Avoid having too many things on the tray at one time, and never serve more than the patient requires—rather serve a little less. Every care should be taken to have hot foods served hot and cold foods cold. If the invalid is restricted to a certain diet, vary it by serving the food prepared in different ways, also varying the china.

Remove the tray as soon as the meal is over and, if any solid food remains, burn it and dispose of the liquids. Dishes used by patients with contagious diseases must be disinfected.

In acute stages of illness there is rarely any call for other than liquid food, then soft diet, and last the solids—the principal diet for convalescence.

To the first class belong the cereal and fruit waters, beef juice and tea, broths, milk, eggnogs, etc. Barley and rice water are both astringents and used to reduce a laxative condition.

The following table shows the merit in respect to proximate principles of a few of the cereals:

Proteids.	Fats.	Starch.	Salts.
Wheat,	Oats,	Rice,	Barley,
Barley,	Maize,	Maize,	Oats,
Rye,	Barley,	Wheat,	Wheat,
Oats,	Rye,	Rye,	Rye,
Maize,	Wheat,	Oats,	Maize,
Rice.	Rice.	Barley.	Rice.

The fruit waters are principally used for fever patients. The effect is cooling, and they assist in elimination. The lemonade and orangeade made with the syrup are much more delicious than the ordinary lemonade and orangeade.

Lemonade.—One tablespoon lemon juice, two tablespoons sirup, one-half cup water. Make sirup by boiling eight minutes one cup of water and one-half cup of sugar. Then mix ingredients in order given—soda water, apollinaris, or seltzer may be used.

Orangeade.—Juice one orange, one and a half tablespoons sirup, one-quarter cup water, two tablespoons crushed ice. To orange juice add sirup (use less sirup if orange is very sweet), then water, and pour over ice.

A simple way to make acid drinks when fresh fruits are not in season is to stir one tablespoon of any acid, jelly, or fruit sirup into one cup of iced water.

Flaxseed lemonade is soothing in cases of colds. Beef juice, being nutritious, is given when a condensed form of food is necessary, but beef tea has little, if any, nutriment, and is given more as a stimulant or when a large quantity of water is required. The eggnogs are of value after a wasting disease, when a large amount of nutriment is required daily.

Soft diet includes the gruels, custards, etc. In the making of gruels a thorough cooking is necessary, for starch in a raw state is indigestible and causes fermentation. In making the gruels always have the water boiling and gently drop in the cereal. The oatmeal or cornmeal gruels are too heating to use in cases of gout or when an inflammatory condition is present, but rather when there is a deficiency of natural warmth. Barley gruel is delicious, contains mucilage, and is soothing and refreshing in fever and gastric inflammation. Arrowroot gruel is delicate and the starch in that form is easily digested, but should never be given to infants.

Few people realize that a child up to the age of about 4 months has not the ptyalin in the saliva to digest starch. The cracker and flour gruels help to make a variety of gruels and will assist in reducing a laxative condition. When the critical time in the disease has passed and the patient is convalescent, solid foods comprise the principal diet. At this time the skill and patience of the nurse is taxed to the utmost. Foods must be given that are not only nutritious but easy of assimilation. A nicely broiled chop served between hot plates or properly cooked egg served in a hot glass means so much.

Household Hints.

Ice Cream Season—

"I always thought cold victuals nice;
My choice would be vanilla ice."
—O. W. Holmes.

Vanilla Ice Cream.—Breathes there an American with soul (or body) so dead that he can endure a summer without ice cream and much of it? The palm of popularity belongs to cherried vanilla ice cream. Put on to boil one quart rich milk. While boiling stir six eggs with one scant cupful sugar until light, stir in the boiling milk, and when mixed put back on the stove in a double boiler, stir until the custard thickens, then remove from the fire and let it get cold. When cold add one tablespoonful vanilla and a tiny nip of salt. Beat one pint or one quart, the more the better, of rich cream with just enough powdered sugar to sweeten, add one teaspoonful vanilla, beat until it thickens, then add it to the cold custard and freeze. A few moments before it is frozen add one cupful Maraschino cherries, either whole or chopped. This cream is the foundation of any other cream, with the others using the different flavorings.

Nougat Ice Cream.—This is particularly rich. Brown one and one-half cupfuls sugar and one cupful blanched almonds in a saucepan on the stove; when sugar is dissolved and becomes brown as well as the almonds, pour into a greased platter to cool. When cold pound and roll exceedingly fine. Whip one quart cream stiff, sweeten with one-half cupful sugar, add browned sugar, and freeze hard.

Biscuit Tortoni.—This dainty of dainties is made by mixing one-half pound grated macaroons with yolk of one egg and one-half cupful sugar. Then add one pint stiffly beaten cream, stirring slightly, and flavor with vanilla to taste. Put whole in pudding mold with a tight cover, pack a box with rock salt and lump ice, place mold in and cover with ice. Let stand and freeze four hours.

Italian Ice Cream.—This is worthy the fastidious cooks who created it, and is made by whipping one quart cream stiff, sweetening with one and one-half cupfuls sugar and putting in a freezer. When half frozen add juice and grated peel of two lemons and two tablespoonfuls brandy if liked. Freeze, and when nearly frozen add Maraschino cherries.

Diplomat Cream.—This is delicious when concocted of one quart of cream whipped extremely stiff. To this is added one-half cupful sugar, one teaspoonful vanilla, one-fourth pound Angelica, chopped, and one-fourth pound seedless raisins. Put in mold and pack away in salt and ice for three hours.

Armed at All Points—

Is the prudent household when housing an invalid with an infectious disease.

Every one who enters the sickroom wears a wash dress during the whole illness, and before coming into contact with the rest of the family washes and changes her garments and then resumes the cotton gown before reentering the sickroom.

The sickroom has a sheet soaked in carbolic lotion hung outside the door. All the windows in the hallways are kept open, and food and other articles needed in the room are placed outside for those within to get, and are not handed in indiscriminately by others.

All the bed and personal linen of the patient are soaked in a disinfectant for several hours and then hung out in the open for forty-eight hours before being sent to the wash.

Every article used in the room is disinfected before being used elsewhere. Books and papers are mostly burned.

For disinfecting the room half a teaspoonful of black oxide of manganese and two teaspoonfuls of common salt, placed in a saucer in the middle of the room, are efficacious. Over this mixture a few drops of sulphuric acid are poured.

Before arranging this disinfectant all windows in the room are pasted up, and all drawers and closets are opened.

After setting the sulphuric acid the room is vacated and the cracks and the keyhole are pasted up from outside. In twenty-four hours the room is entered without closing the door until the windows have been thrown wide open.

In another twenty-four hours it is thoroughly cleansed with soap and water. Be exceedingly careful in the use of the sulphuric acid and proceed under the doctor's direction.

Have You Seen—

The Summer Shoes of Straw.—They are taking the place of the canvas shoe for deck and other outing wear. Hat straw is used in their making, ribbed upward from the toe to lend a slender aspect to the foot. White kid outlines the deep vamp and borders the front and brown leather forms the thin sole and low heel. Their creamy primrose tint strikes a new note in footwear.

The New Handbag.—It is a wrist bag of suede with leather lining. It is closed by tucking in the sides like the top of a sugar bag to meet in mitered points, which snap together with little fasteners. The handle strap snaps together round the wrist also, so that it never falls over upon the hand.

The Seaside Opera Glass.—This comes in a doeskin case with art nouveau design in silver enamel and hangs by little golden case upon the overcrowded chatelaine, folded almost flat, and contains in addition to the opera glass a purse, card case, and tiny silver pencil.

The Ladies' Monocle.—It is mounted upon a thin gold wire rim and hanging by a chain from a plain gold ring at the other end. The stick is artistically modeled and of dull gold, and—tell it not in Gath—the glass itself is often absolutely plain.

The Writing Table Washstand.—It is an escritoire inclosing a washstand and dressing table. The desk is fitted inside with a sunk trough in which a basin, soap dish, and the usual etceteras of the toilet find their place, while fixed in the underside of the lid is a looking glass, the crowning necessity.

The Flat Necessaire.—This is made of gold and contains coin purse, pin holder, stamp box, and a baker's dozen of other adjuncts for enhancing twentieth century beauty. In some of its variations it offers an outfit sufficient for an actress on a tour, with sticks of rouge and eyelash pencils, powder puff, and mirror.

The Wing Shaped Fan.—Its outspread pinions have flown into dizzy heights of favor. Not the ostrich, the marabout, nor other fluffy featherings, but the smooth, glistening plumage of the peacock, the jay, the guinea fowl, the partridge, and the seagull fashion this pet of fans into a double spread eagle pattern. It is especially fascinating in the delicate soft gray and pretty white tones of the seagull. A peculiar gray pearl is seen as the frame or sticks of the seagull fan, while the ordinary mother of pearl, tortoise shell, and fine ivory inlaid with gold becomes the setting for the darker and more brilliant hues of the other plumage.

The Blossom Parasol.—It is made of tulle with artificial roses, corn flowers, apple blossoms, or violets dotted daintily about it in a full embroidery that looks as though a shower of blooms had fallen upon the top. The handle is of dull gold, with a bunch of posies to match those on the top.

The Deft Seamstress—

Finds it more practical and neater, also better for the sewing in of dress shields, to make two plain under blouses of white wash silk with either loose three-quarter sleeves simply hemmed on the bottom or a longer sleeve with a narrow wrist band that buttons tight.

She places bone casings in the side seams and in the darts of these shirts, from which the bones are slipped when the shirts are washed.

She uses these undershirts instead of blouse linings, and in the midsummer makes them with low neck and sleeves only long enough to hold the shields.

For persons who perspire between the shoulders when playing golf and the like she wisely bastes a piece of thin flannel or thin stockinette in the shirt, which keeps the outside shirt, when colored, from ruin.

She buttons the outer shirt with minute buttons an inch apart, which keep the blouse flat in front and tight.

She fits the shoulders carefully and slips the sleeve in at the most becoming angle.

She fastens the blouse with a narrow band of the same material attached to the blouse as far as the side seams, leaving the front loose. Over the loose front the band buckles with a small brass buckle, which is removed when the blouse is washed.

She sews on the back of this band three eyes and sews corresponding hooks on the bands of the skirts that are worn with the blouse.

PANAMA CANAL QUESTION

CONFLICTING OPINIONS OF THE READERS OF "THE TRIBUNE."

Some Advance the Argument That the United States Would Be Justified in Completing the Work Without the Consent of the Colombian Government—Others Favor Cautious Action and One Man Champions the Nicaragua Route.

In response to THE TRIBUNE's invitation of Thursday morning for opinions upon the advisability of building the Panama canal without the consent of the Colombian government, the following letters have been received.

Suggests Summary Action.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The United States should send its engineers to the isthmus and direct them to cut through it forthwith. At the same time the state department should notify Colombia that there was deposited to its credit in a well established, preferably foreign, bank $10,000,000. A quarter of a million additional should be deposited each succeeding year. The United States should not exercise sovereignty or interfere with local authorities in the isthmus, but should protect its engineers from harm. H. L. HOFFHEIMER.

Fears Result of Hasty Action.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If we should go ahead and cut the canal without the consent of Colombia and "for the good of the civilized world" would it not be a good precedent for some nation stronger than ours (England for example) to cut something here without our consent "for the good of the civilized world?" ONE READER.

Thinks Seizure Is Justifiable.

Berwyn, Ill., Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Replying to your request for opinions regarding the advisability of the United States building the Panama canal without the consent of Colombia if that country will not agree to the reasonable terms offered, I wish to say that I think the United States is perfectly justified in seizing the isthmus if necessary and going ahead with this work. No little revolution ridden country should be allowed to interfere in a work which will be beneficial to the whole world and which is also necessary for the defense of the United States and incidentally for Colombia herself. If the United States should take this course it would likely be disliked by other nations in South America, but we will survive their dislike, and when they are threatened by some European nation they will swallow any hatred they bear us and call for help quickly indeed. We can much better afford to spend $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 in seizing the isthmus than to pay it out for a canal in the Nicaragua route and run the risk of it being destroyed by an earthquake at the time perhaps when we will need it the most. W. H. COLTON.

Favors Nicaragua Route.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In reply to your invitation for the expression of opinions concerning the isthmian canal, I would like to say it seems to me that we now have an opportunity to retrieve a mistake and to get back to the better route for a canal—Nicaragua. All of the claims in favor of Nicaragua—superior location, absence of engineering difficulties, and greater healthfulness—can be easily substantiated, and their accuracy is well known to persons who have looked into the matter. Like many better informed persons, it seems to me that the move from Nicaragua, which has always been preferred by engineers, to Panama, with its difficulties and embarrassments, was a well planned effort both to unload on the United States a doubtful enterprise and to effectually prevent the building of an isthmian canal. And the president should now return to the Nicaragua route. C. P. TREAT.

Calls Colombians Grafters.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read with great interest your editorial in this morning's issue touching the canal question. I have long been in favor of building the canal with force, if necessary. As you say, it might be done by a species of international eminent domain, though no such doctrine is recognized by the law of nations. But it is not permissible for this miserable little oligarchy to impede the commerce of the world, simply to sandbag us. Of the four millions of inhabitants of Colombia probably nine-tenths of them never heard of the canal, and if they ever should hear of it they would not care a coffee grain about it one way or the other. It is an oligarchy of "graft"; it is run by less than 100 men and the army. If we should give $50,000,000 the mass of the people would not be benefited 1 cent. On the other hand, if we build the canal all the Colombians will receive some good. The base ingratitude of these grafters, few in number, who control the situation, merits some rebuke. By the foolish so-called Monroe doctrine we have preserved their existence, yet they now turn on us. It is a solemn truth that Americans are more hated by them than the citizens of any other nation. I say, build the canal. FRANK P. BLAIR.

Calls for Annexation.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The present status, so far as understood in this country, of the isthmian canal undertaking neither requires that our government complete pending negotiations with Costa Rica and Nicaragua, nor that it go ahead and cut the isthmus via Panama without the consent of Colombia. The opportunity is afforded to review the entire subject and to consider whether or not some proposition different from any yet presented may not be best for our interests. Under present negotiations the canal, whichever route is adopted, must go into operation as a neutral canal. With our people this has never been an entirely satisfactory proposition. A solution that would be satisfactory, at least to the people of the United States, is the construction of both canals after Nicaragua and Costa Rica shall have voluntarily annexed themselves to the United States. The Nicaragua canal would then be as absolutely under the control of our government as any other of our internal waterways. The Panama canal, whether built at the same time or earlier or later, should be neutral, and all nations should be invited to join in its construction and control. If Colombia obstructed this joint construction and control the difficulty could be removed, without complications, by all the other nations in interest acting together for the general good. C. L. GOULD.

Await Panama's Independence.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—As the affair stands at present, were the power to act delegated to the writer by the United States government he would wait until the state of Panama, which was once independent and joined with other states to form the United States of Colombia, and the breath of whose life is the canal, because of the injustice done her in refusing her so essential a right, resumed her independence, which would at once be recognized and negotiations begun on a fair basis. Negotiating with a new, independent nation, free from all treaties and contracts, the United States would escape the $40,000,000 payment to the French company for a failure loaded down with the uncontrollable Chagres river, also the $10,000,000 which if paid to the Colombian government was to have been shoved down in the pockets of the present incumbents of the offices. Thus in those two items alone one-half the entire cost of a canal built at the proper place would be saved for the actual building of the canal. Then obtaining the right from the state of Panama by conferring on her the great boon of a canal fitted for the world's commerce, the United States would build a sea level canal by the shortest possible route—that at San Blas, which has a perfect harbor at one end and a navigable river at the other, on which the length of tunnel has been now reduced to some five miles—a mere bagatelle. N. W. BLISS.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The attitude of the Colombian government in the canal business reminds one strongly of the old fable of the dog in the manger. It has always seemed to the writer that the horse would have been perfectly justified in lifting that dog out of the manger by the skin of his back, and that the only reason he did not do so was because he was a cowardly, mean spirited horse. BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

In Gouty, Rheumatic and Renal Affections.

These Physicians Have Used It Personally and in Practice:

Dr. Charles B. Nancrede, Professor of Surgery, Medical Department, University of Michigan: "I have used it with undoubted advantage in my own person.

Hunter McGuire, M. D., LL. D., late President and Professor of Clinical Surgery, University College of Medicine, Richmond, Va.; ex-President American Medical Association, etc.:

"BUFFALO LITHIA WATER as an alkaline diuretic is invaluable. In Uric Acid Gravel, and, indeed, in diseases generally dependent upon a Uric Acid Diathesis, it is a remedy of extraordinary potency. I have prescribed it in cases of Rheumatic Gout which had resisted the ordinary remedies, with wonderfully good results. I have used it also in my own case, being a great sufferer from this malady, and have derived more benefit from it than any other remedy."

Dr. John R. Page, Birmingham, Ala., formerly Professor of Zoology, Botany, etc., University of Virginia: "I am fully satisfied of its great value in the treatment of all affections due to a Gouty Diathesis. Indeed, I have experienced very decided benefit from its use in Gout in my own person."

Dr. Algernon S. Garnett, Surgeon (Retired) U. S. Navy, Resident Physician, Hot Springs, Ark.: "I have had excellent results from this water in Gout, Rheumatism and that hybrid disease, Rheumatic Gout, both in my own person and in the treatment of patients for whom I have prescribed it."

THE GIVER WINS AT HAWTHORNE.

Boots' Horse Gets Revenge on Orsina, Birkenruth Riding a Good Race.

LOUISVILLE IS SECOND.

Owner Makes Nice Winning on Victory—Four Favorites Reach Wire First.

With eight pounds in his favor, compared to their weights last Wednesday at the same distance, The Giver, in the mile and a half furlong handicap yesterday, had revenge on Orsina, to whom he had run second on that occasion. But the black filly did not run up to her best form and she failed to finish in the money. All six carded put in an appearance, and Louisville, the only outsider in the party, ran a surprisingly good race and handily beat all but Charlie Boots' horse. Warte Nicht ran a fair race and finished resolutely.

T. H. Ryan and his friends are credited with making a nice winning on The Giver, which was ridden well by Birkenruth.

From one of Holtman's best starts Louisville, on the rail, went right to the front and showed the way for a quarter of a mile. Orsina and Warte Nicht were at her heels and The Giver was rating along easily in fourth place. As they swung into the back stretch Adkins gave Orsina, which is essentially a front runner, the chance she wanted, and she quickly took the lead from Louisville and finished the second quarter a length and a half to the good. The pace was not fast and it looked as if Adkins would have gone right on with her and opened up a good gap. Possibly she did not have all her speed yesterday. However, Louisville gained on her in the third quarter, and The Giver moved up alongside of Warte Nicht just before they turned into the homestretch.

The Giver Gains on Leaders.

Louisville challenged Orsina and soon raced the black filly into submission. But below the eighth pole The Giver, which had shaken off Warte Nicht, was gaining on the two leaders at every stride. Knapp got busy on Louisville in response to The Giver's challenge, and the mare stood him off for fifty yards, the pair drawing away from Orsina. Louisville struggled gamely, but The Giver had plenty in reserve and easily outfooted her in the last 150 yards.

Orsina was the only losing favorite until the sixth race, and then J. Welch & Co.'s Commodore, at 8 to 1, won all the way from ten other 2 year olds, some of which have been rated as youngsters of fair class. Copperfield was a short priced favorite, though his support in the ring seemed to be only lukewarm, and from 4 to 5 he went to 11 to 10. Meanwhile "Frisco" Gardner was setting it in on Floral King, on which he was credited with burning up $7,000 on Wednesday of last week, when Tootsie Mack, at 40 to 1, romped home in front. Yesterday Commodore was the outsider that again upset the good thing and brought woe to Gardner.

Welch's colt broke quickly and tiptoed his field. Wonderly kept him from running his head off, always held a slight lead, and had plenty left to finish with. Maggie Leeber made a game effort to race home with Commodore, but failed, and was beaten for the place by Floral King's fast rush at the end.

McGee Extended to Win.

McGee seemed to have another "setup" in the fifth, but it was all Heigesen could do to hustle him home a head in front of Ancke, which lay third for six furlongs and wore down Corrigan's colt in the last quarter. Callant was well backed by the public to show, but By Ways rushed up on the outside and just nailed him.

Beau Ormonde, running in the name and colors of Mrs. E. L. Kripp, won the second race handsomely. Determination, deservedly favorite in the fourth, easily disposed of a large field of poor 2 year olds.

The 3 year olds in the first race are not good enough for the game on Chicago tracks, and any one of them is lucky to win a purse.

Hawthorne Summaries Aug. 21.

Commodore tiptoed the field all the way. Floral King finished going fast. Maggie Leeber showed speed, but tired. Copperfield ran a dull race.

SHORTHOSE WINS WITH EASE.

Captures the Huron Handicap at Saratoga, as the Bookmakers and Bettors Expected.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Shorthose easily beat his four opponents in the Huron handicap today. The bookmakers and public alike agreed that he had an easy task and he was backed by many thousands, but those who bet on him nearly had a fit when they saw him swerve and stumble as the barrier was released. He was quick to recover, however, when he went in pursuit of Rigodon, the pacemaker, who carried the support of not a few shrewd men. The pace was slow by comparison with other races run here. When Haack got ready he let Shorthose have his head and the rest was easy. The race marked the first appearance of Munro, the Canadian jockey, who rides for George Hendrie.

The most exciting event was at the end of the seven furlong selling race. The talent was divided among The Musketeer, Highlander, and Tam O' Shanter, and this entitled Drake to get good odds against his gelding, Conundrum. Highlander once more declined to leave the post and The Musketeer and Conundrum fought it out all the way through the homestretch. Drake's racer managed to keep his head in front at the end, with Stroller a close third, his good race being something of a surprise. Two western riders, O'Neill and Fuller, were on Conundrum and The Musketeer respectively. Their work captivated all horsemen by its efficiency.

Saratoga Summaries.

First race, ⅞ mile—Conundrum, 106 pounds [O'Neill], 7 to 1, won; The Musketeer, 103 [Fuller], 3 to 1, second; Stroller, 95 [J. Martin], 9 to 1, third. Time, 1:28 2-5. Tam o'Shanter, Locket, Rosanco, and Esherin also ran. Highlander left at post.

Favorites Left Out at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21.—Favorites were bowled over in four races at Kinloch park today. Rainland, the favorite in the feature, a six furlong handicap for 2 year olds, finished back in the ruck, the race going to Magnolin, which beat Old Stone, the outsider, a nose on the post. Track fast. Summary:

First race, 6½ furlongs—Miss Gould, 107 pounds [Higgins], 2 to 1, won; Detest, 5 to 1, second; Tangent, 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:22¾.

Results at Fort Erie.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Louise Collier got a nose verdict over Carl Kahler, the odds on favorite, in the six furlongs sprint, at Fort Erie today. The track was fast and the betting choices generally successful. Winners:

First race, 1 mile—Rene, 6 to 1; Charlotte J., 4 to 1; Fuego, 5 to 1.

Second race, 4½ furlongs—Volney, 2 to 1; Goldstick, 15 to 1; The World, 5 to 1.

Third race, 6 furlongs—Louise Collier, 4 to 1; Carl Kahler, 3 to 5; Mrs. Frank Foster, 5 to 2.

Fourth race, 1¼ miles—Justice, 10 to 1; Cloche d'Or, 20 to 1; King's Pet, 2 to 1.

Fifth race, 7 furlongs—Nellie Forrest, 3 to 1; Military, 5 to 2; Ethel Davis, 5 to 2.

Hicks to Stay with Belmont.

New York, Aug. 21.—Justice Spencer of the Supreme court, sitting at Johnstown, N. Y., has handed down a decision by which Wallace Hicks, the negro jockey, will be permitted to remain in the east to fulfill his contract with Perry Belmont. Hicks, who was placed under arrest at midnight recently in Saratoga by the men who seek to break his lease to the eastern owners, told the justice he did not wish to return to his former employers, one of whom was ruled off the turf last winter at New Orleans.

Clothier to Meet H. L. Doherty.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 21.—It is now practically certain W. J. Clothier will meet the younger Doherty for the honor of challenging Larned for the national championship. R. F. Doherty is expected to default to his brother in the fifth round tomorrow, so that H. L. Doherty will not need to meet R. H. Carleton in the semi-finals. Clothier's work in his match with Ward today was the strongest yet shown by any American player in the tournament. Ward is a hard man to pass at the net, yet the Philadelphian did this frequently. His ground strokes were close to the line and seldom went outside. Clothier himself was strong at the net. His service, however, is not strong, and this weakness is what worries his supporters. It was reported here today that a French team expects to challenge for the Davis international trophy in England next June.

Jockey O'Neill's Contracts.

Arthur J. O'Neill, uncle of the successful jockey, Frank O'Neill, who is credited with having signed a contract with John A. Drake, yesterday said the published report that Newton Bennington held a two year contract with little O'Neill was an error. "Frankie's contract with Bennington expires Sept. 1," said A. J. O'Neill last night. I do not know whether he has signed with John A. Drake. In a letter I received from his mother a few days ago she said Frankie had received a number of flattering offers, but had as yet accepted none of them."

Corbett Is Expected Today.

Jim Corbett is expected to arrive in Chicago this morning. He will fill a theatrical engagement in St. Louis next week, but expects to spend today and tomorrow among Chicago friends. "Parson" Davies, who got in from the coast last night, was loud in his praise of Corbett's gameness in the fight. "A gamer exhibition was never witnessed," said Davies. "It was a battle against hopeless odds, but Corbett never flinched. The last few rounds he suffered intensely from Jeffries' body blows, but stuck to his work. Corbett is more popular today than he ever was."

Neil-Feltz Fight on Oct. 14.

Frankie Neil, the California fighter who won the bantamweight championship from Harry Forbes at San Francisco last week, has been matched to fight Tommy Feltz of Savannah, Ga. Billy Considine of Detroit yesterday clinched the match, and the boys will meet before the Metropolitan Athletic club of Detroit on Oct. 14. The bout will be at ten rounds, the boys to weigh in at 115 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Chicago Lad Scores Knockout.

BONNER STAKES TO AN OUTSIDER.

Hawthorne Takes the Rich Purse from Billy Buck and Kinney Lou.

IS KNOCKED DOWN ONCE.

Swift Stumbles in the Third Heat and Swerves Into the Winner, Both Falling.

New York, Aug. 21.—After a day's delay on account of a heavy track the grand circuit meeting was resumed today at Brighton Beach before 8,000 spectators.

The big event of the card was the $20,000 Bonner stakes for 2:12 trotters. The betting was heavy, Billy Buck selling for $1,000 to $700 for the field. The favorite won the first heat by half a length from Jim Ferry, with Swift a close third, but in the second he was beaten in a close and exciting finish by the rank outsider Hawthorne, with Tiverton second.

In the third heat at the first turn Swift stumbled and swerved into Hawthorne, and both went down, the horses being caught soon. In the meantime Kinney Lou had got the lead, and won the heat by a narrow margin amidst a volley of cheers for the driver, Budd Doble.

For the fourth heat Kinney Lou led to the top of the home stretch, with Billy Buck and Hawthorne close up, but here Hawthorne came up with a splendid burst of speed, and won easily by a length. The next heat was close from start to finish, Hawthorne winning by two lengths, with the other two tired out. He sold for $190 in a $2,000 pool.

Judge Green was a hot favorite for the $5,000 John H. Shults purse for 4 year olds, and he won in straight heats. Dariel and Al Bock were strong favorites in their races. In the 2:09 trot the Roman was the choice and finished last.

For the 2:12 pace Strathlone defeated the favorite, Page Hal, and in the 2:16 trot Dillon Boy upset the talent by beating Millard Sanders, who sold at $50 to $15.

FAVORITES ARE DISTANCED.

Two Horses After Twice Reaching the Wire First at Old Saugus Fall Behind the Flag.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 21.—At Old Saugus track today two horses, each with two heats to their credit, were distanced. Charges of foul driving were made and the judges removed two drivers and substituted others.

Sagwa was played to win the 2:14 pace. In the third heat Driver Ferry claimed that Blanchard, with Minnie Bright, cut off Sagwa on the first turn, causing him to break so badly as to fall back of the distance flag. Stone was put up to drive Luce in the final heat. Princess Mouquette was almost a prohibitive favorite in the 2:11 pace. The 2:25 trot was unfinished.

After winning two heats Willie John was distanced. Bard Palmer was put behind John Hooper in the last heat, as the judges thought that Bristol was not trying to win. Summaries:

COLTS DEFEAT BROOKLYN

WIN LAST GAME OF SERIES WITH TROLLEY DODGERS.

Pitcher Oscar Jones Proves Easy Picking for Selee's Men and Chicago Takes the Contest by a Score of 9 to 4—Wicker Has Opposing Batters at His Mercy at Critical Moments—Casey Turns His Ankle and May Be Idle for Rest of Trip.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Frank Selee and his band of Colts concluded their stay in Brooklyn today by defeating the locals by a score of 9 to 4. Oscar Jones proved easy picking for the visitors and was hit frequently, and that when it was opportune for runs to count.

Jones was wild and toward the last of the game seemed to have lost all control of the ball, and the game became a farce for the spectators to watch. The whole Brooklyn team seemed to go to pieces with Jones. Wicker pitched a strong game all the way and had the local batters at his mercy, keeping the eight hits well scattered. Wicker gave five bases on balls, but only in one case did a run tally as a result. Jones also allowed five men free transportation, and in addition hit two batters.

The westerners gave Wicker good support, only one error being charged to Chicago, and that was a bad throw by Casey. Four errors were made by the Brooklyn team and were responsible for four of the Chicago runs.

Casey, the Colts' third baseman, was injured during the game and had to be carried off the field. He turned his ankle while getting back on the first base bag, and may be unable to play for the rest of the eastern stay of the Chicago team.

Brooklyn drew first blood in the encounter and it looked for a time as if Hanlon would capture three out of four from the Colts. Strang singled past Casey in the first and went to second on a passed ball. Sheckard drew a base and Dobbs was safe at first because of a wide throw by Casey. Boyle hit into a double play, but Strang was safe over the plate.

Kling scored in the second for Chicago on two hits and an out. Two more runs came in the fourth for Chicago on a bad muff by McCreery in right field. Two men were out and Evers raised an easy fly to right, which McCreery dropped after holding for a second. Harley followed with a two base hit and Evers tallied. Wicker scored Harley with a hit to center. Wicker tallied in the seventh after being hit by a pitched ball.

It was in the eighth that Jones went to pieces. Kling singled and Evers bunted safe and went to third on Jones' wild throw to first, while Kling scored. Harley bunted, Wicker walked, and Slagle forced Evers at the plate. After Williams struck out Chance came up and hit to left, scoring Harley and Wicker. Slagle scored a little later on a double steal with Chance. Tinker scored in the ninth on a hit, a steal, and a wild throw by Doyle. Score:

The game was one of the slowest played at Washington park this year.

Chance and Wicker were hit in the ribs in the seventh inning by Jones' wild shoots.

Oscar Jones is weak on fielding bunts and let two of them get away from him, when Harley and Evers were safe.

Kling was caught off first in the fourth and gave Doyle, Jordan, Dahlen, and Jones a merry chase before he was put out.

PITTSBURG WINS AND LOSES.

New York Team and Champions Split Even in Double Header—McGraw's Men Shut Out.

New York, Aug. 21.—Pittsburg's National league champions made their last appearance of the season at the Polo grounds today in a double header in which they divided the honors with the locals. The visitors scored a shutout over McGraw's men in the earlier game. In the second they played loosely and the home team, with Mathewson in the box, had the game well in hand from the close of the second inning. Score, first game:

Clinton, Ia., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The Union Giants defeated Clinton today, 6 to 3.

British Cricket Team Coming.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Sir Timothy Carew O'Brien, leading member of the Middlesex cricket eleven and former member of the Oxford eleven, has accepted an invitation of the Philadelphia cricket council to take a team to the United States in September to play in Philadelphia, New York, and Canada.

BOSTON GAINS FULL REVENGE.

Turns the Tables on the White Stockings and Wins, 11 to 3.

HOLMES DOES STAR WORK

Makes Unusual Record for Himself by Executing Four Assists from the Outfield.

Boston reversed things with a vengeance on the White Stockings yesterday, winning the closing game of its season's series in Chicago by the score of 11 to 3. As Manager Collins thought he needed the game worse than did Comiskey's men, he sent "Cy" Young to the slab, and, although the White Sox batted the veteran a little more freely than they usually do, he was running an easy winner under double wraps at the end.

The contest was not so lopsided as the final score would indicate, for the home team was in the game most of the way, having it tied up in the sixth, but the visitors finished like a whirlwind, scoring eight of their runs in the last three innings and five of those eight in the ninth. Before it was over they had piled up a total of fifteen hits for twenty bases off the former "boy wonder."

The features of greatest interest were Holmes' work in left and the return of Charley Farrell to the game. Farrell caught for Boston to relieve Jake Stahl, and the veteran's execution was all right, but he is still so lame he could hardly have reached first base on a two bagger. Holmes made the unusual record of four assists from the outfield. Once he nailed a runner at the plate and once at second base by quick recoveries and throws. Again he threw a man out at the plate with the assistance of Callahan as a relayist and later he and Tannehill would have cut Freeman off at third when he tried to stretch his double into a triple, but Callahan squarely muffed the throw at third.

Boston started in with three runs in the first. Dougherty singled and stole second, going to third on a passed ball. Meanwhile Collins had flied out. Stahl was passed, Freeman pushed a safe one to center, sending Dougherty home, Stahl and Freeman moving up a notch apiece on Jones' throw to the plate. Parent's out scored Stahl and Freeman followed in a minute on La Chance's drive to left, but the big Frenchman was nailed by Holmes trying to get to second on his hit. Patterson settled to business after that and shut out the visitors up to the seventh, although two runs had to be cut off at the plate in brilliant fashion to do it.

The White Sox made one scratch hit off Young in four innings, and one man only reached first. Callahan opened the fifth with a single and Magoon caught Collins napping with a slow roller toward third. Tannehill struck out, but a short passed ball let the runners move up. Callahan scored when Freeman muffed Slattery's fly, and Magoon scored on Patterson's fly to the same individual. In the sixth the White Sox pulled up even on a pass to Jones, followed by singles from Green and Callahan.

This was the end of Chicago's scoring and the visitors tore away into the lead again by pounding out two runs in the seventh and one in the sixth, all on clean hitting. In the ninth a combination of two singles, two errors, a sacrifice, and a double scored five runs before a man was retired. That appeared to satisfy them, for the next three died easily. Score:

Notes of the White Sox Game.

New York comes today for a series of four games, one being postponed from the May series.

Farrell hobbled so painfully going to first that one fan remarked if Charley ever singled to left Holmes would surely throw him out at first.

If Patterson had kept away from Holmes' throw to the plate in the ninth it was even money "Ducky" would have cut off a third run there.

The strong wind bothered the fielders, and Slattery lost a high foul from Dougherty's bat in the first inning which would have cut off at least one run. He overran it many feet and could not get back.

Patterson has a bad habit of interfering with his catcher on throws to the plate. He stands so near the plate that he cannot catch a runner at second by cutting off the throw, and in the ninth he spoiled a possible chance to retire Dougherty at the plate besides causing a collision which might have put Slattery out of the game for a while. Patterson, being in front of the ball, cut off Slattery's view and when he did step aside the backstop misjudged the bound. He tried to block it, but got a bad bump from Dougherty, which was apparently unavoidable.

BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

Philadelphia and Detroit Teams Each Win a Game—Waddell Pitches in Both Contests.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21.—The Athletics and Detroits broke even in their last games of the season here. Both were remarkable contests. Waddell pitched a shut out in the first game, and was so elated he asked to go in in the second, and came near getting away with it. A base on balls and two hits scored the only run in the opener. Buelow scored on Yeager's double in the second contest. In the last half a phenomenal stop and throw by Long nailed Seybold at the plate. Score, first game:

AMATEUR CLUBS TO PARADE.

Will March to American League Game Today—Hundreds Expected to Be in Line.

Hundreds of amateur baseball players are expected to turn out this afternoon in celebration of Amateur day. Of this number about half will represent the leading local leagues, such as the Commercial, Board of Trade, Bankers' and other organizations, while about fifty free lance teams will join. A line of march extending from Michigan avenue and Van Buren street to Washington and Clark streets, and taking in the principal downtown streets, will be covered by the paraders, the majority of whom will be on foot, although several teams, notably those from the stockyards, have secured automobiles, while some of the Brewers' league teams are expected to appear on floats. Two bands will be in the procession and the turnout is expected to demonstrate to the general public what a strong factor baseball is right now with the local sporting public.

After the parade downtown the paraders will take street cars at Washington and Clark streets and go to the south side grounds, where all teams in uniform will be the guests of President Comiskey of the American league club. Prizes will be given to the teams presenting the best appearance. The judging will take place before the regular American league game.

Nearly all of the leagues have postponed games scheduled for this afternoon.

Amateur League Games Today.

South Side league—Crescents and Oak Leas, Hyde Parks and Ideals, Mohawks and Winstons, all at Washington park.

Bible Class league—Haynes' class and Austin Q. B., Tabernacle and Moody Institute, Jackson boulevard and Fifth U. P., Englewood Christian and Class 17.

Western Suburban league—West Side at Maywood, Grossdale at Oak Park, Austin at River Forest.

SINGLE GOLFERS ARE THE VICTORS

Misses Carpenter and Anthony Defeat Married Rivals at Onwentsia.

TO MEET THIS AFTERNOON

Westward Ho Expert Will Make Another Attempt to Lower Champion's Colors.

Miss Bessie Anthony and Miss J. A. Carpenter both had easy victories in the semifinal round for the Onwentsia cup yesterday, the western champion winning from Mrs. A. T. H. Brower 8 up and 7 to play and Miss "Johnny" defeating Mrs. W. A. Alexander 5 up, 4 to play.

The victors will meet this morning in the final match for the trophy, and it remains to be seen whether Miss Carpenter can accomplish the defeat of the famous Glen View player, a feat she has attempted a number of times without success. Should she fail, Miss Anthony will become a four time winner of the Onwentsia tournament.

Golfing conditions yesterday were far from favorable, a heavy gale from the southwest making directions uncertain on the long shots and handicapping the approach plays. The weather was hot and enervating.

Miss Anthony's Good Work.

Mrs. Brower did not perform up to her usual standard, her work being poor compared with that of the previous day. Of Miss Anthony it may be said she was playing the kind of golf that made her famous, and under these opposite conditions the match was devoid of interest. Of the eleven holes played, Miss Anthony won nine, one being halved and the other going to Mrs. Brower. The cards:

Miss Anthony—Out.....6 6 6 6 5 4 5 4 4—46
Mrs. Brower—Out.....7 5 8 10 8 5 6 7 6—62
Miss Anthony—In..........6 6—12
Miss Brower—In..........8 6—14

The defeat of Mrs. Alexander by Miss Carpenter was not entirely unexpected, as the popular Exmoor player, who was the runner up to Miss Anthony in the event, had not recovered sufficiently from her recent illness to play her best. Last year Mrs. Alexander put out Miss Carpenter in the second round by a score of 6 up and 5 to play. At starting Miss Carpenter was erratic, and was two down at the third hole. From this on to the turn she improved in her play, while Mrs. Alexander made a number of mistakes and was four down at the ninth. Hole ten was halved, but Miss Carpenter won the eleventh and twelfth and was dormie six. Mrs. Alexander took the next hole in bogey figures of five, Miss Carpenter finding the bunker. Fourteen was halved in five, giving Miss Carpenter the victory.

Summaries of Matches.

Summaries of the six matches for the three cups were as follows:

ONWENTSIA CUP.

Miss Bessie Anthony, Glen View, defeated Mrs. A. T. H. Brower, Chicago, by 8 up and 7 to play.

Miss J. Anna Carpenter, Westward Ho, defeated Mrs. W. A. Alexander, Exmoor, by 5 up and 4 to play.

SOLACE CUP.

Mrs. W. L. De Wolf, Onwentsia, defeated Mrs. E. C. Berriman, Edgewater, by 2 up and 1 to play.

Mrs. Percival Manchester, Glen View, defeated Mrs. G. V. Harvey, Midlothian, by 5 up and 4 to play.

TYRO CUP.

Miss Juliett Learned, Onwentsia, defeated Miss Richards, River Forest, by 3 up and 2 to play.

Miss A. Smith, Edgewater, defeated Mrs. G. D. McLaughlin, Onwentsia, by 4 up and 2 to play.

The afternoon event was an innovation in the shape of a team match in which teams of four competed against bogey, an extra stroke being added to the men's figures at each hole, bringing the total to 100. Five teams competed, the Washington Park representatives winning with a score of 29 down. Only four points separated the leader from the last team. The best performances of the match were those of Miss Frances Everett and Mrs. C. L. Dering, whose cards were as follows:

Miss Frances Everett, Exmoor—

The final matches for the three cups will be played this morning at 10 o'clock and at 2 p. m. a mixed foursome handicap at eighteen holes. A large entry list has been received for this event.

Events for Today.

Events for this afternoon are scheduled as follows:

Glen View—Qualifying round for Benedict cup.
Calumet—First round for club championship cup.
Bachelors vs. Benedicts.
Windsor—Team match with Wheaton.
Hinsdale—First round for Bassett cup.
Chicago—Play for Morse cup.
Westward Ho—Semi-finals for Ainslie cup.
River Forest—Team match at Kenosha.
Homewood—Semi-finals and finals for Forsinger cup.
Edgewater—Play for governor's cup.
Skokie—Second round for president's and directors' cup.
La Grange—First round club championship.

Secretary J. W. Houston announces the open tournament of the Westward Ho club, scheduled to commence Sept. 8, has been postponed on account of conflicting dates. A junior tournament will be held Aug. 24 and two succeeding days. Two flights of four will qualify for the McDonald and Ray cups.

POWERS GETS ADDITIONAL AID.

Former Assistant Secretary of State Sends a Deposition Declaring the Defendant Is Innocent.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The deposition of former Assistant Secretary of State W. J. Davidson, taken at Indianapolis, was filed by the defense in the Caleb Powers case today. Davidson denies all conversations attributed to him by the common wealth witnesses, Golden, Culton, and Youtsey.

The reading of the Taylor deposition was concluded today.

Hamp H. Howard, who participated in the meetings held to organize the mountain army, testified that Caleb Powers said nothing about a conspiracy at the meeting in Harlan county.

STRUCK WITH GOLF BALL: DEAD.

Fourteen Year Old Girl Dies of Injuries Received on the Sharon Hill Links.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 21.—After lying unconscious since last Tuesday Bertha Harman, aged 14 years, died late last night in a hospital here from the effects of being struck on the head with a golf ball. The child was watching the play on the Sharon hill links, near here, when the ball struck her, fracturing the skull. She fell unconscious and lingered in that condition until death ensued last night.

Says Attorney Tricked Her.

Mrs. Mary Geimer has filed a bill asking that Attorney J. Henry Kraft be restrained from transferring or incumbering three notes amounting to $5,000, placed with him for collection. She says she signed a paper purporting to be a form giving the power of attorney, but discovered it was a contract allowing a commission of 40 per cent for collecting the sum. Mrs. Geimer alleges Kraft demanded $1,500 for his services, and refused to release the notes.

Cave-in Thought to Be Earthquake.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 21.—A cave-in, which swept down in the mines thousands of tons of culm, has occurred at the mining town of Duryea, near here. Residents thought it was an earthquake.

BIG EXPORTS HELP WHEAT

CLEARANCES FOR DAY OVER ONE MILLION BUSHELS.

For the Week, However, They Are Lighter than Last Year and Export Sales Small—Fine Weather Northwest for Harvesting, and Northwest Sells Heavily Here—Corn Strong in Spite of Fine Weather on the Heavy Shipments—Other Markets.

Closing prices in wheat were not much changed from the day before, ⅛@½c higher, but these figures give no clew to the active fluctuations of the market. There were declines of ¼c to ½c at the opening on the continuation of fine harvesting weather in the northwest and indifferent English cables. The northwest sent predictions of an early movement, the Minneapolis market was weak, and there was northwest selling here which, with offerings by discouraged local holders, forced prices down still more until there had been total losses of ½c to 1c, September off the most to 79½c and December to 80⅝c. But on this break there was heavy buying of September by brokers which the pit talent attributed to Armour, and this, with the strength of corn and covering by shorts, caused a gradual reaction to nearly the previous close.

An excited trade and a further advance, which carried prices up ½c to ⅝c, followed on the posting of the figures of primary receipts and export clearances, the one light, the other heavy. On the advance to 81c for September, 82c for December, and 84c for May there was liberal covering by shorts and then renewed selling by the northwest, under which prices finally reacted ¼c to ½c from the top. The September discount under December widened to nearly 1¼c.

Farmers Holding Their Wheat.

The light movement was a good deal of a factor, and the Modern Miller attracted attention to the increasing disposition of farmers to hold for higher prices. The movement to Kansas City dropped off sharply, and total primary receipts were only 471,000 bu, compared with 1,010,000 bu a year ago and 1,021,000 bu two years ago. St. Louis sent the prediction that receipts there soon would drop off 50 per cent from recent figures, which had been much smaller than normal. Clearances, on the other hand, were heavy—752,000 bu wheat, nearly all from gulf ports, and a total of 1,002,000 bu wheat and flour, over twice the ordinary receipts. Exports for the week were 3,373,000 bu, compared with 3,413,000 bu for the week before and 6,100,000 bu a year ago. There were claims of damage to wheat in shock in both Kansas and Nebraska from the recent rains, and acceptances in the southwest were reported light. The northwest markets were weaker than this at all times, Minneapolis closing ⅛c higher to ⅝c lower, but St. Louis gained ⅜c and reported a good milling demand at advanced prices, No. 2 red selling at 3c over September. Here there were sales of No. 2 red at ⅜@½c under September, not an indication of a good cash demand. Liverpool was ⅛@¼c lower on more unfavorable weather in England, and London unchanged to ⅜d lower. Paris was ½c higher, but Antwerp 1¼c lower. The export demand continued poor, according to all accounts, sales reported of 80,000 bu. Argentine shipments were 976,000 bu, compared with 664,000 bu the previous week and 128,000 bu a week ago.

Weather Good, Corn Higher.

There was the most favorable looking weather map the corn trader has had to contemplate for some time, clear all over the belt and warmer—temperatures over 70 at 7 o'clock in Iowa and Nebraska—but the corn bears had no luck in playing the weather map. They sold the market off ⅛c to ⅜c at the opening, but the market firmed at once, and their covering helped in the subsequent rally of ⅞c to 1½c from the bottom figures. Closing prices were ⅜c to ⅝c higher than Thursday's, the September, which sold from 50⅝c to 52¼c and stopped at 51⅝c, up the most. It was at one time ¼c premium over December, but closed ¼c lower. There was some indication that the May longs were adding to their lines in spite of the better weather and the private reports of improved crop prospects. The forecast of cooler weather in Iowa and Nebraska was the cause of some buying, although as it was warmer there today than in many days a moderate drop in temperature need not be alarming. There was also the Hicks' prediction of frosts next week, and that made the prediction of cooler weather look more serious to the shorts.

Country acceptances were liberal in Nebraska, but light elsewhere, on the whole not as heavy as earlier in the week, and the large shipping sales of the last few days and large shipments made the September strong. Whether the corn is going on actual sales or is being consigned because of the cheap lake freights, the effect on local stocks will be the same, and shipments so far this week are over 1,000,000 bu in excess of receipts. Yesterday they were 749,000 bu, compared with 179,000 bu received. The quick advance interfered with cash business, but shipping sales of 200,000 bu were reported. Export sales at the seaboard were 96,000 bu and clearances were 61,000 bu for the day. There were 182 cars in and 225 estimated for today. Primary receipts were 338,000 bu, compared with 163,000 bu last year. Argentine shipments were liberal—2,357,000 bu, compared with 3,017,000 bu the week before and 1,184,000 bu last year. Liverpool futures were ⅛@¼d lower and spot American ⅜d lower.

New Record for Oats.

Oats yielded about ⅛c early when wheat was weakest, but were by no means weak and rallied promptly, selling up to new high figures for all deliveries; ½c higher at the best and closing ⅜c higher. The cash market was firm, ½c to 1c higher, and the eastern demand followed the advance, sales being 250,000 bu. The light country acceptances and renewed reports that farmers were selling little and dealers inclined to store rather than ship what the farmers are selling gave the market a firm tone. There was heavy buying of December by McReynolds and of May by Bartlett, Pringle, Wright-Taylor, and Spencer. Offerings were light until May reached 38⅜c, where Updike was a free seller. Receipts were 261 cars, and the estimate for today 220 cars. Clearances were 46,000 bu.

Provision Prices Are Higher.

Provisions were moderately active and were higher all around. The near months made better gains than did the distant futures. The support to the former came largely from the local long interests, mainly packers, who were credited with giving the market support in order to make prices on which to sell product. Much of the business of the day was centered in lard and ribs. The buying of the September lard caused an advance in that future of 20c, while the more distant months advanced only 7½c. In ribs the buying was also heaviest in the near months, these advancing 17½c, while the distant futures gained only 5c. The buying by the packers was supplemented to some extent by a demand from shorts. Lard was 6d higher at Liverpool. Receipts of hogs here were only 12,000, and prices at the yards were 5@10c higher. For the first time in several weeks the total receipts of hogs at western packing points were less than those of the corresponding day last year. The totals were 38,500 hogs and 41,900 hogs, respectively. Estimated local receipts for today were only 9,000 hogs. There was a continuation of the export demand for lard and sales of 4,500 tcs and of 1,500,000 lbs of loose lard was made to go abroad. The sales of the latter were at 60c discount from September prices.

Rye was quite dull. Nothing was done in futures and but little in the cash grain. Receipts were 6 cars, and there were 3 cars out of private elevators. September was 52⅝c bid and December 54⅛c bid and 54⅜c asked.

Barley was again quiet and firm. The demand both for low grades and fancy sorts was once more in excess of the offerings, but buyers nevertheless would not bid up on prices. Common to good malting grades sold at 46@50c, and choice to fancy 51@55c. Low grades of mixing barley were 42@47c, screenings 30@45c, and old barley 40@55c.

Timothy seed was lower early, but closed strong and higher. There was a good general trade. Contract spot seed, $3.15; old, $2.50@3.00; new, $3.00@3.25; September, $3.10@3.15; October, $3.00@3.07½; January, $3.10.

Cloverseed dull, prices steady. Contract seed, $11.00; October, nominally $8.90@9.00. Cash lots lower at $8.50@10.00.

Flaxseed was dull, but bids were higher. No transactions were closed in spot or future delivery. No. 1 northwestern, $1.01 bid; No. 1 southwest, 97c bid; rejected, 91@94c; September, 96½c bid; October, 97c bid.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

The weather map yesterday was ideal in almost every particular, and the weather has been so unkind to the grain grower so often and so violently during the year it is entitled to special credit for trying to do better. There was not a shower in the northwest greater than 1-25 of an inch and not a drop of rain noted in either of the Dakotas. In all the important corn states it was clear and warmer and there was not a drop of rain in the southwest to interfere with the thrashing or movement of wheat. There was a temperature of over 70 at 7 o'clock in Nebraska and Iowa and maximum temperatures of over 80 in all the corn states, the sort of weather certainly which ought to insure rapid growth. There was a suggestion, however, that conditions were too good to last in a forecast of cooler weather for Nebraska and Iowa, and although it could be cooler there than it is and still be warmer than it has been for most of the month, there was buying of corn on this prediction.

The corn short was disposed to view the heavy shipping sales of corn reported with equanimity on the theory that the business was largely on consignment because of the cheap lake freights, but was disturbed a little by the fact that corn is going out much faster than it is coming in. Shipping sales are filled promptly and it takes time for corn sold by the country to get to this market. There is no evidence as yet of the increased movement which was expected this month. Shipments yesterday were 749,000 bu, compared with receipts of 171,000 bu, and the day before they were 487,000 bu, compared with receipts of 149,000 bu, the shipments for two days over 900,000 bu in excess of receipts. This forecasts a more rapid decrease in local stocks, and as the holders of the contract corn here are reporting liberal sales, the September short has uneasy moments.

A. S. White's estimate of the local stock of lard attracted general attention yesterday, as it was 9,000 tcs larger than that of Morris Schwabacher, another trustworthy local authority. Fortunately for the price there was a continuation of the export demand that had been in evidence on the previous day. This, with the support furnished September by the leading local owner of the lard supply had the effect of rallying prices and giving the shorts a little scare. The falling off in the movement of hogs to western packing centers also contributed to the nervousness of the shorts and rallied the lard prices.

St. Louis advices to Love were of a good milling demand for wheat, sales of 25,000 bu to southeastern mills, and No. 2 red bringing 82⅝c, or 3c over September. Receivers there predicted receipts would soon fall off to 50 per cent of the present small arrivals because of the recent light country acceptances. In this market there was a different story, a shipper buying 30,000 bu No. 2 red at ⅜@½c under September to deliver on September sales. With September only ten days away this makes a carrying charge equal to 1¼-⅜c a month. It indicates a poor cash demand, but no one expects a good demand for the old No. 2 red in store here.

There were renewed sales of corn from Mobile yesterday for export to Mexico, 40,000 bu, making 60,000 bu in two days, the business worked by McReynolds' Mobile house. "My information from Mobile," said Mr. McReynolds, "is that the demand from Mexico is likely to continue for several months. They do not import corn often, but when they do they take quite a good deal of it. The corn sold for export is northern corn, which can be exported more cheaply from Mobile than it can be shipped from Kansas City by rail and vessel or from New York all vessel."

A friend of H. D. Russell writes from Concordia, Kas., on the corn prospect, saying: "It is the best crop I ever saw and I think the best the state ever had. Every condition is perfect; the only possible thing that can prevent the largest and best yield ever known is an early frost. The total yield may not be as large as in some past years, as the acreage is smaller, so much land having been put in wheat; still, at the present time we have a prospect for the largest yield per acre we ever had."

There was variance of testimony yesterday as to the country acceptances of corn, some houses reporting them light, and sales in Illinois, apparently, were not free. A good deal of corn was bought in Nebraska, however, probably half a million bu, and those who have been claiming that Nebraska has shipped practically nothing so far of the 1902 crop, are confirmed in their views and expect to see a free movement from that state.

There were conflicting stories about corn acceptances in the country yesterday, houses which bid only in Illinois or Iowa getting little. But houses which bid to Nebraska bought freely, two concerns getting 125,000 bu each, and total acceptances were probably at least 500,000 bu. Shippers have claimed that Nebraska sold little of last year's crop, and it looks as though it was beginning to move now, a sign probably of growing confidence in a fair crop of corn.

Van Dusen-Harrington of Minneapolis say: "The cutting of wheat will be practically finished this side of the boundary line by the last of this week. Thrashing already begun, and we may expect a free movement of wheat soon, as cash prices are still attractive, though the premium over the September is narrowing daily. Local stocks show 375,000 bu decrease so far, and it looks like less than a million in store here at the end of this week."

One of the important questions for the wheat trader is whether or not the spring wheat farmer is going to show a disposition to be miserly and hold his grain like the winter wheat farmer. One Minneapolis grain man, interested in a large elevator concern, thinks he has discovered such a disposition, wiring: "At our stations through North Dakota and Minnesota farmers show disposition to store their wheat."

The Modern Miller says: "The holding attitude of winter wheat farmers is extending and becoming more general. It is especially notable in soft winter wheat territory, where the yield was smallest. Heavy rains in Kansas and Nebraska have damaged wheat in the shock, lowering the grade of some of the grain. Plowing for fall seeding is progressing well, save where rains interfered in the west."

The Price Current announces that it "has carefully reviewed the evidence afforded by its own correspondence and from other sources, and concludes that the present indications point to a total crop practically the same as last year in quantity, but better in quality—the winter portion being somewhat larger than last year, and spring wheat reduced to an equal extent—or 430,000,000 bu for winter and 240,000,000 bu for spring."

"In the present bearish mood on wheat," says W. S. Crosby, "one does not hear it mentioned, but the facts are that while primary receipts are now running considerably below last year, primary receipts through August and September of last year were pretty nearly one-fourth million a day below the corresponding time of 1901; in other words, primary receipts last year were small and this year they are much smaller."

One of the largest elevator concerns in the northwest wires Bartlett-Mayer-Carrington: "Our best receipts of wheat on this crop any one day have been today, 5,000 bu. With good weather we of course expect an increase from this next week. But stacking has been so much more general this year that our auditors seem to think movement to market this fall will not be nearly as free as usual."

Bradstreet's reports exports as follows:

	Wheat and flour, bu.	Corn, bu.
This week	3,373,000	510,000
Last week	3,413,000	707,000
Last year	6,000,000	52,000

The Prussian official crop report for mid-August gives condition of winter wheat as 74 per cent, against 74 per cent one month ago and 82 per cent a year ago. Conditions of rye given as 80 per cent, versus 74 per cent and 80 per cent respectively.

Overton wired Harris-Gates from New York: "Exporters were in line to do some new export business in wheat this morning, but the advance has checked it. However, it shows we are working close to an export business again."

One of the early bearish items of news in the wheat market was a message from Minneapolis to Leask declaring that elevator men were paying 7 per cent for money and would pay more later.

New wheat began arriving at Duluth yesterday, and the good quality of the new crop was shown by the grading of 7 cars out of a total of 8 No. 1 northern.

The Carrington farms in North Dakota are yielding 10 bu wheat to the acre where 20 bu were raised last year.

Arrested for Abducting Girl.

Accused of abducting Elizabeth Downey, Mrs. Mary Weinman, alias Weinholt, was arrested yesterday on complaint of the girl's father. The prisoner is 42 years old and lives at 3835 State street. The police think she wrote a note which caused Elizabeth to leave home. The hearing of Dr. Orville William MacKellar, on the same charge, and also accused of keeping a disorderly house, was continued in the morning until Aug. 29.

SCHWAB BUYS OUT PAM.

STEEL MAGNATE NOW IN CONTROL OF PNEUMATIC TOOL.

He Purchases About $800,000 of Stock Owned by the Former General Counsel of the Company—Mr. Schwab and Mr. Pam Also Pay $250,000 Cash to the Company on Account of Promotion Stock Issued to Them—Statement of Chicago State Banks.

It transpires that through the purchase of the stock of Max Pam and a few of his friends Charles M. Schwab has become the largest shareholder in the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company, and, with C. H. Matthiessen, is in control of the company. It comes from inside sources that Mr. Schwab paid Mr. Pam and his associates $70 a share and acquired in the transaction about $800,000 of stock, par value.

Mr. Schwab purchased Max Pam's holdings after an arbitration committee of the board of directors had decided that Mr. Schwab and Mr. Pam should pay into the treasury of the company $125,000 each on account of free stock issued them on the organization of the company. The total sum of $250,000 was paid over and deposited with the National Bank of the Republic.

The issued capital of the Pneumatic Tool company is $6,031,600. It has been common report that Charles Schwab and Max Pam received each $1,000,000 of stock for their part in the promotion of the company. While dissension arose over the question whether the promoters should make some return to the company for the stock alleged to have been delivered to them, the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent was deferred, and Pneumatic Tool stock dropped to 35. After the cash settlement a reduced dividend of 1¾ per cent quarterly was paid and the stock advanced.

The company is understood to be a large earner. A contract has just been closed to supply the Japanese navy yard with pneumatic tools. July business was slack, but August trade is excellent and reported to be in advance of August, 1902.

Max Pam was formerly general counsel of the company, but retired at the time the settlement was effected and was succeeded by his law partner, W. J. Calhoun.

State Banks of Chicago.

State Auditor McCullough yesterday made public a recapitulation of the statements of the condition of Chicago state banks at the commencement of business Aug. 11, compared with the statement at the date of the last call May 21.

The statement shows the banks increased their loans $5,080,086, while deposits increased $2,015,495. The figures follow:

Oil Crowd and the Market.

A representative of the Standard Oil speculative contingent is quoted as saying:

"One year ago the Standard Oil crowd determined to undertake absolutely no new business until there was assurance that the currency system would be so altered as to afford the country a more elastic system. Some stocks were sold, but Standard Oil interests were never actually short of the market. A good deal of St. Paul was sold above 180 and a considerable line of Consolidated Gas above 200.

"The reaction went further than they expected, and ten days ago the situation assumed such a serious aspect that many of the leading financiers were considerably worried lest they should be unable to hold the market in check. A large amount of stock was taken over privately, and with this pressure removed and with considerable outside buying the market rallied. A large short interest existed, and the covering of this has assisted materially in bringing about higher prices.

"It may be stated positively that the so-called Standard Oil crowd would be bullish on the market if they were sure that a new currency bill would be put through in November.

"The Standard Oil crowd began to buy Amalgamated Copper at 54 on the way down and St. Paul at 148. Prices went to an unreasonably low level. Even with the 10 point advance that we have had they are far below values. One year from today I expect prices of good stocks will be from 15 to 20 points higher."

Railway Earnings.

The annual report of the Ann Arbor railroad company was issued yesterday. The gross and net per mile are the largest since the organization of the company. Extensive improvements were made last year and all expenses were charged to cost of operation. President Ramsey announced that as soon as boats could be obtained the Gould system would have a terminal in Milwaukee, with a car ferry connecting with Benton Harbor, Mich. Former officers were reëlected. The summary of the annual statement follows:

Year ending June 30:	Earnings.	Increase.

Demand for Copper Grows.

Officials of the United Metals Selling company say that lake and electrolytic copper will sell at 14c before many days, and that the price will remain close to that figure. It is announced that there has been a great increase in the demand for copper this week. Consumers who refused to pay 13c last week are now anxious to buy at 13⅝c. The United Metals Selling company offered 5,000,000 lbs of lake early last week at 13c. This offer was refused. On Monday of this week the consumer who refused to pay 13c took the 5,000,000 lbs at 13½c.

"The copper situation," says one official of the United Metals Selling company, "is much like the Wall street situation. Ten days ago there were no buyers. Every one was bearish and expected lower prices. The turn has come and a flood of buyers has entered the market, such as we have not seen in eight months. The market was sold to a standstill."

John Stanton says the falling off in the demand for copper during the last few months was due to the prevalence of strikes. He anticipates higher prices for all grades of copper in the immediate future. He says he has been bid 13⅛c for an almost unlimited amount.

Should Be Good Statement.

Known movements in money indicate that the New York banks have gained $3,420,500 in the present bank statement week. The figures today are expected to make a good showing so far as increase in cash is concerned.

But recent experience has been that known movements of money are counterbalanced by other changes and by failure of the loan account to decrease.

General Financial News.

George Gould's connection with the new $30,000,000 Federal Smelting and Refining company is said to be based on the transportation of the ore from northern points to Colorado to be smelted. Much of it will pass over his railroads in that state, where smelters of the American Smelting and Refining company are located.

With the application to list $150,000 common stock and a similar amount of preferred, the National Enameling and Stamping company submitted a statement to the New York Stock exchange in which it announced the issuance of the additional shares to be for the purpose of purchasing the entire capital stock of the Whittaker & Weber Manufacturing company of St. Louis.

The Boston News Bureau asserts that the Greene Consolidated Copper company is controlled by two or three people who are not officials of the company, and that the company will pay no more dividends this year.

The stockholders of the Central railroad of New Jersey will hold their annual meeting Sept. 25. Books close Sept. 5 and reopen Sept. 28.

Traffic of the Aurora, Elgin, and Chicago Electric is estimated to be bringing in $500 a day above fixed charges.

Colorado Springs Mining Notes.

A find of unusual value has just been made on the property of the Mary Cashen company, which is located in the heart of the city of Victor. In workings beneath the city streets a two foot vein of ore assaying $2,160 per ton has just been made. A shipment is being made, from which the company will, no doubt, realize several thousand dollars.

The Sioux Falls and Cripple Creek company, operating the Fluorine claim, on Copper mountain, is making good progress with the construction of its cyanide plant, which, when completed, will treat 100 tons of ore per day. The result of the operation of this mill will be watched with considerable interest, and indications are that Copper mountain will again be the center of north end interest.

The lessees of the Hiawatha claim, on Beacon hill, have opened a large body of pay ore, practically at grass roots. Beacon hill is daily becoming more popular with lessees.

Currency Movements.

With the beginning of the movement of currency west, New York banking interests are speculating upon the amount of currency which will be withdrawn from that center by Chicago banks. In 1902 the New York banks lost to the interior, from Aug. 23 to Nov. 8, $24,733,600. In 1891 the net loss to the interior from Aug. 24 to Oct. 26 was $23,463,700. Apparently this represents the average amount which it may be expected will be drawn down from eastern balances.

Chicago Stocks.

Selling of American Can preferred was the feature of the local market yesterday. Recently the stock has found good buying orders on the advance, but with the turn in the general market support has been withdrawn. There are no developments and the prospect of dividends remains unchanged.

The Biscuit shares were fairly active, with but fractional changes in price.

Boxboard preferred showed a disposition to firmness, based on the belief that the earnings of the company are improving. There is no reason to doubt that such is the case. Throughout the decline in New York the Boxboard shares held steady. The western mills are said to be running on full time, with orders ahead, 50 per cent of which are on the new scale of 20 per cent higher prices.

There were no transactions in bonds either yesterday or the day before.

Sales on the Chicago stock exchange yesterday were as follows:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Movement of Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, and Lambs, with the Range of Prices.

The live stock trade was of the usual featureless character seen on Friday. Receipts of 3,000 cattle were not enough to create any change in prices or stir in the market. About 11,000 hogs arrived, and added to this was sufficient stale stock to make around 18,000 on the market. These were fairly cleaned up at prices that were steady to 10c higher than the previous day. On 9,000 estimated sheep receipts the trade was lifeless with a weak feeling in prices.

Following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated, with comparative figures:

Cattle.

Of the 3,000 cattle estimated there were a few cars of good Texans, but no fresh westerns. There was a quiet tone to the trade, but the few good fat native steers at hand found outlet at an unchanged basis of prices, with the best here selling at $5.40 and bulk being of the grades that sell between $4.90 and $5.30. Prices on all these kinds are fully 10c to 20c higher than early in the week, while below cattle selling at about $4.80, the trade does not show any advance in prices. There has been a good clearance, however. The fact that the big receipts of this week have been absorbed as freely as they have has stimulated belief that prices on good fat native cattle are destined to go considerably higher, and in lieu of this it is thought many owners will from now on hold back a good many of their half fat steers. The extremely low prices at which western rangers have been selling has started a movement on the part of the range owners to curtail shipments and lighter receipts of these cattle are looked for for the next few weeks. The market for choice fat cows and heifers has held steady for the week, but close on anything below choice is extremely dull, and prices are off fully 25c to 35c, compared with a week ago. The stocker trade is slightly firmer and the week will close with fewer cattle held over than for some time past. Quotations:

Hogs.

The hog market showed a better tone for the first time this week. The supplies were closely bought up to about the normal number of penholders that are always on hand. Local packers bought up the stale supplies of big heavy grades, with prices slightly better on these than on former days of the week, while fresh offerings sold generally strong to 10c higher. The range of prices is extremely wide and necessarily will be from now on. There is a spread of over $1.00 per hundred weight between a useful grade of heavy packers and a prime light that are now commanding top prices, several droves of these heavy packers being bought up on Friday at $4.90 to $5.10, with a good fat back grade weighing above 350 lbs going at $5.25. Top lightweights made 6c, leaving a range of about $1.20 on full load lots of hogs, as some of the common grassy grades sold as low as $4.75 to $4.80. Quotations:

Sheep.

The sheep trade was dull and lifeless from the start, with weakness the general characteristic of prices. Heavy ewes were extremely dull and could only be sold at lower prices, while feeders were steady at around $4.40 to $4.50 for lambs and $3.20 to $3.40 for sheep. Good mutton sheep were selling around $3.50 and the best lambs about $5.75. Quotations:

London Reports Advances and News of Day Is Favorable, but Sharp Selling Movement Breaks Out on 'Change, with Pressure on United States Realty, Which Carried It Down to New Low Level—Steel Fell in Spite of Good Iron Mrket.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The stock market opened cheerfully with a continuance of Thursday's late rally. There was a good list of fractional advances from London in the earlier hours, and there seemed hope for a comfortable session, which, however, was later dispelled.

The news of the day afforded the scantiest basis for the change in temper, including the crop advices, the recent encouraging tenor of monetary conditions, undisturbed by forecasts of the bank statement, a good copper metal and a strong iron market, more active at reduced prices. Among the business announced was an order for 50,000 tons of rails from the Baltimore and Ohio, while there were many orders for southern pig iron in lots of several thousand tons each. In the cotton market there was little flurry.

Altogether there was nothing disturbing or stimulating in the day's developments outside of the room, but inside a sharp selling movement sprang up, the ostensible cause being a pressure to sell United States Realty, which carried it down to a new low record—6⅛ for the common and 38 for the preferred.

Apparently the source of liquidation is the firm of Harris, Gates & Co., who are credited with being the heaviest sellers. This is considered significant, inasmuch as John W. Gates, a special partner in the firm, is a director in the Realty Trust. It did not become known until after the close of the market that an informal decision had been arrived at in regard to the next preferred dividend of the Realty company. It seems that at a committee meeting of the directors on Thursday a statement of earnings was presented which reflected the unfortunate results of the local labor troubles, losses from strikes, and the building operations of the company. It was thereupon tacitly understood that the next dividend on the preferred stock would be passed. Taking into consideration the showing of the last fiscal statement which the company presented, the action of the directors may be considered judicious, although the event cannot help but have an unpleasant influence on stock market sentiment.

Although Realty reacted, it did not regain all its loss. Other stocks were used to deepen the impression on the general list. It was not selling upon conditions, either new or old, but simply a good business done by those who profit by sales when they discover relaxing prices. Steel fell, for instance, despite better reports regarding the iron trade than were current on Thursday, and the strong metal market was only worth ¼ of a point advance in Amalgamated.

There was no pretense of reason in Pennsylvania's fall. Virginia-Carolina Chemical advanced, despite adverse comment on its affairs. The advance in Consolidated Gas was not connected with its affairs, but with its excessive decline of Thursday, a sort of thing that interests professionals and signifies nothing to any one else. The volume of business was as narrow as the tone was weak. The bond market was also narrow, the relaxing prices being merely fractional changes. There were the usual guesses as to the week's movements of money and the effect of the bank statement. Last week the banks lost about as much money as they were reckoned to have gained. If that rule of construction is applied the result will be more serious, for this week's gain is estimated as larger. Still, this time the expectations may be realized.

A comparison of prices of twenty active railroad stocks indicates that the decline in average prices from the high level of 1902 to the low level of the early part of the present month reached something over 45 points.

Close: Prime mercantile paper, 6@6½ per cent; sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at 485.85@485.90 for demand and at 483.20@483.25 for 60 days' bills; posted rates, 484@486½; commercial bills, 483@483⅛; bar silver, 56¾c; Mexican dollars, 43½c. Money on call easy at 1⅛@2 per cent, closing at 1⅛ per cent. Time money firm; 60 days, 5 per cent; 90 days, 5½ per cent; six months, 5½@6 per cent. Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,169,000. United States bonds were unchanged.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The Boston market had the same characteristics that have marked it for some days past, and was confined chiefly to Copper Range and Amalgamated, which varied a good deal. The story most commonly told is that Copper Range and Tri-Mountain are soon to fall into the hands of the Amalgamated interests. Call loans, 4@5 per cent; time loans, collateral, 5@6 per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 5@6½ per cent. Clearing house loans, 4½ per cent.

STATE BANKS SHOW BIG GAIN.

Chicago Institutions Have Increased Resources and Liabilities by $4,439,389 in Last Three Months.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A flattering increase of strength during the last three months is shown by the state banks of Chicago, according to the statement issued from the office of the auditor of public accounts today. The resources and liabilities of these banks at the commencement of business on the morning of Aug. 11, 1903, were $273,034,082, an increase in three months of $4,439,389. The loans and discounts were $149,296,193, an increase of $5,080,086; the surplus fund was $13,213,000, an increase of $1,500,000; the time deposits, savings, were $103,466,479, an increase of $2,849,643, while there had been a decrease in the demand deposits of all kinds of $1,256,958.

GOOD DEMAND FOR PEACHES.

Receipts Are Lighter, While the Demand Is Heavier Locally and for Shipment—Veal Higher.

Arrivals of peaches were lighter and there was an improved demand, both on local account and for shipment. Prices of best sorts were higher. There was a better demand for small baskets than for the larger baskets or for crates. Veal was higher and in sharp demand, mainly from local sources. Best grades of butter held steady, but some of the lower grades were easier. Quotations were as follows:

Old Settlers' Picnic at Sterling, Ill.

Sterling, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Ten thousand people attended the old settlers' picnic of Whiteside county today.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

BURLINGTON SOON TO COMPLETE OTTUMWA CUTOFF.

Work Costing $1,500,000 Will Reduce Distance and Abolish a Steep Grade—Low Rates for Eagles' Convention and for Chicago Centennial Celebration—St. Paul Company About to Open a Line to Mankato, Minn—New Post for J. Francis Lee.

Within the next sixty days the Burlington expects to have completed the immense cut and fill near Ottumwa, Ia. This, it is claimed, has been one of the most gigantic tasks in railroad building undertaken in Iowa in recent years. It entailed an expense of $1,500,000.

When the cutoff—which has been built to straighten the track and reduce the grades between Ottumwa and Street—has been completed, the Burlington will have a double track system from Chicago to a point a few miles west of Villisca. The new cutoff will reduce the distance between Street and Ottumwa one mile, and it will reduce the grade, which at on place was seventy-five feet a mile, to the Burlington standard, which is thirty-five feet. The great gain will be made in the running time, the heavier loads which can be hauled, and the cutting off of the pusher engine from Agency to Ottumwa.

Low Rates for the Eagles.

The Wisconsin Central has been prevailed upon not to throw open to the public its $8 round trip rate from the Twin Cities to Chicago, made as a part of the $32 rate to New York for the Eagles. The rate will apply only to the Eagles and will be on sale but one day—Aug. 27, with final return limit Sept. 16. Notice was given yesterday by the Rock Island, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and Burlington railroads that they would make an $8 round trip rate between the Twin Cities and Chicago and return on account of the Eagles' convention, and the Northwestern and Great Western will undoubtedly follow suit. The Wisconsin Central, it it claimed, will get the great bulk of the Eagles' business.

Fares for Chicago Centennial.

Western Passenger association roads have concurred in the recommendations of the executive committee regarding arrangements for the celebration of Chicago's centennial, from Sept. 26 to Oct. 1. The following rates will be made: One fare and a third for the round trip from all points from which the local one way rate is $4.50 or less; tickets at this rate will be sold from Sept. 28 to 30, inclusive, good to return until and including Oct. 2. A rate of one fare for the round trip, with minimum of $6, will be made from all other points in association territory, tickets to be sold from Sept. 26 to 28, inclusive, good to return leaving Chicago until Oct. 5. To these rates 25 cents will be added as a fee for having the return portion of the tickets executed by the joint agent.

New Line in Minnesota.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul will open its new cross line into Mankato next Monday, reducing its mileage from St. Paul to the southern Minnesota city from 177 to eighty-six miles and giving it the shortest route from St. Paul to Mankato by half a mile.

The new line has been under construction for two years and leaves the Iowa and Minnesota division line at Farmington, taking a southerly course through a rich agricultural district.

New Post for J. Francis Lee.

J. Francis Lee, formerly general western agent of the Canadian Pacific at Chicago, has been appointed second vice president and general manager of the Valdez, Copper River and Tanuna railway company, with headquarters at Seattle. This is a new road in Alaska running east from Valdez. Twelve miles of it are graded, the ties are on the ground, and the rails are shipped.

HAVE CARS ENOUGH THIS YEAR.

Railway Managers Anticipate No Congestion of Freight in the Coming Fall.

Reports gathered from eight of the leading western roads with their connections east of St. Louis and Chicago show that in motive power, car capacity, yard facilities, and general equipment to handle all business they are in a much better condition than a year ago. These roads show the following increases:

	Per cent increase since June 30, 1902.
Motive power	11.1
Car capacity	12.37
Yard facilities	10.
General equipment	5.6

In regard to both motive power and car capacity the percentage of increase is greater than that given above because some of the roads only returned the increase in number of locomotives and cars, which is far from representing the true gain by reason of the greater power and capacity of the new equipment. The persistent work at grade reductions and track straightening during the year has also an important bearing on the handling of a larger volume of traffic.

One road reports: "We do not apprehend any shortage of cars, having prepared for any increase of business which might be reasonably expected." Another road reports that when work now under way is completed "it will practically double capacity for handling business in Chicago."

NEW TINPLATE MERGER FORMED

Six Companies Now in Independent Combine, with Headquarters at Pittsburg and Columbus.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 21.—By the merging of a number of sheet and tinplate companies in the Pittsburg district an independent combine has been formed. The United Sheet and Tinplate company, with headquarters in Pittsburg and Columbus, has just been organized with the absorption of the following companies:

Marietta Sheet and Tinplate company, Marietta, O.; the tin shipping branch of the American Tin and Terne Plate company, Philadelphia; Tuscora Steel company, with rolling mill and galvanizing plant, at Newcomerstown, O.; Cambridge-Byesville Sheet company, now building a fifty-ton open hearth steel furnace with blooming and billet mills, at Byesville, O.; the Byesville Coal company, Byesville; and the Tucker Steel Roofing company, Newark, O., also owning natural gas wells at Marietta and Byesville, O.

The estimated output annually of the company will be 40,000 to 50,000 tons of billets, sheet and tinplate bars, 30,000 tons of black sheets, plate, and tinplate, and galvanized iron, some of which will be in the shape of corrugated iron conductor pipe and steel ceilings. M. F. Straus of Philadelphia is president of the new combine.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The dry goods market has continued active at second hands, but little of this has been reflected at first hands. Buyers continue conservative and yet are more desirous of securing goods for immediate delivery and are making general complaint that they cannot secure the goods as per schedule.

Employment Agencies.

A MAN KILLED HIMSELF the other day at Evanston because he could not find employment. Many men are almost as desperate because, in this large and busy city, they do not know where to look for the positions they want. We know where the places are and what kind of men are wanted. Our office is a clearing house between employer and employe. Chicago is so large that, although there are hundreds of places open, and employers are in urgent need of men, yet the very men for those places will pass right by the doors, not knowing the positions are inside waiting for them. Employers know that by applying to us they can quickly reach the men they want. Employes, by applying to us, reach at once hundreds of the best business houses. If the place for you is now open you will get it at once. If not open now you will get it when it is open.

MEDICAL AND HOSPITALS.

CHICAGO'S EMINENT PHYSICIAN—
DR. W. F. BRINEY,
TREATS WOMEN ONLY.
Office, 130 Dearborn-st., Room 408.
Phone Central 815. Hours 9-5. Sunday 10-11.
A WOMAN WHO REQUIRES THE ADVICE OF A PHYSICIAN owes it to herself to seek the aid of one who is an EXPERT in the treatment of the complaints peculiar to her sex.
Every woman can come to Dr. Briney in absolute confidence; her secrets will be respected and she will find in him A FRIEND and ADVISER who will give her the benefit of his marvelous skill in restoring her to health, happiness, and freedom from care and worry.
Under his reliable and skillful treatment the most obstinate cases yield at once. Patients may return home the same day or remain under his personal care at his elegant suburban sanitarium. He is the only specialist in Chicago who has and employs perfectly safe, sure, and painless methods.
Fees within the reach of all. Same accommodations to rich and poor.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

MID-SUMMER PIANO CLEARING SALE.

A REMARKABLE OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE EITHER A NEW OR SLIGHTLY USED UPRIGHT.

An exceedingly dull July leaves us with a great surplus of pianos of all grades. Price reductions in many lines will rule during the coming week. Whether you desire a low priced piano or a high grade instrument we are prepared to offer you very special value. A visit of inspection cordially invited.

ALSO A FLOOR FULL OF BARGAINS IN USED UPRIGHTS.

So many that it is difficult to tell where to begin to enumerate them. A glance shows the following: McCammon upright, $115; McPhail upright, $275; Collard upright, very old, $50; Huntington upright, $165; 12 Steinways and Knabes, various prices; Krakauer upright, $280; Bauer upright, $135; Vose upright, $150; Sohmer upright, $125; Chickering upright, $275; Packard upright, $295; Hazelton upright, $285; Fischer upright, $250; Haines upright, $150; Kaiser upright, $135; Olson upright, $125; Weser Bros. upright, $90; Regent upright, $190; Washburn upright, oak, $140; Sterling upright, oak, $175; and many others.

Bear in mind that these figures include overhauling in our own repair shops by workmen of the very highest skill. THIS IS IMPORTANT. The hours spent by a first class workman on a piano of this class may mean all the difference between satisfaction and dissatisfaction. Besides, this does away with the danger of hidden defects. Furthermore, many of the above pianos would readily pass for new.

GOOD PARLOR ORGANS VERY LOW. Choice of 20 different styles from $35 up. Second hand organs from $10 up.

Our regular stock embraces over 600 pianos, including Steinway, Knabe, Mason & Hamlin, Miller, Hazelton, Krakauer, McPhail, Fischer, Sterling, Huntington, and other great makes. All these different pianos are distinguished by some special feature. The workmanship in each is of a superior character, and every one of these pianos is of a design approved by the highest standards of public taste.

EASY PAYMENTS—Pianos may be secured from us on very easy terms. No advance in price when paid for by installments.

Buyers at a distance should write for special bargain list, and also our schedule of freight rates. We ship pianos everywhere.

LYON & HEALY, Wabash-av. and Adams-st.

The business of Lyon & Healy largely exceeds in volume and value that of any other musical establishment in either Europe or America.

We close Saturdays at 1 p. m.

W. W. KIMBALL CO. offer the best possible values to purchasers of PIANOS AND ORGANS.

They own and operate a manufacturing plant more than double the size and output of any similar institution in the world.

This plant is equipped with labor saving devices of the greatest utility, including many important inventions owned and used exclusively by W. W. Kimball Co.

As a Chicago industry, it is the center of all sources of supply, and, by its private railway, has direct connection with the world's transportation companies, thus having all the advantages of economy in producing and distributing.

This system has all the economic advantages of but one single operating and selling expense.

THE RESULT of this co-operation is a product which is purchased and recommended by the greatest musicians of the age; which received the "Highest Honors" at the World's Fair, and also the only gold medal given to any piano at the Omaha Exposition.

Price on each instrument marked in plain figures. Same to one and all.

KIMBALL PIANO PLAYER.

In the use of the Kimball Piano Player any one, without musical education, and with but a few moments' practice, can play correctly any composition on any piano.

Daily concerts free at manufacturers' warerooms. Fine library of music with each player without extra charge.

PIPE ORGANS. All sizes and prices.

GREAT BARGAINS in second hand pianos and organs which have been "taken in exchange" for new Kimballs.
SQUARE PIANOS, $10 and upward.
UPRIGHT PIANOS, $75 and upward.
ORGANS at practically your own prices.
Time payments accepted.

W. W. KIMBALL CO. (Established 1857), Southwest corner Wabash-av. and Jackson-blvd.

$88.00 SAVED THIS WEEK. $88.00

BEAUTIFUL HAND CARVED COLONIAL PIANO.

AT THE VOSE STORE THIS WEEK YOU will find one of the best bargains ever offered in Chicago in a strictly high grade, modern, upright piano.

THIS PIANO IS MADE IN NEW YORK, AND sells regularly at $300. At the Vose store this week it costs you only $212, and you can suit your own convenience in regard to payments.

YOU CAN SELECT EITHER MAHOGANY, walnut, or oak finish in the beautiful colonial design, with artistic hand carving. The piano has a fine class of workmanship throughout, and every feature is of the latest and most approved design. At $212 this piano cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

THERE ARE OTHER EQUALLY ATTRACtive bargains at the Vose store this week. Second hand square pianos at your own price—ones up to $40, on easy payments. Also Steinway square for [illegible] pianos that have seen service are offered at prices that mean an actual saving to you over what you would pay elsewhere, of from $10 to $60.

YOU SHOULD NOT FAIL TO INSPECT THE $212 Colonial Upright described above, whether you intend to buy now or later.

NEWS OF THE INSURANCE FIELD.

Sea and Lake Company of Chicago to Engage Extensively in the Fire Business.

The Sea and Lake Insurance company of Chicago has decided to branch out extensively in the general fire business in addition to the marine line in which it has been engaged. It has been confining its operations to four states, but within the month has made application in ten more states. It recently has been examined by the Illinois insurance department, and is being admitted on its certificate. The states in which application has been made are Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Iowa. Charles Platt Jr. & Co. have been appointed state agents for Pennsylvania, and the state agency policy will generally be followed. The company recently transferred $100,000 of its capital to the surplus account to provide for the requirements of the new fire line.

The Traders of Illinois, in its report to the Georgia insurance department on its business for the first half of 1903, that being now the only state to require semi-annual statements, reported the income for the six months at $770,989 and the expenditures at $694,319. The assets are $2,717,835 and the surplus $1,102,077.

All the nonunion companies, and all the union companies but the Home, withdrew from the Colvin agency at Hillsboro because it refused to report through the stamping secretary. The nonunion companies finally gave the Home a month to withdraw or they would consider themselves free to return. The Home took no action, and the German of Indiana and several other nonunion companies went back to the Colvin agency. Secretary Persch of the Illinois state board visited Hillsboro and succeeded in having the Home transfer, but now the nonunion companies decline to change again.

D. M. Parry, the Indianapolis buggy manufacturer, proposes to equip a part of his new plant with automatic sprinklers. A part of his line has been placed with the factory mutuals, but the stock companies hope to get the sprinkled risks.

TRADE HOLDING ITS OWN.

OUTLOOK AS SEEN BY DUN AND BRADSTREET'S.

Adverse Factors That Have Been Operating Against Prosperity in Recent Weeks No Longer as Potent—Labor Troubles Curtail Output—Railway Earnings Show an Average Gain—Orders for Iron Are Liberal at Lower Prices—Clearings for the Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Business is well maintained, aside from the quieting influence of the vacation season, which somewhat restricts trade and retards collections. Making due allowance for the period, there is no cause for complaint. The adverse factors that have been operating against prosperity in recent preceding weeks are no longer as potent, normal influences gradually prevailing.

"Labor controversies still exist, curtailing the output of a few products and the consumption of all the necessary things of life.

"Crops are not going to market as freely as usual, although the agricultural outlook is distinctly favorable.

"In spite of several obvious reasons for expecting a check to freight traffic, earnings of railways thus far reported in August show an average gain of 9.6 per cent over last year and 18.2 per cent over 1901. Complaint is beginning to be heard regarding the inadequate facilities of the railways, and it now appears that inconvenience and loss must again be experienced, notwithstanding the extensive improvements.

Liberal Orders for Iron.

"Although production of coke at Connellsville has been moderately curtailed, supplies accumulate and prices are depressed. A fairly liberal tonnage of iron has been placed during the last week, providing abundant demand for all the pig that is being made. More large contracts for iron and steel have been placed by a prominent manufacturer of agricultural machinery, and as much of this business has been held back entirely on account of prices it is believed that no further concessions are to be expected.

"In view of the satisfactory jobbing trade that is reported in dry goods it is surprising that no reflection of the activity is seen in the primary market. Makers of cotton goods find no business offering except such small orders for immediate requirements as emanate from urgent dealers.

"Moderate orders for lightweight woolens and worsteds have been placed for spring delivery. Heavy shipments of shoes from Boston makes striking comparisons with preceding years, and the volume of new business promises to maintain a heavy movement, but it is noteworthy that there is a tendency to operate moderately and frequently this year rather than to buy seldom and largely, as in other seasons."

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "Weather and crop conditions are still the keynotes to fall trade. In the northwest, southwest, and south buyers are taking hold energetically, and reports as a whole are as good or better than a year ago. In the east fall jobbing has started in well, though perhaps not so active as hoped for. Some soft spots are, however, noted in the central west, sections in which crop yields were lighter than hoped for buying conservatively. Retail trade is seasonably quiet, and collections are reported backward in a number of instances.

In Iron and Steel Lines.

"Weakness in southern foundry iron is noted at eastern markets and Bessemer pig iron is reported offered at $1 per ton lower at Pittsburg than a week ago, with supplies for immediate delivery more in evidence. Large buying of pig iron is less noticeable than it was one or two weeks ago, but quite a number of small orders have been booked.

"Steel billets are less active, but fairly firm. Merchant bars, sheets, and plates in finished products are reported in much better call, but the demand for structural material is light, particularly reflecting recent labor troubles. Copper was marked up this week, partially, it is thought, to affect stock market quotations, but some large sales below the official price are reported.

Exports of Grain.

"Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending Aug. 20 aggregate 3,372,789 bushels, against 3,413,191 last week, 5,954,759 this week last year, 6,606,980 in 1901, and 2,695,163 in 1900.

"For seven weeks of the cereal year they aggregate 21,833,233 bushels, against 31,339,796 in 1902, 48,153,895 in 1901, and 20,677,606 in 1900. Corn exports for the week aggregate 509,495 bushels, against 707,387 last week, 51,649 a year ago, 524,883 in 1901, and 3,493,375 in 1900. For seven weeks of the present cereal year they aggregate 7,458,975 bushels, against 639,509 in 1902, 8,257,103 in 1901, and 24,760,195 in 1900.

"Business failures in the United States for the week ending with Aug. 20 number 166, against 160 last week, 181 in the like week of 1902, 181 in 1901, 135 in 1900, and 154 in 1899. In Canada failures for the week number 14, as against 17 last week, and 26 in this week a year ago.

Bank Clearings for the Week.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Money in the market today was obtainable practically on borrowers' terms. Business on the stock exchange was reduced to a minimum and there was little disposition to expand, in view of tomorrow's holiday and the nearness of the settlement. The tendency, however, was firm. Consols hardened and home rails sympathized with them. Americans at first reflected their regularity in Wall street, but closed easier. Rio Tintos were strong, owing to copper advancing on good buying orders.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Business on the boerse today was generally firm, and trading had a better tone.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Trading on the bourse today was moderately active. The tone improved on oriental advices, which steadied internationals. At the close prices were firm throughout.

TWO BANKRUPTS TO RESUME.

A. B. Wrisley Company and Toy Gun Concern to Make Settlement with Creditors.

Three bankrupt estates will soon leave the control of the United States District court, two to resume business and one to end its corporate existence.

The Allen B. Wrisley company, soap makers, is arranging to pay creditors 40 per cent of their claims. Its affairs have been under control of the court for several months, the indebtedness being about $250,000. It is said the factory will employ 800 persons.

An offer of settlement is said to have been made to creditors of the Toy Gun Manufacturing company of Grand Crossing, whose debts are placed at $20,000. Bids for the company's stock a few days ago rose from $1,500 to $13,000. It is understood the debtor will pay 60 cents on the dollar.

Attorney C. B. Haffenberg, representing creditors of the United States Locomotive corporation of Hammond, Ind., will ask Referee Eastman today to enter an order for the sale of plant and machinery. The assets are said to be worth $150,000, while liabilities are $200,000.

SHOOTS WIFE FOR A BURGLAR.

Policeman Albert M. Schaefer Fires and Bullet Passes Through Woman's Body.

Mistaking his wife for a burglar, Policeman Albert M. Schaefer of the Summerdale station shot her early yesterday morning in their home, 954 Carmen avenue. Mrs. Schaefer had told her husband that she thought she heard burglars in the house. Schaefer secured his revolver and went to the kitchen, his wife following. Schaefer heard her footsteps and not knowing that she had left bed, fired two shots, one of which took effect, passing through the woman's body. Mrs. Schaefer was taken to the German hospital, where it was said she probably would recover. She exonerated her husband and he was not arrested.

LAKE SHIPPING NEWS.

Freights and Charters.

After trying several days to maintain grain rates at 1¼ cents they gave up the attempt, and business was done freely at 1 cent. The only charter reported was the Phenix for oats to Georgian bay. The oats accumulated during the July deal have been moving in large quantities, as many as 500,000 bushels going forward in a single day. Some of the shipments have been at ⅞ of a cent a bushel to Georgian bay.

CLEVELAND, O.—All vessels that can get coal to carry are being placed for up cargoes, although offerings of ore tonnage are liberal all around. Coal carriers are getting bunched at upper lake ports, but the dock situation at this end of the route is better than it has been for months.

Ignorance has always maligned, but never injured progress, hence the foolish ranting of the weakling.

Remarkable Results Obtained by Mrs. Lena A. White's Voice Shorthand System.

1,600 students graduated in the last three years at White's College of Shorthand. All of these students graduated in less than forty days after enrollment, and were immediately placed, permanently and successfully, in the best positions Chicago offers to expert stenographers.

Business Men Best Judges. Mrs. Lena A. White Secures Business Men's Gratitude.

1,600 of Chicago's most successful business men are today blessing Mrs. Lena A. White's inventive genius, in having revolutionized all forms of fossilized shorthand, typewriting, and inferior instruction in English, universally used in those so-called Business Colleges and Shorthand Schools, whose only recommendation is age.

Does More Than She Advertises To Do.

Mrs. Lena A. White guarantees to make you an expert stenographer and typewriter in 40 to 60 days, or refund your money; but the enrollment and registration cards on file at White's College will prove that Mrs. White graduates all her students in less than 40 days with her phenomenal Voice Shorthand System and her unprecedented methods of teaching.

A Marvel in Shorthand—Entire System Memorized in One Hour.

Mrs. Lena A. White's Voice Shorthand System comprises only 25 characters which represent all the articulations of the human voice, and 12 short rules, all of which can be memorized by any one of average intelligence in one hour. No other Shorthand System has ever been memorized, because they are made up of thousands of meaningless word-signs and phrases, which no human intellect has ever mastered.

Astonishes World with Typewriting Method and English Training.

Mrs. Lena A. White's touch typewriting method, as well as her unique and original training in English, have so greatly surpassed all other like branches of study that her students marvel at the results obtained.

All Shorthand Failures Made Expert.

Hundreds of complete failures of all other business colleges and shorthand schools teaching shorthand in Chicago have been made expert stenographers and typewriters in less than 40 days at White's College of Shorthand. Call and see their testimonials and home addresses, where you can interview them at your leisure, as they all live in Chicago.
